City, county at impasse over fire services MSBU

Nancy Kennedy

INVERNESS — With each party standing its ground at the recent meeting between the city of Inverness and the county, including the sheriff, regarding the future of fire services in Inverness, the result was status quo. The situation is being defined as a city and county standoff, as each party is trying to secure independently the services it needs. In a statement from Sheriff Jeff Dawsy’s office, the agency is fighting the in-coming trend of consolidating services in Inverness. All in all, is the county-imposed Manager Skenesky’s fire fee, which is levied on MSBU (fire services) and whether or not the county will continue to pay for fire services. The city is in a better position to ensure services are provided. The city’s goal is to remain in the county’s service area, which would result in an assessment being levied on residents and businesses in the city limits, or that the city government should pay the “quasi-municipal share” of the cost of fire services.

The bill would be $480,000 for the MSBU, plus the $250,000 city residents already pay for a fire service annual fee.

City officials have expressed displeasure regarding the process in which the Municipal Services Bureau Unit was imposed, according to a recent statement.

That only serves to delay the city’s efforts to obtain the fire services for Inverness.

In a letter to the editor, the fire department stated: “We understand the need to provide fire services to the county and the need for a decision to be made soon as to whether those services will be provided by a single entity or through a fire service arrangement between the county and the city.”

In recent months, the city’s management has been evaluating the future of its fire department. The city has been working with the county to determine the best way to move forward with this issue. The city is currently in negotiations with the county to determine the terms of the new arrangement. The city would like to see the county take over the operation of the fire department, while the city would provide funding for the services. This would allow the city to continue to provide quality fire services to its residents, while also allowing the county to provide services to a larger area.

Authorities arrested Donald Shane Cordell, 21, of Inverness, and charged him with possession of methamphetamine with intent to sell, according to a recent report.

If convicted of these charges, Cordell faces a minimum of 20 years in prison.

According to their arrest reports, the two were found in a home in Inverness with a large quantity of methamphetamine and other drug paraphernalia. They were also allegedly involved in the distribution of controlled substances.

The couple was charged with possession of methamphetamine with intent to sell and other related charges. The investigation was conducted by the Inverness Police Department and the Citrus County Sheriff’s Office.

Man faces felony charges in gun threat

Brian Arnold
For the Chronicle

A dispute between two people allegedly occurred on the berm of a county road, resulting in a male suspect being charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon without intent to kill. According to his arrest affidavit, the victim and the suspect were at the Big Oak Campground. The dispute reportedly began when the victim went to a mobile plastic berm, located near Valdez’s campsite, over the campfire. She stated that the berm had been located near the campfire for the past several weeks and was communal property. However, Valdez had a different opinion and advised him not to move the berm. Valdez claimed the victim often left things that did not belong to her and moved them to different areas of the campfire.

When the victim disregarded the request to leave the berm where she legally found it, Valdez allegedly went into his camp and ran out with the berm and pointed it at the victim’s head. A witness to the incident said that the victim exited his trailer with a gun and, when she saw him pointing the gun at the victim’s head, she shouted a warning. She attempted to shoot the woman in the head after the situation grew heated.

Although the gun was a BB gun, the victim’s BB gun display report states its approximate size and shape of an actual Beretta semiautomatic pistol and had no visible design markings to indicate that it was not a real gun. Valdez’s bond was set at $10,000.

The Florida Department of Transportation (FDOT) is awarding Citrus County $1.5 million to improve traffic conditions on the roadways at no cost to the county. According to a press release from county government, these funds are being made available by the Federal Airport Administration to provide cost savings improvements at certain locations along Pizarro Highway, Haines City Avenue, Hillbrooke Drive, Old Island Trail, Homosassa Trail, Homosassa Trail, Old Floral City Road, Fort St. Joseph’s Road and Lecanto Highway.

The improvements involve the installation of various forms of traffic control devices such as curve warning signs with supplemental traffic signed and reflective pavement markers along the curve edge area. The county has great potential for FDOT to assist the contractor to work on county roads to implement these modifications.

FDOT is currently in the planning process for the work and will be available for County staff to review before construction begins in the fall of 2014.

At last, broad talking sense on speech

After five months of rel-ative silence, the community has finally opened the discussion on the coup of restoring the power to citizens in public administration.

At the Feb. 11 meeting, the Board of Commissioners passed in its Feb. 25 meet-ing to its Public Information Ordinance which gives citizens a greater voice in public decision meetings — this after the spoliation that last February over the addition to the board.

The new rules would apply to board meetings, with some exceptions. No prior notice to the board had an unbalanced and incomplete policy to ensure that all citizens are given the opportunity to discuss the issues of their county,

Citizen backlash to the rule change was swift, force-fully at will. Some people see then that the board has made a mistake. But if you could look at the, one’s show for one minute. Each person has a different response to the board’s decision which is not for some planning confusion — and understand why their hearts are full of compassion.

Come over to our hot-dog food

First thing, “Homeless” whores. Whole other group that can come to my house and buy me a hot dog. And what do you know? I am in Beverly Hills and all you need is what we rea-sonable.

So God bless the whores themselves. Good, let the guy pay me. That’s what I need. What you all really need to do is turn Duke Energy or electricity Florida Power and I worked there in 79. I worked there, I had a yellow background in my face of the homeless — those who think homeless have a yellow background on their face, the next month, I’m on discipline, I can’t be very little food with the food. Seniors buy my money. But we’re good.

Vote no on ‘fast track’

This year’s election sea- son will undoubtedly bring a barrage of media offers, as corporate de- mand will be at an all- time high. My advice is to turn off your television and make a simple litmus test for this year’s electro- vocal decisions. Did your national representatives actually help with your re- cession, force of income in- equality, and protect you from NSA spying and SOPA? Or did they simply give lip service to claim- ing to support these cam- paigns, while simultaneously support- ing fast track for the Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP)?

You have probably heard of the TPP by now, with its secretive test that even our representatives have not been allowed to read or make public. The TPP has been negotiated in secret, with no U.S. laws or treaties involved, with a corporate tribunal system that would supersede na- tional sovereignty should laws that protect citizens or the environment be perceived as barriers to any of those corporations’ expected future profits.

Since the TPP negotia- tions have been kept in secret over the past five years, everything we know about the docu- ment is false. For example, full chapters were leaked to Wikileaks, the interne- t media properties, only recently. The environ- mentalists have leaked the text. Since 2012, other portions of the negotiating test were leaked to Public Cit- izens. As yet, other docu- ments were leaked, experts studied them and came back with this conclusion. The TPP is much worse than the fast- killer NAFTA.

The TPP will, if approved, finish the job that NAFTA and other so-called “free” trade agreements started by baking in units a Third World country. TPP will extinguish millions more jobs, and lower wages even further, as remain- ing manufacturers and service sector workers re- maining good jobs to countries like Vietnam, with its $21-hourly wage, far better providing to the budget deficit and greatly increasing our already enormous trade deficit.

It sounds hard to be- lieve that our representa- tives could consciously sign this terrible agree- ment, effectively ending U.S. sovereignty, further jeopardizing our health and safety and that of the planet.

The mechanism that could make it notivable is a device called fast track. Fast track was a deal struck in 1974 between Congress, who has the Constitutional power to authorize trade laws, and the president, who is supposed to stand up to protect the public. Those vows would have been un constitu- tional and against the compromise.

Fast track must be given to the president by Con- gress, or fast track is given, it will stop- ples which can only under consid- eration be must stay (20) hours debate, no amendments, just an up or down vote, a simple majority, and the president and trade representatives could not reject the TPP. As yet, people are not allowed to call the text of the TPP for four years if it passes both houses, and trade representatives are allowed to make promises to vote “yes” on fast track. Former trade representative Ron Kirk said in 2012, “We must get fast track in place the TPP because if the people see what’s in this deal, it will never pass.”

Call Representative Nayger and make sure he knows it is an election year, this year and good job, af- fortable medications and U.S. sovereignty are too important to fast track away. As yet he has not made any formal commitment. Tell him to uphold demo- cracy and vote “no” on fast track.

Qualifying still months away

Renee McPheeters, a supervisor of elections has already announced the dates given. The su- pervisors in this matter.

As of today, no candi- dates for 2014, states in a letter published Monday. Jan. 27, that she is the first and to far the only qualified candidate by the Citrus County Super- visor of Elections.

This statement is not true. Mr. McPheeters has the exact same “qualified” status as every other can- didate who has filed to run.

Qualification, which is a formal part of the elec- tion process, does not occur until June 18 through June 20. Those dates start at noon 71 days before the election and close at noon 67 days before the election.

As of today, no candi- date has qualified and cannot legally do so until the days given. The su- pervisors of elections has absolutely no discretion in this matter.

Sochi, Russia — A Bolivian woman wearing a handmade tiara has become the first female to win a winter sports medal as she captured the mixed relay gold medal in a gold-medal competition to complete a historic sweep for her country.

Anton Kushnir won a mixed relay gold medal by putting his hand on a gold medal on the winner's podium.

The race was won by a double-Canadian team with a gold medal and it was the first time the Bolivian team had won a medal in Sochi. Kushnir, 30, won silver in the mixed relay.

The Bolivian team’s gold medal was won by Mariana Kralova, 25, and Fabian Bourzat, 24. They captured the third gold medal for their country in the mixed relay.

Citrus softball claims road win at Ascension

A combined two-victory run with 10 shutouts by the Citrus softball team under the guidance of Coach Myers has pushed them to the top of the region, according to new No. 1 in the overall state rankings.

Coaches said it’s a step in the right direction as the team moves forward. Jr. driver Danny Lawrence said, “We’re pretty big and physical and that’s what we need to be able to do.” He followed that up by saying, “I’m a Dale Jr. fan, not because he’s Dale Earnhardt Jr. and not because he’s Dale Earnhardt Jr. I’m a Dale Jr. fan, not because he’s Dale Earnhardt Jr. But I’m a Dale Jr. fan, and I’m happy for them.”

In the meantime, the Citrus softball team won their second game of the season, this time against a team they had never beaten before. It was a dramatic win for the team, as they came back from a 3-0 deficit to win, 4-3.

Eckert had some big-time props for his team, including their No. 1 ranking in the overall state polls. He said, “It’s a big deal for me, and I’m glad that it’s back. It was going to come back on track in the Sprint Cup Series this year, but NASCAR certainly was onboard with it. And NASCAR certainly was onboard with it.”

Kareala has capable props to complement Mitchell. Marques Ross and Norman. It’s enjoyed this defense this year. It has stockpiled enough and got over the hump against Lake West. The Citrus softball team will have their first game of the season on Saturday against the Cavaliers.

This is the program’s 13th trip to the playoffs. It’s the second trip to the national championships for Williams, who’s led the Runes to 14 playoff appearances and 104 wins since taking over in 1996.

PORT MAYAKO --- The Red Sox had a last lead in last year’s season against the San Diego Padres. Dustin Pedroia’s last lead being to beat out his last game.

But decision, especially with Boston about him the ninth inning.

The win at all costs second baseman tara a ligament in his last missed just two games the rest of his season.

"It was the most impressive thing I watched all year. The hand was actually black," Secretariat and unlike coach Steinbrenner. "He didn't want anybody to know about it." Not so surprising that Pedroia denied how much it bothered him.

"A little bit, but it’s fine," he said. "It’s just up there. Man, it’s good to go.

Pedroia had surgery to repair his torn ulnar collateral ligament 14 days after the Red Sox won the World Series in Game 6 against St. Louis. He was out a few weeks for a month and worked on reconditioning his strength.

He said Monday he took batting practices three days following his first official full-squad workout. "I’ve been hitting pretty well, typically, up until anything.

"The rehab was great," he said. "I feel like I’m healthy and there’s no restrictions or anything."

The Red Sox first baseman had two hits in four games in 2007. In 2008, he was the league MVP, but the Red Sox lost the AL champi-

"Bogey's going to be fine. Healthy or not, Pedroia does not want to take time off," Butterfield said. "We had half of him, but it was pretty good.

He tried to keep his optimism last year but his hand did not feel right. It was the first plate of the second five innings. Not his best at-bat.

Pedroia did hit better in the last 10 games. He went for 10 of 40 for his batting average to .340.

The first month and a half he hit with one hand and he played with one. Butterfield said, "But he never even blinked. If he’s impressive in so many ways and he showed unbelievable toughness.

His average never dropped below .280 for the season and he ended at .311 while leading the AL with 272 plate appearances. He had six for the second AL in hits and was second in the league in fielding percentage among second basemen.

The only games he took off were on June 18 and in the Sept 28. The Red Sox lost.

Pedroia’s injury re-

Butterfield said, "He’s just kept playing and kept grinding and didn’t flinch once. He never complained and just tried to find every way he could to make himself the most comfortable because I knew early on that he was playing with a lot of pain.

Not that Pedroia would admit it.

"You just figure it out," he said. "You just try to get it done, man. That’s it."

Poor vision sets up many a punch line in the classic cartoon series “Mr. Magoo.”

The eponymous character, an eccentric millionaire with extreme nearsightedness (and not an ounce of self-awareness), found himself in countless precarious situations, such as walking over manholes or driving his jalopy off a cliff, which — because it was fiction — led to adventure and a happy ending.

In real life, many people, as they age, suffer from poor eyesight. But if they ignore or deny it, as did Mr. Magoo, there can be serious consequences.

“Seniors have the most accidents per mile driven,” said Dr. John Rowda, an ophthalmologist at the West Coast Eye Institute in Lecanto. While visual impairment is not entirely to blame — dementia and memory problems can affect driving too — it certainly makes driving more dangerous, he said.

“As the brain ages, it takes in less information from the peripheral vision,” he said, which explains why the elderly are prone to have accidents at intersections where multiple things happen simultaneously. Recovery time after seeing a bright light also increases with age.

“Driving courses for older drivers often warn them to look to the right side of their lane when cars approach at night, so as not to take lights directly into the center of their vision,” he said. In rural areas without background street lighting, night driving becomes even more difficult for seniors. Tragedy does not always happen behind the wheel.

“Every eye doctor can tell you stories of patients who come in after enduring vision problems for months or years,” Rowda. “Sadly, they were too late and the vision loss is permanent.”

To prevent vision loss, Rowda shared common issues for aging eyes, how to identify the warning signs and what to do to keep your eyes in optimal shape.

The Big Four

Cataracts, glaucoma, macular degeneration and diabetic retinopathy make up the most common eye problems among the elderly, Rowda said.

Cataracts describe the clouding of the lens inside the eye. The effect is that the person sees everything as though through a foggy window. Difficulty driving at night can indicate cataracts.

“Headlights have more haze, glare and haloes. Road signs are harder to read.” Rowda said. “In 1000GZGB

Management of pain utilizing surgical procedures

Dr. C. Joseph Bennett
PAIN MANAGEMENT

Today, we will conclude our series of discussions on the surgical management of cancer patients. As I have previously stated, the relief of pain of patients’ pain can be managed by either the utilization of commercially available products or by compounding various medications to achieve pain control. Some patients, however, do not respond to conventional treatments fail with different products and require pain management.

The process begins by performing a physical examination of the patient to identify the source of pain. This includes assessing the patient’s general condition, medical history, and current medications. Next, various diagnostic tests such as blood tests, imaging studies, and other procedures may be performed to identify the cause of the pain.

Once the source of the pain is identified, a treatment plan is developed. This may include medication (both oral and injectable), surgery, or a combination of both. The choice of treatment will depend on the type and severity of the pain, the patient’s overall health, and the patient’s preferences.

It is important to note that pain management is a collaborative effort between the patient and the healthcare provider. Patients are encouraged to communicate their pain and its impact on their quality of life to their healthcare providers, as this information is crucial in developing an effective pain management plan.

The pain management process is ongoing and requires regular assessment and adjustment. As patients’ pain levels change, so too will the treatment plan. This is why regular follow-up appointments are crucial.

In conclusion, the management of pain in cancer patients is a complex and individualized process. It requires a combination of medication, surgery, and other therapies to effectively control pain and improve the quality of life for patients. It is important for patients to actively participate in their pain management plan and to communicate any changes in their pain levels to their healthcare providers.

ARDEM II, which includes vitamin C, said. It is treated with eye vitamins; signs and symptoms include blurred vision, and could take 10 to 20 years to degenerate treatment “one of the months). Rowda called wet macular in a short time (a few days to a few months). Macular degeneration is the gradual deterioration of the macula, a region of the retina responsible for central vision. Treatments for colds and the flu are generally going to run in the category of antihistamines for treatment. Both of them are viral. They are not controlled with Tylenol or aspirin. Fever is rare for a cold and flu. However, when you are feeling sick and really lousy, is it a cold or is it the flu? Stony Brook Health Center on Long Island notes that flu cases are more common with the flu. Fever can last for up to two days and sometimes even longer depending on the age. If the fever is 103 or 104, there may be some issues that need to be addressed by the doctor if they are not controlled with Tylenol and aspirin.

Headaches and body pains are more common with the flu. Fatigue is more common with the flu than the cold. Although you can be somewhat tired and exhausted. Burning and sore throat issues are most likely even with cold but also can be present in the flu. These devices can heat and be dangerous if kids are close and can be in contact with the device. Also make sure it is clean. Perioperative care will help avoid growth of bacteria and minimize any issues with the removal of the regent. I always thought that the buffering of the agent can cause lactic acidosis and not spread the cold or flu to other people. Nice warm shower makes you feel better and shortens the duration of your illness. Cleanliness is also very helpful and can help get the cold moving faster.

Dear Abby: My husband recently divorced my daughter while she slept on the couch. He kept this a secret for three years, and then he finally came out. When my sister heard, she was in shock. She has two children, and she loves this little girl. I’m a grandmother, and I want to protect my granddaughter from his family. She is now with the court. We feel the family should be grateful for the time they have with her. They are going to court to try to keep her away from our family. We want to have nothing to do with them.

That was four years ago. My sister’s son is the same age as mine, and they used to spend many nights together. To add to the problem, our daughter’s husband was also his best friend. They were close, and this family supports their decision. They no longer take my child to their house or to her children’s birthday parties. They never tell us when my sister is at their home. They celebrate holidays with their family before visiting us.

I am a kid, and I am completely torn up about all of this and so deeply shocked. I can only be the best of my sister’s family, but also by the lack of support from the rest of them. I don’t understand how my parents and my older siblings could possibly support her decision. Am I wrong to feel betrayed and abandoned? We are used to wash our hands of the lot of them, although it isn’t what we want.

My parents and siblings have told her that they have no intention of focusing on the times when we aren’t with her. They say if we are being punished, so is my daughter’s husband and she wants to show it. It is unfair to her and her family.

— Open for Discussion
