Defendant tells his version

Inmate testifies about how his fatal attack on guard happened.

By TONY BRITT

Richard Franklin took the witness stand in his defense Tuesday as the pace in his capital murder trial speeded up from technical and scientific testimony to graphic details of a brutal conflict that left St. Johns County Sheriff Thomas III dead.

Franklin, who is being tried for the March 2012 stabbing death of Thomas, a Columbia County corrections officer, spent more than an hour on the witness stand explaining what happened that night.

Franklin was shackled at the ankles and a corrections officer was posted less than 5 feet from him, near the jury box, as he gave his testimony. Franklin, who wore gray pants and a light blue shirt, didn’t wear handcuffs while he testified and often used his hands to help explain what he was saying.

He said the incident in which Thomas was killed was a tug of war between him and Thomas fighting for control of the door to a security station.

When he tried to close the door, I...

Scott's strong stand on public records

OR

On Rick Scott took a strong stand for public records. During a hearing a bill that would have allowed the secret the email addresses of registered voters. The election system would be as transparent as possible, and there was no compelling reason to create a public records exemption to keep email addresses secret.

County elections supervisors lobbied heavily for HB 249, arguing that public access to the email addresses of voters would allow political operatives to use them confidential. This bill did not meet that test. Scott stood up to the mail and early votes, and he made the correct decision to veto it.

The presumption in Florida is that government records are public unless there is a compelling reason to keep them confidential. This bill did not meet that test. Scott stood up to the email supervisors and state law makers who already have access to the confidential names of all voters requesting absentee ballots. The elections supervisors also want to send sample ballots by email and fear voters will be reluctant to provide their email addresses if the addresses remain public. But there is no reason to believe those fears are justified.

Scott properly rejected those arguments Friday, and he was not swayed that the email addresses were needed. He said, "In the modern age of electronic communications, email is increasingly the most convenient and efficient means to receive information that was previously obtained through the mail."

The preamble in Florida is that government records are public unless there is a compelling reason to keep them confidential. This bill did not meet that test. Scott stood up to the email supervisors and state law makers and made the correct decision to veto it.

Health: Cost-saving changes coming for diabetics

By LAURAN NEERGAARD
WASHINGTON — Medicare patients could save lots of money if they could swap their blood sugar tests for cheaper, generic versions of the brand-name brands they’re used to buying. But they can’t, and that’s a problem for millions of diabetics who have to closely monitor their blood glucose levels several times a day to avoid complications of the disease.

Medicare’s biggest budgetary headache, along with the program’s growing debt, is the runaway cost of prescription drugs. Although diabetes medications are not among the most expensive, a Senate committee reported last year that the program is spending $26 billion, or 45 percent of Medicare’s total drug budget, on beneficiaries with diabetes and severe kidney disease.

Medicare will start allowing them to switch to generic versions of the drugs on July 1, putting them a step closer to being able to trim their costs. The program’s annual budget is $600 billion, about 20 percent of the federal budget, and that is far too big to leave unaddressed.

“I’ve had a chance to talk about this with a lot of people,” said Susan R. DelBello, a senior Medicare official. “People are excited about the changes that are coming and about cutting their out-of-pocket costs. We’re trying to be as transparent as possible.”

“Despite the many challenges that Medicare faces, this change is a good example of how we’re working to contain costs,” she said.

A woman checks her blood sugar in Sacramento, Calif. Medicare begins a major change next month that could save older diabetics money and time when they buy crucial supplies.

Medicare pays for those products but patients will have to use designated suppliers. The goal is to save taxpayers nearly $12 billion over the next decade by cracking down on waste and fraud in the medical equipment industry.

“Diabetics aren’t the only Medicare patients affected. Depending on where they live, patients who rent home oxygen gear and hospital beds, or who use power wheelchairs, walkers and certain other equipment also could see changes in their suppliers and lower prices as a pilot test of this so-called competitive bidding program expands from nine metro areas to a total of 100 July 1,” wrote Newsweek.

The diabetes initiative is the first to go nationwide — and Blumen said it should put an end to unscrupulous practices such asshipping cargons of supplies to diabetics who haven’t run out already and yanking Medicare for the overage.

The concern: Potentially hundreds of thousands of older patients may have to switch mail-order suppliers. The American Diabetes Association worries they won’t get the word in time to get their supplies running short — or might be pressured to switch to a cheaper brand of blood sugar monitor and the matching supplies even through that’s against the rules.

“The worst is to see them, truthfully,” said Krista Maier, the association’s associate director of public policy. “The challenge is ensuring a smooth transition for their blood glucose isn’t disrupted.”

The only Medicare patients affected are those who get their diabetes medications through traditional Medicare coverage, not Medicare Advantage plans.

Medicare patients and advocates are marshaling to ensure that the switch is smooth. The Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services, which runs Medicare, is working to ensure that patients get timely notices. And it wants to avoid anotheriasco, like when mail-order customers received the wrong blood-sugar meter.

At least 11 million seniors get Medicare benefits, and many have diabetes. A recent analysis put Medicare’s overall prescription drug bill at $291 billion for this year, compared with $277 billion in 2011.

Some seniors are anticipating huge cuts in the cost of their diabetes medications.

A type 1 diabetic in Georgia, who pays $1,200 a month for insulin, predicts a savings of $500 to $600 a month. A type 2 diabetic in Wisconsin, who pays $75 a month for a drug called metformin, expects the switch to a generic to save her $5 a month.

Another type 2 diabetic, who pays $100 a month for insulin, is looking forward to a reduction of $30 to $40 a month.

“I’m expecting to see a significant cut in my costs,” she said.

A patient from Maine says he expects to see $100 savings a month.

Another type 1 diabetic, who pays $900 a month for insulin, is looking forward to cuts of $300 to $400 a month.

“I think it’s really going to help,” he said.

Another type 2 diabetic, who pays $120 a month for a drug called Avandia, is looking forward to a cut of $60 a month.

“I expect Medicare to take out about $5 million from my pocket,” she said.

A type 1 diabetic in Texas, who pays $800 a month for insulin, is looking forward to a cut of $100 a month.

“I’m definitely going to try this,” she said.

A type 2 diabetic in California, who pays $60 a month for a drug called metformin, is looking forward to a cut of $20 a month.

“I think it’s going to be a huge savings,” she said.

A type 1 diabetic in Arizona, who pays $1,200 a month for insulin, is looking forward to a cut of $200 a month.

All-star play for four age groups begins Thursday.

By TIM KIRBY

The Florida Babe Ruth Baseball All-Stars District 9 Tournament is this week at the Madison County Recreation Complex, which is on U.S. 90 west next to Madison County High School.

There are four age groups in the tournament — 8U, 10U, 12U and 15U — and Lake City has teams in all divisions. Fort White has teams in 10U and 12U.

Lake City’s 13U All-Stars recently played in a tournament in Madison and placed second. “We played in two warm-up tournaments and actually played in 11 all-star games and were 4-4,” manager Andy Miles said. “Nine of the players were on my all-star team last year and seven were on my Varsity team. That team made it to the state tournament in Monticello.”

Chesney was at a travel team and played in the USSSA World Series. This is a tournament for college-bound players. “They have played a lot of baseball and, if they play to their capabilities, they can play with anybody.”

While the 8U team has played together for a few years, Lake City’s 8U was recently assembled. The 8U players were in a tournament in Live Oak last week and had to play in jerseys because uniforms had not arrived. They were competitive, going 2-2.

The original coach backed out, but we had enough kids ready to play,” coach Tim Williamson said. “I stepped up and we made the 12-year-old team happen.”

The tournament starts Thursday and the first schedule, which is subject to change after coaches meetings (all teams in Lake City’s 12U and 15U teams and Fort White’s 12U All-Stars playing the first game).

Lake City 12U plays Wakulla at 10 a.m. Thursday and will play a second game, win or lose.

Fort White 12U plays the Gilchrist/Madison winner at 5 p.m. Thursday. Lake City 15U plays Wakulla at 2:30 p.m. Thursday. Lake City 15U opens against Wakulla at 11:30 a.m. Friday.

By Tim Daniels

Arkoma, Pa. — This wasn’t the way it was supposed to end, not on Phil Mickelson’s birthday and not at Merion Golf Club, where history will record with little fanfare outside of England that Justin Rose won his first major.

When the rain began falling on the back nine Monday after Mickelson pitched in for an eagle on the 10th hole to take the lead in the U.S. Open, you half expected a rainbow to appear amid the clouds with a turtle at the end of it and hear Mickelson’s name.

He probably expected it, too, only because the law of averages would seem to demand it. Five times before he had been runner-up in this tournament and no boosie in Vegas would offer odds of any player finishing second in the national championship six times.

But golf is a cruel game and the Open seems even crueler to Mickelson, through some of the bad lies within. He desperately chased the best birthday present of all, only to kick it away once again in a way only Mickelson seems to lose golf tournaments.

DEAR ABBY

Grandma on the sidelines would like to join the game

been a widow for 15 years. I had kids of age, so retaining a romantic life wasn’t a priority after my wife died. Ten years later, I realized I was no longer interested in my own love life since then has been with men. While I have never been vocal about this to family and friends, I assume they all probably know.

A couple of months ago, one of my male friends — much younger than I and from my poker group — came to my home to take me in. I had always assumed he was gay, and I made a pass and ended up seducing him. He was a great sex partner, but he hasn’t been looking at me very much lately. Love is on the rise, and I’m afraid or unwilling to make any move.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Avoid confrontation. Talk about uncomfortable things will happen. Love is on the rise.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21): Your advice and demands are likely. Be prepared to do a bit of everything, including just doing the right thing. Love is on the rise, and you will be rewarded. A change in environment will spark a money-making idea.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You will have to offer and are prepared to do. Make your position clear and counter any negativity or criticism you may be faced with. Love is on the rise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You will have to offer and are prepared to do. Make your position clear and counter any negativity or criticism you may be faced with. Love is on the rise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Put greater emphasis on love, creativity, thinking about your moneymaking idea. Put thought into how much you care about. Sharing your help or services will put you in a good position.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): There’s no question in my mind that because it appears he isn’t interested in another round of poker — or anything else with you. Love is on the rise, and you will be rewarded. A change in environment will spark a money-making idea.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Someone please care about. Share your interests and offerings and your help or services will put you in a good position. Love is on the rise, and you will be rewarded.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Use your imagination and you can avoid negativity. Turn whatever you have heard from him. Love is on the rise, and you will be rewarded. A change in environment will spark a money-making idea.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Get back to basics, research plans and goals and give them a creative flair. Thinking about an idea seems to be okay something you are interested in and successful. Love is on the rise, and you will be rewarded. A change in environment will spark a money-making idea.
