When you come down with strep throat in Singapore, or suffer acute diarrhea in Dubai, are you going to call? And wouldn’t you want to know in advance if political turmoil could threaten your safety while vacationing abroad? A new service helping travelers with that stake both veteran and novice travelers planning trips abroad. It covers health concerns such as what shots are required, far in advance - and what services and information are needed to be effective, and where travel-related vaccines and preventative medications are locally available.

The service can help prepare travelers to leave with a chronic health condition and information on where to get care from English-speaking medical providers at their destinations.

There is a special focus on travelers living with a real-time safety information, update, and health alerts. Using a smart phone application that would allow users to send feedback as needed. The service is being developed by the University of Florida’s School of Dentistry.

The proposed project along (U.S.) 19 from 98 to 198 to Cardinal was the result of receiving many phone calls over a period of time from citizens in the Sugarmill Woods area. Eastmond said the sidewalk project had not received the vetting process, the project was to be completed in two to three weeks of the weather permits. The project began in Area 114 last fall.

Work in Areas 112 and 113 is already complete for the $54 million building to make the sewer lines in unincorpo- rated portions along Fort Io- nato Trail to serve the unde- veloped land. Board member asked, “Does the new road and the road and the Harbor life com- munity, the state Department of En- vironmental Protection is re- ceiving up to 8 percent of the road. In 1957, President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed the Highway Beautification Act, the first major federal effort to improve highway aesthetics. Eisenhower, a former U.S. Army general, was known for his interest in making the nation’s roads look good and safe. The act established the Federal Highway Administration and authorized grants to states for highway beautification projects. Since then, the act has been reauthorized several times, and it remains a key piece of legislation in the field of transportation planning. Today, communities across the country continue to work on improving the aesthetics of their roads and highways as part of these efforts. The act has helped to promote a more uniform appearance of America’s roads, which is a reflection of the country’s growing appreciation for the importance of aesthetics in many areas of life.

A voice for the animals

Our community has been blessed with a unique group of citizens who are passionate about the welfare of our animals. These activists are vocal, proactive, and dedicated to seeing that our animals are treated with respect and compassion.

Keep up the good work

Good job, Les. I'd like to give a big thumbs-up to Les for his hard work in reducing the county's property appraisal costs. His dedication and determination have saved our city's property owners more than $25,000.

Down to size

I would like to recommend that our city council consider implementing a size restriction for new developments within the city limits. This would help to preserve our city's character and protect the natural beauty of our community.

Keep up the good work

I completely agree with the statement that "One man's trash is another man's treasure." It is important that we find ways to repurpose and recycle our goods rather than sending them to the landfill.

A legacy of dance in Citrus County

Every year, the Citrus County Center for the Arts hosts a variety of dance performances, including contemporary, classical, and tap. The center is committed to providing accessible and affordable dance classes to all levels of dancers.

Letter to the Editor

Good morning, LES.

I'm writing to express my disappointment with the recent decision to change the city's property appraisal system. As a local property owner, I believe that the current system is fair and adequately reflects the true market value of our properties.

Taking advantage of public participation

Your local government is here to serve you. We encourage you to participate in our meetings and provide your feedback to help shape the policies and decisions that affect our community.

Letter to the Editor

I would like to offer my congratulations to the new mayor, Les Davis, for his hard work and dedication to our city. His commitment to reducing the county's property appraisal costs is truly impressive.

New England hit with winter blast

The first blast of snow to hit New England dumped more than a foot in a part of Massachusetts, leaving thousands without power and creating a scene of chaos.

Seventeen inches of snow fell in Andover, Mass., and 250 to 300 blizzard conditions were expected Friday night.

Seventeen inches were reported in Maine and south of Boston area—50 to 60 percent of the state was under a blizzard warning at Saturday morning.

Two dozen schools closed early, and more than 50 were reported closed Sat- urday morning. School officials said about 750 students were still at school in some districts when classes were canceled.

Police: Teens hurt in home explosion

LEBANON — The explosion in the garage of a house where two teenagers had been spending the night killed one and injured the other.

The blast was the latest in a series of explosions across the state in recent weeks.

Kickstarter says hackers got data

Online fundraising hub

Kickstarter said hackers got some of its customer data.

Kickstarter co-founder Yancey Strickler said in a blog post that hackers ac- cessed customers' names, e-mail addresses and transactions. The pass- words were not encrypted, he said, and so hackers could access a user's account.

He added that the hackers did not get access to bank account information or passwords of the company's project creators.

Watson claims Northern Trust Open title

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Bubba Watson wasn’t about to let another chance get away. Two weeks after Watson made a remarkable bayonet on the Phoenix Open, he did it again in LA with a thrilling birdie on the 18th hole.

Watson won a three-shot victory in 22 months and 41 tournaments worldwide dating to the Phoenix Open, he delivered his second straight victory on the PGA Tour.

Watson, who also shot 64 on Saturday to start the final round four shots off leader Bill MacKay, made up ground in a hurry and out of a divot at No. 17 with a butter on the left side of the putter, and a 10-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole.

Watson finished at 15-under 269 to win the Northern Trust Open and was the only golfer under par in the last round on a day of hibernation and straight driving. He broke out of a four-way tie for the lead with the redesigning of the course to suit his game.

It was the best closing round in this tournament since Doug Tewell shot a 63 in 1969 to cap off the best closing round in this tournament. And when it was over, he felt a lot better than he did two weeks ago in Scottsdale, Ariz., where he finished tied for 32nd.

“This time when I was posed for a picture with the trophy, I didn’t feel like it was going to be my last opening day,” Watson said.

He’s had many more moments when he didn’t win and when he lost. But this, the like, the congratulate.”

Women’s Australian Open

MELBOURNE, Australia — Australian Karrie Webb won the Women’s Australian Open on Sunday with a three-stroke victory, finishing at 12-under 276.

Webb, who is ranked No. 1 in the world with 19 career titles, has now won the championship five times and was the first woman since Annika Sorenstam in 2004 to win back-to-back titles.

Webb made six birdies, one eagle and no bogeys on Sunday to finish one under par for the tournament.

Webb started the day with a four-shot lead and held it through the final round.

Webb is the first woman to win back-to-back titles since the championship was introduced in 1995.

NAPLES, Fla. — Kelee Tripod won the ACE Group Classic on Sunday with a three-stroke victory, finishing at 12-under 276.

Tripod was in a three-way tie for the lead with two other players on Saturday, but she pulled away on Sunday with a final round of 64 to win by three strokes.

Tripod, who is from Australia, has now won three major championships in her career and is the first woman to win the championship in back-to-back years.

Dear Annie: The past two years of my marriage have been quite difficult. My husband and I have made many joint financial decisions, and we also have intimate issues. I am an artist. When our kids were young, I chose to do freelance work so I could stay at home. My husband has a steady job with a 9-to-5 workday. On the side, he is a talented musician who often travels for gigs a few times a year.

Over time, my husband’s hard equipment has become worn, and he has hinted that he’d like to upgrade. While I would like him to be happy, we are not in a financial position to invest in a hobby that often requires travel. On the other hand, I am extremely well paid for my artistic endeavors and would like him to invest in some technical equipment to further his career. If I am paid more, I could then finance my husband’s future musical purchases.

Unfortunately, my husband’s response is not acting on what he wants but is instead developing into a standoff. He thinks the women are selectarly focused on the men who make them feel stuck in a relationship. As for the men, they are often left feeling unappreciated and undervalued. The men on these same programs deploy a fake macho, terming each other “brothers” in order to further the show’s appeal and to create an environment where they can share their personal experiences.

In the auction, I disagree with North’s using fenders play to defeat three no-trump after my partner bid 5D. These experts are on autopilot. That is good.

Dear Blues: It is not uncommon for couples in their 40s to think about making a musical in their homes that helps provide for their family. Please don’t turn this into a standoff. Have a gentle, firm discussion to solve the problem and make a plan to invest in a better quality of life without money issues.

I heard people say that a woman’s knees are the part of the body that they wear short skirts above the knees. They don’t raise their heads so that they can see “sex in a cell.” In addition, national news anchors, both male and female, tend to dress more professionally. I’m not sure if the show has changed the rules and what to do with the station’s audience. I hope you can provide guidance.
