In The Legislature

The University of Florida campus is expected to see a rise in the number of students this fall, according to Dr. John S. Tate, president of the University of Florida.

The increase in enrollment is expected to be due to a number of factors, including the rising cost of tuition, the increasing number of students who are opting for college education, and the increasing number of students who are enrolling in the University of Florida's graduate programs.

The University of Florida campus has a diverse student body, with students from all over the world.

The number of students planning to work their way to Europe this summer is increasing steadily. This is possible, the department head said, because the number of students able to afford the trip is increasing.

Mr. Wathen, "but only a very small number of these students have actually gone. Last semester a hundred or less of them were able to go. It is difficult to get a job and they are usually very busy." he said.

Mr. Wathen also predicted that the number of students planning to work their way to Europe this summer will continue to increase. 18 Year Olds Should Not Vote

The Florida Senate this week initiated some legislation that, if approved, would make it illegal to vote in any Florida election. The bill, which was referred to the Senate Education Committee, would make it a crime to vote for those under the age of 18. The measure is based on the premise that those under the age of 18 are not mature enough to vote. The bill was introduced by Senator Richard J. Bryan of Miami, who said the measure is necessary to protect the integrity of the electoral process.

Support for the bill came from a variety of sources, including the Florida Bar, which endorsed it as a means of ensuring that only those who are mature enough to vote are allowed to do so. The American Civil Liberties Union, on the other hand, opposes the bill, saying that it violates the right of young people to participate in the democratic process.

The Florida Senate has yet to vote on the measure, and it is not clear whether it will become law. However, the issue of whether young people should be allowed to vote is likely to be debated in the coming months, as the issue of young people's participation in the political process continues to be a topic of discussion.
