Teen stabs 22 at school

Five students critical after rampage in suburban Pittsburgh

Associated Press

MURHEST, Pa. — Failing away with two kitchen knives, a 16-year-old boy brought a “blind expression” stabbing and stabbed 21 students and a security guard inside the crowded halls of his suburban Pittsburgh high school Wednesday before an assistant principal tackled him.

At least five students were critically wounded, including a boy whose liver was pierced by a knife that narrowly missed his heart and aorta, police said. One student was in deep abdominal puncture wounds.

The rampage — which came after decades in which U.S. schools planned much of their emergency planning toward mass shooting, not stabbing — set off a screaming stampede, left blood on the floor and walls, and brought teachers rushing to help the victims.

Police said little light on the motive.

The suspect, Alex Hribal, was taken into custody and treated for a self-inflicted wound in his arm before an assistant principal tackled him.

Hribal brought into court in shackles and a hospital gown and charged with 21 counts of attempted murder and one count of terrorism.

Police shed little light on the motive. They said they planned much of their emergency planning toward mass shootings, not stabbing.

INVERNESS — Acting County Attorney Kerry Parsons can run on the word “acting” from her ticket.

The Citrus County Board of County Commissioners (BCC) Tuesday by a 4-1 vote decided to appoint Parsons temporarily to the position, effective immediately. Parsons also was appointed county attorney.

Commissioner Rebecca Bayes, who sponsored the move to appoint Parsons at the previous BCC’s meeting, had a list of reasons.

The board did not start the legal source to this board, but also was in all of its departments, all of the BCC’s laws, the supervisor of elections and animal control.

With Nabors, Giblin and Nickerson (N&N), Parsons has prepared the legal employee handbook, written a number of ordinances and worked on the Parents currently unable to afford before- and after-school care for their children will be able to do so next school year. Citrus County School Board members voted 5-0 Tuesday to award the bid of before- and after-school care services to the YMCA of this luncheon.

The Citrus County School District partnered with the Withlaochee Technical Institute for these services as a training program for adult certification. However, this program has since been discontinued at the institution.

Therefore, the Citrus County School District published a formal bid process last winter for applicants to fill the child care needed at local elementary schools, according to School Board Chairman Thomas Kennedy.

“We are the largest before- and after-school care provider in the nation,” said Joanna Cates, executive director of the YMCA of the Suncoast. “We supply care to about 3,500 youths at 54 child care sites already. We also teach academic skills and character development in a fun and safe atmosphere.

We have had a long history of providing child care and we are happy to bring that to Citrus County.

Before the school board met last week, the YMCA has been encouraged to apply for positions within the YMCA, and within the school district. The YMCA program is a collaboration between the YMCA and the Florida Department of Education. It is a program that focuses on providing opportunities for children and families to be involved in organized activities within the Hillsborough Elementary School.

The YMCA program is supported by the Hillsborough County School Board and the Hillsborough County School District. The program is designed to provide a safe and fun environment for children and families to participate in organized activities, while also providing opportunities for children and families to develop new skills and build positive relationships. The YMCA program is open to all children and families, regardless of their income or background.

The YMCA program is designed to be inclusive, providing opportunities for children and families from all walks of life to participate in organized activities. The program is designed to be flexible, offering a variety of activities and programs to meet the needs of children and families. The program is designed to be fun, providing opportunities for children and families to enjoy themselves and build positive relationships. Fed policy fuels stock growth

NEW YORK — Once again, it was the Federal Reserve’s turn to move. The central bank is expected to start raising interest rates, a move that many investors fear could stifle the already tepid stock market. But the Fed is not expected to make a move until the fourth quarter of the year.

Morgan Stanley said Friday that the Fed will raise rates at a slower pace than expected, which could help the stock market to continue to perform well. The bank said the economic data points to a strong labor market and inflation that is expected to be moderate.

Some analysts believe that the Fed will raise rates in September, while others expect it to wait until the fourth quarter. The central bank has been under pressure to raise rates in order to combat rising inflation, but it has also been trying to keep interest rates low to support the economy.

The stock market has been volatile in recent weeks, with investors concerned about the potential for higher rates. The S&P 500 has fallen more than 10% from its peak earlier this year, but has since recovered some of those losses.

Some analysts believe that the Fed’s move to raise rates could have a positive impact on the economy. A strong economy could help to boost consumer spending and investment, which could in turn lead to higher corporate profits.

However, others are concerned that raising rates too quickly could lead to a slowdown in economic growth. The central bank is expected to keep a close eye on the economy, and will likely adjust its rate decisions as needed.

In the meantime, investors will be watching closely to see how the Fed’s decision impacts the stock market. The market has been volatile in recent weeks, and investors will be looking to see how the central bank’s move to raise rates affects the economic outlook.

The S&P 500 ended the day down slightly, but the Dow Jones Industrial Average and the Nasdaq Composite both posted gains. The S&P 500 finished the day down 0.1%, while the Dow Jones posted a gain of 0.2%.

The budget sequester badly affects public services. But now, we’re hearing it will be closed. Since the federal foot is back on the accelerator A U.S. Department of the Interior official reports, “We’re out of money.” At risk are the public’s access to the Three Sisters, Wildwood, and the upgraded Cutler Spur road bridge. Three Sisters Springs is certainly not the way to do the job. It takes an army of workers, business executives, and Oklahomans to make our road work. As a reporter, I attended the construction hearings. It was a wild ride. We should be concerned. The bridge’s completion, in time for the March 19 celebrations, was to be opened. If you were here 12, 15 years ago, you would find out which state reps are responsible for the lack of action. It’s time for a new approach. Commissioners gave us tax reform

Well, the commissioners gave us tax reform. The bridge is closed. We have never had a bridge closed before. Under the state Constitution, we are required to have a bridge. The residents of Three Sisters Springs and Citrus County are being asked to pay for this bridge. We are paying a total of 12 cents a gallon of gasoline to pay for the bridge. Our county commissioners at the time, in their wisdom, raised this rate another 6 cents.

You are mistaken, not knowing the power of God. God accounted for you, and so the idea of your creation did cease creating what that was not a word. — Isaiah 40:28. Have you ever heard that? The everlasting God is a maker of the ends of the earth, not that finis nor weary. — Isaiah 40:28

Spanish mackerel are jumping. They will sometimes rise to aiptasia, a red alga. As soon as the bait is touched, they will hit the bait. You should never use 4/0 to 7/0 sized hooks because you will catch more fish. Spanish mackerel are bigger than average baitfish. The line will stretch and you can’t get them off the line when they hit. Be sure to keep a measuring device nearby. The Spanish mackerel world record is 13 pounds and 10 ounces and was caught in 1999. If you are trying to beat that, visit the International Game Fish Association website at IGFA.org or, for state records, visit MyFWC.com/Fishing, and click on “Saltwater” and “Florida Fishing Records.” Learn more about Spanish mackerel at myfwcfish.com. During three Saturday mornings in April The Crystal River Salt and Power Squadron will present classes on boating and kayaking; charts, knots, radio communications, maps, and navigation. The first Saturday will be for boaters; know your wake, boating for lake and near the mouth of the river. The second will be for kayakers; charts, knots, radio communications, maps, and navigation. Scheduled for the third Saturday will be boating classes for kids. Know the rules; boaters will benefit from this knowledge. For more information, call Steve Treinum at 352-445-7955. Anglers Tim and Keith Chancellor from Iowa display two trout recently caught off Crystal River.

This year, make your Easter ham effortless by ditching the oven and using your slow cooker instead. While most people think about slow cooking for staples like chili and stew, it’s also perfect for center-of-the-plate feasts — like an Easter ham.

Using the slow cooker, you can minimize both prep time and cleanup time, leaving plenty of Distance in the day for church, hunting eggs and enjoying time with your loved ones.

Ham is a tradition for many families this time of year, and because it pairs well with a multitude of ingredients, you can create a unique dish every time.

For a fresh spin on the classic ham, try this Sweet Southern Slow-Cooker Ham recipe from the National Pork Board. Apple cider and bourbon (or vanilla extract, if you prefer) combine to create a rich flavor complemented by the sweetness of brown sugar.

Round out your Easter menu by pairing your ham with classic sides such as oven-roasted carrots, asparagus wrapped in bacon and mashed sweet potatoes.

You can also use leftover ham for flavor-packed recipes like Ham, Apple and Cheddar Crepes, which are ideal for a family-style brunch.

Sweet Southern Slow-Cooker Ham

Yield: 12 servings
Prep time: 10 minutes
Cook time: 4 to 8 hours

1 ham, fully cooked and about 5 1/2 pounds
1 cup apple cider
1/2 cup dark brown sugar
1/3 cup Kentucky bourbon
1/4 cup honey
4 fresh thyme sprigs

Place ham in large slow cooker. Whisk cider with brown sugar, bourbon, honey and thyme. Slowly pour over ham. Scatter thyme sprigs into slow cooker. Slow on high for 4 hours or on low for 8 hours, or until very tender.

Remove ham to rest on cutting board. Pass remaining cooking liquid through a fine mesh sieve into saucepan. Simmer for 10 minutes or until slightly reduced. Serve ham pieces with cooking liquid before arranging on platter. Serve warm or at room temperature.

For a non-alcoholic alternative, replace the bourbon with 1/4 cup water and 1 tablespoon vanilla extract.

Ham, Apple and Cheddar Crepes

Yield: 6 servings
Prep time: 20 minutes
Cook time: 30 minutes

3 cups ham, shredded and shredded
1 3/4 cups 2% milk
1/4 cup unsalted butter, melted
4 large eggs
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1 Granny Smith apple, halved, cored and thinly sliced

Cheese Sauce

1 tablespoon unsalted butter
1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
1 cup 2% milk
2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 cup white cheddar cheese, shredded
2 tablespoons fresh chives, finely chopped

Heat an 8-inch crepe pan or non-stick skillet over medium heat. Coat well with nonstick cooking spray. Pour 1/4 cup batter into pan, swirl to cover bottom of pan. Cook for 1 minute or until edges begin to curl around edges. Carefully flip and cook for an additional 30 seconds on each side. Transfer to plate. Repeat with remaining batter.

Instructions

Pour milk, butter, eggs and salt in blender. Mix until well combined. Add flour. Mix for 15 to 20 seconds or until smooth. Let stand for 10 minutes.

Lay a crepe on clean work surface. Arrange a few slices of apple on quarter of crepe; top with shredded ham. Fold crepe in half to cover filling and fold in half again to create triangular shape. Repeat with remaining ham, apple and crepes, layering cooked crepes between pieces of wax paper to prevent sticking.

Place filled crepes on each plate. Spoon cheese sauce over each crepe and sprinkle with chives.

Serving Suggestions: All the elements of the recipe can be prepared a day in advance and gently warmed before assembling.

Cook on high for 4 hours or on low for 8 hours, or until very tender. Remove ham to rest on cutting board. Pass remaining cooking liquid through the mesh sieve into saucepan. Simmer for 10 minutes or until slightly reduced. Serve ham pieces with cooking liquid before arranging on platter. Serve warm or at room temperature.

For a non-alcoholic alternative, replace the bourbon with 1/4 cup water and 1 tablespoon vanilla extract.

Cooking Tip: Use leftover ham to make Ham, Apple and Cheddar Crepes.

Cocktail expert Adam Drinkwater has seen a boom in the craft cocktail movement and ingredients, and — true to their name — have a bit of story behind them.

“Bitters are as old as the ancient Egyptians,” Drinkwater said. “It’s a drink made with maple bitters.”

Adding bitters to a drink doesn’t have to be complicated. It can be as simple as taking a classic gin and tonic and adding a dash or two of grapefruit bitters to heighten the taste.

“Science says aroma is a sensory tool to tell the bitters truth,” Drinkwater said. “If you can utilize bitters — such as Angostura — as an ingredient only, they’re out there. Some of the brands cardamom, vanilla, cardamom, with chocolate bitters and more intense flavors — such as Angostura. Angostura is the granddaddy of the bitters world, created in Venezuela in the 19th century. The German doctor looking to improve the troops’ digestive health. It’s still made today by House of Angostura and often used for cocktails as well as classic cocktails. Another classic bitter in Feastly’s, which was created by Antoine Amedee Peychaud in New Orleans and is a key ingredient of the Sazerac cocktail. But those are just the start. As founder and proponent of The Boston Shaker, a cocktail tools and ingredients store in Somerville, Mass., Drinkwater has seen a bitters renaissance as the craft cocktail movement has pushed bitters and home enthusiasts to search for quality ingredients and more intense flavors. Some of the bars in the Boston Shaker for P speak Bitters, Bitters, Bitters and Bitters, Old Men. (There’s just something about the word “bitters” that seems to bring out the word play.)

Some bartenders are even making their own bitters by macerating various ingredients in high-proof alcohol, then straining off the bitters. Another trend is barrel-aged bitters to further tease out flavors. If you’re new to bitters, be aware that there are two types. Potable bitters — such as Angostura — are intense and work as an ingredient only. They usually are measured by the drop or dash. Bitters may go back as far as the ancient Egyptians and for much of their history were considered medicinal, says Benjamin Wood, beverage director at Feastly.

Ditto. There even are chocolate bitters and one made from a single-malt scotch. It’s a bitters boom.

Lantheaume has seen a proliferation and regionalization of bitters. “It’s turned into a big college industry. Theinecraft from the consumer seems to be that it’s just essential to any drink. Ten years ago, it was such an afterthought.”

All bitters serve essentially the same purpose — to add flavor and highlight other ingredients, mostly in cocktails, but sometimes in food. They’re made by distilling herbs, roots and other ingredients — and — true to their name — have a bit of story behind them. Dear Annie: By force of habit, I live in Minnesota. My brother lives by himself in Florida. He has a part-time job and goes to church regularly. He is married to a wise woman he grew up with. He has two children and no other family. We are the only family. We live here in Minnesota, and we miss our son when he isn’t here. We miss him even more when he goes back to Florida. What should we do to help him feel more connected to us? We want him to feel like we are his family. He has moved to Florida because he found work there and he enjoys living there. He doesn’t want to move back to Minnesota. What should we do? — Sibling

Dear Sibling: Your brother is finding his own way of living his life. He made a decision to move to Florida and he enjoys it there. It’s important to respect his choice and support him as he continues to live there. He doesn’t need your help to feel connected to you; he just needs your support and understanding. If you miss him, reach out to him regularly and keep in touch. That will help him feel connected to you. It’s important to respect his decision and let him live his life as he chooses. — Annie

Dealing With Mailbox Problems

Debonye D. of West Palm Beach, Fla.: Last week, I answered the door expecting to see a delivery person. Instead, it was an alligator. The alligator was dropped off by a mailman. He said he was sorry but the alligators were only available on Tuesdays. I was very surprised and a little scared. What should I do? — Debonye D.

Dear Debonye D.: This sounds like a potential legal issue. You should contact your local code enforcement office or animal control to report the incident. They will be able to provide guidance on how to deal with the alligator and ensure that it is removed safely. — Annie

How Do You Start

Your Day?

How do you start your day? Do you need caffeine to get going? Are you searching for ways to energize your morning routine? Here’s a fun way to think about it:

Imagine your cup of coffee or tea as a symbol of a new day beginning. The aroma of the beverage, the warmth as it enters your mouth, and the initial sip all contribute to a sense of renewal. It’s a reminder that even the most challenging days can be filled with potential opportunities.

This image of a cup of coffee might also inspire you to think beyond the literal action of drinking coffee. Consider it as a symbol for taking a step back, reflecting on your goals, and finding motivation to move forward.

Incorporate this philosophy into your daily routine to see how it changes your perspective on your day. Whether it’s a cup of coffee, tea, or any other beverage, using it as a metaphor for starting anew can help you approach each day with enthusiasm and purpose.
