Live Oak woman arrested for animal cruelty

LIVE OAK — A Live Oak woman was arrested Thursday on 48 counts of improper care of animals.

When Megan Hahn and Dennis Way won a search warrant this week from the Suwannee County Sheriff’s Office, Animal Control Division, to conduct a raid on a home at 7434 SW 287th Street, the officers were the inspectors of the pets and the living conditions “caused excessive and extraordinary suffering to the animals," according to the report. The officers discovered 16 dogs and 24 dogs running free in the residence, many appearing to be malnourished, with feces scattered throughout the house. An odor of animal urine was emitted from the home. According to the release, the owner, 54-year-old Jennifer Daniels, had previously violated the law and was arrested approximately 30 animals to Animal Control. When examined by a veterinarian, the dogs were found to be suffering from malnutrition, with one dog not showing any signs of life. The dogs were detailed and provided with food and water. The pet owners were charged with three counts of aggravated animal cruelty. Nobody was injured. According to the Suwannee County Sheriff's Office, no one was injured in the raid. The animals were brought to the shelter and will be examined by a veterinarian. The owner was charged with three counts of aggravated animal cruelty.
