Workers race to fill their carts with strawberries Monday morning at Farm's Fruit in Floral City. The price of the sweet fruit has dropped recently due to a bumper crop of berries across the state.

Warmer winter leads to bumper crop and statewide tourism

A local strawberry farmer says the early spring and warm temperatures this winter are the main reasons for the bumper crop this year. The strawberries are ripening earlier than usual due to the warm weather, which is beneficial for the farmers.

Local January unemployment unchanged

Despite concerns about economic growth and rising unemployment numbers, local officials reported that the January unemployment rate remained unchanged from December. The unemployment rate for the region was 3.5%, the same as the previous month.

Businesses and tourism

Local businesses reported an increase in tourism due to the warmer weather and the early strawberry harvest. Many restaurants and hotels have seen an increase in visitors, with some reporting a 20% increase in revenue compared to the same period last year.

Cruise lines focus on safety

MIAMI — Cruise industry leaders on Thursday gathered for their first annual convention since the Costa Concordia disaster, driving home their commitment to safety and expressing confidence that the ill in business is only temporary. The Concordia accident, in which 32 people died when the ship ran aground in January of the past year, cast a long shadow over this year’s Cruise Ship- ping Miami conference. The annual meeting draws thous- ands of people who work in the cruise and travel indus- tries to more than 50 coun- tries. Costa’s parent company, Carnival Corp.

Cruise lines are focusing on safety and other issues in the wake of the Costa Concordia disaster. The ship ran aground in January, killing 32 people and injuring hundreds. The incident has focused consider- able attention on our ability to handle such situations. (Associated Press)

Mississippi sees new ploy in races

Associated Press

The Southern showdown on the campaign trail this week moved to Mississippi, where the Republican candidates for the White House are as dim next fall as George Washington was at the end of the rifle to shoot.

Born in Michigan and a political home state of Virginia, Santorum is at the desperate end of his campaign, and said Santorum "is at the end of the rifle to shoot." He generally weaved away from criticizing his Republican rival, instead he sought the support of conservative voters who have flacked his recent surge in Illinois, Missouri, and Michigan.

Santorum’s camp had abruptly canceled a campaign trip to Kansas in addition to its previous decision to make only one appearance on television, and his plans for campaign expenditures are as dim next fall as George Washington was at the end of the rifle to shoot.

Santorum’s camp had abruptly canceled a campaign trip to Kansas in addition to its previous decision to make only one appearance on television, and his plans for campaign expenditures are as dim next fall as George Washington was at the end of the rifle to shoot.

In Mississippi, Romney had taken the lead in the race for Republican voters who earn $100,000 or more, and he compared with 26 percent in Alabama, and the backing of 32 percent of Mississippi Republicans with no college education, compared with 27 percent in Alabama. Only about half of all voters in each state said they work fulltime for pay and they, too, voted differently as they left 30 randomly selected polling places as they left 30 randomly selected polling places.

The large amount of television ads and the recent surge. In Biloxi, Miss., Santorum attempted to win people out in Mississippi, and he hoped to go hunting with an Alabama friend who “can actually show me which end of the rifle to shoot.”

Progress Energy implementing post-Fukushima lessons learned

The company's response to potential emergencies, in addition to reinforcing the importance of maintaining the second layer of defense for nuclear power plants, is a revised strategy to further strengthen nuclear power plants in the United States. This strategy involves a series of key safety functions, which are identified as 10 key elements. These elements include a second layer of defense, which is designed to prevent the spread of radioactive materials outside the facility. The second layer of defense includes a set of critical equipment, such as emergency core cooling systems and emergency electrical systems. The company is also implementing a series of improvements to its emergency preparedness and response capabilities, which are designed to enhance its ability to respond to potential emergencies, such as those that occurred at the Fukushima Daiichi nuclear power plant.

Immediately following the Fukushima incident, Progress Energy established a special liaison for the company's response to potential emergencies. Senators fail to confirm Scott appointees

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Rick Scott’s failure to fill vacancies on the Florida Supreme Court and other boards that work with the disabled and the blind drew the “fire” of Florida’s citizens. The Senate confirmed four of the 14 members of the board that works with the disabled and the blind as citizens on Tuesday.

Some of those who were not confirmed include the heads of the state’s prisons and the Department of Corrections, who works with the disabled and the blind as citizens on Florida’s electric chair.

Federal Reserve: Most banks pass stress tests

The Federal Reserve announced that most banks passed its stress tests, allowing them to increase dividends and buy back their own shares. The stress tests were designed to ensure banks have enough capital to weather a financial crisis. The Fed's stress tests simulate a severe economic downturn, including high unemployment and falling asset prices, to assess banks' ability to continue lending and operate under such conditions.

I love Florida's scandals. The state has so many scandals that they're wonderfully busy from day to day. State Rep. Richard Steinberg's "Smokey mama" bills are just one example. All of today's "leaders" are deeply culpable in making a fool of our state.

Here in the Middle Earl, corruption and bad behavior are so rampant that wrongdoing must clearly be visible to ensure that even a warrant is not given. And senate or newspaper is willing or able to ferret it out and report it.

Proposing a "war reverted" omnibus is so expensive and no one will notice.

It’s been business as usual since The National Commission on Fiscal Re- sponsibility and Reform, better known as the Simpson-Bowles commis- sion, voted on Dec. 2, 2010, 11-7 in favor of a report calling for $4 trillion in deficit reductions. The re- port needed a supermajori- ty of 14 votes to pass, so it was never an official document.

The frightening thing is the $4 trillion is not a maximum figure. It’s the minimum needed to re- duce the deficit in order to stabilize the debt. Without that reduction, the debt will continue to explode until 2023, where we’ll be paying $1 trillion a year a year sooner.

The commission was working the idea of a 3%-ration, which is a 25%-tax increase, but she the de- mocrats would not give an inch on their entitlement programs since they use them to buy votes and win elections. The Republic- cans realize that you can’t fix it with just tax in- creases because you would have to raise the highest marginal rate to 70 per- cent, and that would give the capital gains rate to 80 percent, and the capital gains growth is impossible at those rates. All you will hear is Ron Paul’s fa- mous wailing about real American companies and jobs. Starting in 2001, the number of people earning less than $20,000, which America has increased eightfold. It’s not just our $16.8 trillion national debt. We are on the hook for $4 trillion of future expenses for future Social Security pay- ments, defense and military retirements, and other Federal pay- ments. Of course that’s be- cause our ability to fund as we will eventually have to default on our debt like Greece and several other sovereign countries of Europe are getting ready to do. I know of another solu- tion: as do Obama, Gei- ther, and Bernanke. Denver the dollar by hyper Inflation and pay it off with worthless dollars. The end result will be the same as default, home- lessness, starvation, and riots, just more controll- able. We cannot afford business as usual any longer. We need real change.

At the national prayer breakfast, President Obama held a crowd, “We cannot leave our values at the door.”

How ironic, because this administration is ordering the churches to do exactly what Obama proscribes the Catholic Church does. The Obama administra- tion is taking over all health-care provisions and abortion in his health-care care plan. This is not a response to the crisis. Both parties are taking America down. I know of another solution: call the church to do exactly what the church is doing. The mandate requires the Catholic Church to accommodate the religious convictions of all faith-based organiza- tions, Catholic and non-Catholic. No more war
I would like to know why our country can’t find gas or oil when it is in almost every state. Instead they are taking us down. We have enough prob- lems with the economy without having to worry about gas and oil. Washington has their hand in everything. So why not help the people in this country?

The oil and gas problem has gotten out of control because of our government. Another war? No way! Enough is enough! If these people want to kill each other then let them. We should be and not by sell- ing America down the tubes! When we can get our hands on our gas and oil we can help others.

At the national prayer breakfast, President Obama told a crowd, “We can’t leave our values at the door.” It would be nice if he would do the same. WASHINGTON — In the middle of Sunshine Week, when news or- ganizations and advocacy groups promote government transparency, the Obama administration urged Congress on Tuesday to keep secret new emails of information even under the Freedom of In- formation Act.

A few miles away, the White House organized a conference call with reporters to preview an announcement by the Department of Justice, saying it was an important China trade issue but declining to be named by name. The officials were U.S. Trade Representative Ron Kirk and the deputy national secu- rity adviser for international econ- omics, Michael Froman.

Obama has promised that this ad- ministration will be the most trans- parent in American history. But events on Tuesday, while un- concealed, illustrate that old habits harden.

On Capitol Hill, the director of the Justice Department’s office of information policy, Melanie Anne Postig Paul, told senators she needs to protect against public disclosure of prod- ucts and services of the nation’s cybercomputer networks, indu- stry officials said.

Businesses have sought a new law for at least 10 years.

Postig told the Senate Judiciary Committee that a Supreme Court ruling in March 2011 removed an exception the lower court and left federal agencies unable to protect secrets about cybercrimes and critical infrastructures, even though the Justice Department since then has recommended at least three other ways under current law to jus- tify withholding such information.

The case involved a retired cen- tral intelligence, Glen Blumir, who sought in 2009 to learn more about the tips in the Justice Department’s guide- line that the Navy’s nearby island landfill fa- mously known as the “world’s dirtiest”.

Blumir said he wanted to know whether his family and neigh- bors were exposed to potentially toxic chemical for- eign service or confidential deci- sion-making in certain areas.

CRISTAL RIVER — The Pirates were down 10-9 with four outs remaining in the top of the seventh inning Tuesday when Dwayne Wade of Panama City scored two runs in a two-out, two-run rally to win the game and give Bradenton High School its second straight Class 3A state championship. Wade, a pitcher for the Pirates, drove in the winning run on a single to right center field with Mitchell Hampton on base. Wade, who had a hitless inning in relief at the start of the inning, was able to get a leadoff hitter on base with a bunt a little too close to the plate. "He's a great player, he's a great kid," said Pirates head coach Bobby Stack of Wade. "He came up and made a couple of big plays. He made a great catch on a fly ball in the second inning. That seemed like a pretty good baseball team with some good players," Pi rates coach Bobby Stack said afterward. "We scratched out some runs early and then our half kill came along and gave everybody a more comfortable feeling, as opposed to being in a 2-2 ballgame in the seventh inning," said Stack. "Our plate approaches were a little more relaxed, a little more spot-type pitcher I think we all got comfortable after seeing a guy hold us in on the 3-1 start." After leaving the mound, Humphries filled in for De veo in center field, but struggled. Humphries has hit third in the order and pitched in relief in the short game. He discussed his re- sistance, having to adjust on the mound as well as his team’s ability to adjust to the 1 p.m. start. "I was a little uncomfortable in the first inning, and I kind of settled in," he said. "It was hard at first adjusting to the day game, but we were able to see the ball pretty well."

Tampa Bay beats Boston 6-1

TAMPA — Steven Souza Jr. scored twice to reach 50 goals for the spring and his three RBIs helped the Tampa Bay Rays rout the Boston Red Sox 6-1 in the Grapefruit League’s final game Thursday. Souza, who scored on a bases-loaded double by Jesus Sucre to start the third, doubled in the fifth for his 50th hit of the spring. "It’s nice to get to 50 goals," Souza said. "I can’t complain about it." The Rays scored nine times in the first three innings, five runs in the third and four in the fifth. The only hit the former Diamondbacks ace allowed was a two-run home run by Boston third baseman Pablo Sandoval in the fifth. "It was a day I needed," Wacha said. "I’m happy to get it out of the way. It was a good game for me to start the season." The Rays won 2, 2-1 and were leading 8-1 entering the ninth inning when the Rays scored three runs, the third on a bases-loaded walk to Logan Forsythe. Boston’s only runs came on an eighth-inning solo home run by Xander Bogaerts. "I didn’t have a lot of command," Wacha said. "I was trying to attack the plate. I made some mistakes, but it was a good game for me to start the season." The Rays scored nine times in the first three innings, five runs in the third and four in the fifth. Garth, Facinelli split after 11 years

Garth, Facinelli split after 11 years

LOS ANGELES — Jen- nifer Garth and Peter Facinelli, who met on the set of the TV series “90210,” are calling it quits.

The couple’s representative, David Feldman, said they are “amicably concluding their marriage.” He declined to comment any further.

Garth, 38, was a founding member of the 1990s rock group “Fifteen,” which released nine albums over a span of 16 years.

Facinelli is a co-star in the show “90210” and a former cast member of the show’s spinoff, “90210: The Valley.” He is also known for his role in the 2008 film “The Twilight Saga: New Moon.”

Garth was a member of the band “98 Degrees” and has released several solo albums over the years.

The couple’s split comes after nearly 11 years of being married. They have been together for over 15 years.

Cherry struck her when she was pregnant, defense attorney Adam Levin said Wednesday. He told jurors that Cherry hit her client in the face and then struck her again.

The messageonian had tried to contact his former partner, he said, but she had refused to meet with him. He also said that he had tried to contact her through friends and family members but had been denied.

The couple’s split comes after a series of public disputes and legal matters, including a custody battle.

Garth had been involved in several legal matters, including a custody battle with a former boyfriend and a lawsuit with a former bandmate.

Some of the challenges she faced included: being a single mother, dealing with the pressures of fame, and managing her career.

In 2008, she released her debut album, “Journeyman,” which included a song about her father’s addiction.

She said she was “grateful for all the support and love I have received” during this time.

She also thanked her friends and family for their support.

The couple announced their separation in a statement, saying “we continue to love and respect each other as friends and family.” They also thanked their fans for their support.

MIAMI — When Lauren entered foster care at age 16, she was afraid to attend the court hearings that were held for her biological family. She was wary of the judge and struggled to navigate the complex legal system of the dependency court on top of adjusting to life in a group home.

But Lauren’s attorney, a colleague of her foster parents, approached her to attend, convincing her of the importance of attending the judge to hear about Lauren’s own experiences in her own words.

Having legal help like that is uncommon for the nation’s more than 400,000 foster children. Massachusetts, Connecticut and more than a dozen other states rely on a small cadre of judges who have appointed attorneys, but compliance is spotty because of shrinking budgets. And Florida has a pilot program that advocates say are pushing other states to follow.

“When we set up a system in Massachusetts, we found to our surprise the most likely to recidivate — young people who are in foster care. The more these kids are denied this most basic right every day,” said attorney Lisa Laubacher, associate director for the Civic Research Group Children’s Rights.

Lauren was appointed an attorney, a few years ago. After a federal court judge ruled — in response to a lawsuit — that foster children in two metropolitan Atlanta counties, DeKalb and Fulton, should be represented. It’s a ruling that advocates are looking to promote for American Bar Association-endorsed national campaign for foster children.

When Hill decided to start the restaurant, it was among the first of its kind in North Texas, she said. But it was a logical next step for a program designed to give students practical skills. They’ll need to go on to cooking schools or jobs in the food service industry.

“This gives them real restaurant experience with having to go to work,” Hill said.
high-tech tools in the classroom is important to student development.

What this exercise is about is exposing the kids to cultures of other areas around the world,” he said. "It’s trying to immerse them for a world that we’re not part of. It’s trying to get them to think like in years to come. It’s really important to just put them in a different place where they can be aware of the things around them. And it’s important to their success in the future. The technology we have today makes the world a much smaller place than when we were young."

Through Swiatek’s professional learning network established through Twitter, he said he assisted the teacher to get the class in touch with scholars all over the world through Skype.

"She had the idea of a Skype field trip so the kids could learn from them," he said. "And that’s what has brought us here today." Some of the people the students spoke with were from Brazil, Costa Rica, Sweden, China, Connecticut, and Saskatchewan, Canada.

Laura Manas, who is in her third year as principal at the school, said technology is a way to broaden her teachers’ and ultimately her students’ horizons.

"This technology gives the teacher the ability to reach out to the rest of the world," she said. "And gives our teachers the ability to learn from other teachers. And our students are certainly comfortable with it." Manas said the Citrus County School District supports the use of technology in the classroom.

"He believes it will carry the learning for children. This is something that should be happening all the time across the county and across the state," said Swiatek.
