Largest oak tree identified

"I came from South Florida, where there were no oak trees, just palm trees," says Manzie. "I was wondering where the biggest tree was in the area."

The largest tree found was at 573 Marsh Hen Lane, off Barnwell Road in Ooh, Nassau County. A 252.7-inch (20.2 feet) in circumference (around the tree) and 98.1 inches (8 feet) in diameter (from side to side).

"If you've ever asked yourself those questions, they may have been answered by Mike Manzie, the owner of landscaping company Manzie & Davis Landscaping, who recently sponsored a "Largest Oak Tree in Nassau County" contest.

"I was looking for the biggest tree in the area to receive local publicity, and by bringing in a large oak tree, I thought it might be a good opportunity to drive around and take measurements."

"We got hundreds of calls," says Manzie. "Judging by the response, if there was a bigger tree (than we found), we'd have heard about it. We did not overlook it, but as far as I know, we were flooded with calls."

"Somebody had a story about their tree," he went on. "One woman said Blackboard's insurance was barred under the tree."

This is Manzie's second "Largest Oak Tree" contest.

Rayonier celebrates billieth tree

Rayonier Eastern Forest Resources celebrated its billionth tree planted in the Southeast during a luncheon Thursday at the Goffinsville-Nassau River Park.

The company planted a 25-foot live oak on the waterfront, as well as hardwood, loblolly and baldy pines throughout the park, located in Nassau County.

"From the city, state, county and local levels, with about 100 guests, attended the luncheon. Also present were executives and county commissioners from Rayonier."

"Rayonier, in the three Southeastern states – Florida, Georgia and Alabama – has now planted a billion trees," Eastern Forest Resources Director Larry Davis told the guests. "... Rayonier is committed to sustainable forest management."

Nassau County Commissioner Mike Boyle. "... We are dependent on them just as they are on some in how Nassau County does, and that relationship has never been better than it is right now." Rayonier's chairman, president and CEO. "... It is also about the campaign BILLION Continued on 4A

Police try to cut through the noise

JASON YURGARTIS
News Leader

City Attorney Tammi Bach told city commissioners last week that policies have been adopted to confirm the identity of those who make noise complaints to avoid "petty people", taking up to two meetings. But Police Chief Joe Herboldt said anonymous complaints would not be accepted.

"An anonymous complaint, on many occasions, would be a public confusion," Herboldt said. "It would only create an anonymous complaint to go into the area and place and verify it, and by doing so, it is a direction to keep those complaints from getting out of hand."

Some business owners have suggested that noise complaints are lodged by bona fide residents or visitors bothered by noise. They counters that the noise complaints are made without regard to the truth can be considered libelous.

City warns newspaper of lawsuit

News Leader

City Attorney Tammi Bach warned Thursday the News Leader could be sued if it published a story suggesting two city officials had violated Florida's Sunshine Law by attending a meeting of a group of community leaders.

"If statements are made that evolution did occur, written or oral, without the support of a legal opinion in support of a violation having occurred, those statements would be negligent and wrong," Bach said. "It may be that if someone wrote in an unsecured e-mail to the newspaper's editor "Darwinism and racism" are not legal terms that are used specifically to define the sale or access by a publication."

The First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution provides for freedom of speech and has been interpreted to mean the freedom of the press. The U.S. Supreme Court has taken a dim view of government censorship of the media except in exceptional cases. The court has held that a state or city ordinance which requires newspapers to file with public officials copies of newspaper stories through the use of threats or intimidation is unconstitutional.

Tallahassee — With Thanksgiving celebrations upon us, Florida Agriculture and Consumer Service Commissioner Charles B. Prater encourages state residents to follow a few simple tips to preserve the spirit of the holiday season and enjoy a healthy holiday meal with your loved ones.

“Tales of the Turkey” will be featured as another “Health Happenings” topic, offering consumers tips and research on how to make healthy choices when cooking the holidays’ star attraction.

“Wash your hands with soap and warm water before preparing turkey. Wash turkey and all surfaces and equipment with soap and water,” Prater said. “Turkey can be left out on room temperature for no more than two hours. This advice also applies to leftovers that need to be safely stored in the refrigerator. Leftovers should be refrigerated promptly. Keep the cold chain intact throughout food handling and be sure to follow food safety tips for the holidays by keeping food, environment and personal hygiene in mind.”

Food tips for a safe Thanksgiving

• Wash your hands with soap and warm water before preparing turkey.

• Turkey can be left out on room temperature for no more than two hours.

Hurley did not discuss any noise code, but emphasized what some commissioners see as a compliance issue.

"If there’s no action you can take, then that’s a problem," he said. "Mitigation is a difficult concept to deal with, but if your business has outcome, it may mean that you are not in compliance. I’m not talking about being loud, I’m talking about being in a way that could disturb someone.

Hurley said the ordinance also "is not something that you can say is a starting point for discrimination or any other reason. It is a starting point for mitigation.

"The ordinance was not intended to discriminate against anyone," he said. "It is not intended to create a scenario where you have a business that is noisy and there is no action that can be taken."

Hurley acknowledged that the ordinance has been successful in reducing noise levels in the city, but he said that the city needs to continue to monitor the ordinance to ensure that it is being enforced.

"We need to make sure that we are enforcing the ordinance," he said. "We need to make sure that we are not creating a scenario where people are being disturbed by noise and there is no action that can be taken."
Home sales increase in October

The Northeast Florida Association of Realtors (NEFAR) announced that home sales in the Jacksonville area for October went on an upward trend.

Closed sales were 1,257— a 23.1% increase from the 1,025 in October 2008. Pending sales also picked up with a 13.0% increase over October 2008. Pending sales during the past few months have continued to increase, without doubt an indicator that potential homebuyers were taking advantage of the low interest rates.

Sales prices are much lower than last year’s levels. The average sales price during October was $197,285, a 10.5% decrease from the $221,110 during the same month last year. These figures, along with many other, are included in the free statistics packages available at www.NEFAR.com. The statistics packages include a monthly report summarizing all activity for NEFAR’s entire service area plus partial information for St. Johns County and Nassau County’s Palmer Township members in Deerfield Beach.

The Northeast Florida Association of Realtors (NEFAR) is the largest professional trade association in Northeast Florida, serving more than 2,000 Realtors and affiliated businesses, partner members in Deerfield Beach, Palm Beach County, Nassau County, and St. Johns County. As all Nassau and St. Johns County realtors are members of NEFAR, MLS listings provided from all regions and provide a seasonal boost to local economies, including in Nassau County.

Snowbirds flock to Florida, lay their golden eggs

There are a few characteristics that Florida, which is the state that has the most snowbirds, possess. The climate, the beaches, the weather, and the cost of living are all factors that keep snowbirds flocking to the Sunshine State. But one thing that the most snowbirds are not looking for is a place to live. They are more concerned with finding a place to stay.

A University of Florida report estimated that there were more than 8,300 snowbirds in the state in the peak of winter in 2010. Other studies and reports are speculating that the number has increased to 10,000 or so. Snowbirds are known for their love of warm weather and the desire to escape the cold winters in the north. They are mostly retired, mostly wealthy and mostly good for a state that is weakened by the worst recession in decades. Their impact is being especially felt this year. According to the Tampa Tribune, snowbirds are also capitalizing on lower real estate prices and buying properties this year. As snowbird population is expected to rise higher this year, especially in South Florida. The snowbirds are also showing up earlier this year—especially from Canada. The latter is a stronger currency in relation to the U.S. dollar, which allows them to get more for their money. Snowbirds also strengthened Canadian currency trading at restaurants and on rounds of golf and on discounted properties.

The competition for snowbirds is increasing. According to the National Association of Realtors, Canada bought more than 4,100 homes in the U.S. in 2009. In fact, one-third of all international homebuyers were from Canada last year. It is difficult to ascertain how many snowbirds from Canada, as well as from northern states—such as Michigan and Ohio—vacationed in Florida last year. Snowbirds have a large pull in Florida, and local residents can see if they have an impact. They are reported to be back on the advertising bandwagon with advertising campaigns highlighting the fact that part-time homeowners in Florida (who are not snowbirds) are not paying the same property taxes as permanent residents.

Unlike a boxer whose aim is to knock out the opponent, and "win," the student of Aikido is taught to do no harm to the opponent, but rather to subdue them with the least pain and most control possible.

Aikido dojo (school) is named "Bushido Dojo," under the direction of MinoritySensei Shikansu.

Children's advocacy award

Joe Alhade, Family Support Services of North Florida, was recently honored by the Florida Conference of Children (FCC) with the organization's Advocate award in Orlando.

FCC President Mike Conklin said Alhade was selected because he has gone the extra mile for the cause, above and beyond what is expected from a child advocate.

Alhade is the community liaison for Children's Advocacy Centers of the Seven States of Florida, which is strictly defensive and non-combative.

Film festival

The Amelia Island Film Festival President Board Member Tim McDaniel announced that Bill Weir, an Emmy Award-winning producer and filmmaker, and Nadine Vogel, a screenwriter, novelist and filmmaker, had joined the board to help assemble a group of nine lodging partners for the 2010 annual festival scheduled for Feb. 12-18. In partnership with the Amelia Island Convention & Visitors Bureau, the festival will offer four screenings of films properties, which will offer filmgoers the more than 35 authors offering workshops and presentations during the annual festival.

There are Amelia Eater at the Beach, Dam's Fan and Salvo Amelia Island, Elizabeth Pointe Lodge, Golf Club of Amelia at Hammock Beach, Surfing Amelia Island, Hampton Inn Amelia Island at Fernandina Beach, Amelia Island Plantation, Residence Inn Amelia Island and The River Inn, Amelia Island.

We were honored to have Sensei Keene visit the classroom during the second week of the new school year.

Many people reflect that Aikido is well taught and flowing, says Kelly, and therefore they don't feel it can really be effective. Holiday patrols increase

Show the Thanksgiving holiday weekend typically produces a high volume of motor vehicle traffic, the Florida Highway Patrol will increase patrol presence throughout the state. Drivers are encouraged to plan their travel early and avoid driving during the peak hours. The Patrol will work closely with local law enforcement agencies to enforce traffic laws.

The Florida Highway Patrol is committed to making Florida's roads safe," said Lt. Bill Leeper, "We encourage motorists to do their part by sticking to the speed limit and making sure everyone in their vehicle is buckled up."

The Florida Highway Patrol will focus on these safety tips:
- Get plenty of rest before you get on the road
- Glazed and drowsy are not good goals
- Allow plenty of time to reach your destination
- Drive sober only
- Drive with your headlights on
- Eliminate distractions. Tailing on the phone, using or adjusting the stereo
- Prepare your vehicle
- Check fluid levels, oil, gas and windshield wipers, and check tires have adequate pressure and are in good condition.

The Patrol will also strictly enforce safety belt and making sure everyone in the vehicle is buckled up. "The Florida Highway Patrol is committed to making Florida's roads safe," said Lt. Bill Leeper. "We encourage motorists to do their part by sticking to the speed limit and making sure everyone in their vehicle is buckled up."

The Fernandina Beach Shop with Cops program, which provides Christmas presents to deserving children on Amelia Island, had its biggest year yet, with 150 percent of donations go ing over $1,500. Forty percent of donations go to Fernandina Beach, 30 percent to Fernandina-Brunswick County, and the remaining 30 percent to other areas. The program hopes to serve about 130 needy youngsters, at $130 per child. The volunteer citizens help the children shop for toys, Lego sets, board games and bikes.

suspected burglary he said took place in Yulee and Fernandina Beach.

According to reports, Larry Gonzales Jr., 30, Middleburg, Nov. 26, Nassau County warrant – domestic battery.

Jody Brooks, 43, Jacksonville, Nov. 17, Nassau County warrant – grand theft.

A deputy returned to scene about 9:30 a.m. and told him someone tried to get into the business and that the business owner arrived, he found someone had tried to pry the wood trim from a glass window in one of the doors, but that was not necessary.

The victim said he believed the suspects have two other stolen doors from metal half plate or pan doors, on the interior, generating easy access across the room.

Wednesday, Nov. 23, 2022 - Builders FirstSource.

The victim told authorities he was in the store during the time the suspects were messing with "Kylie," then turned to his left. The suspect pulled a handgun from his pocket and the victim told him he was going to the floor, a report stated.

Police canvassed the neighborhood and discovered an attempted burglary at 1816 S. Ninth St. in Fernandina Beach.

A woman contacted the police about 7:00 a.m. and told him someone tried to get into the business and that when the business owner arrived, he found someone had tried to pry the wood trim from a glass window in one of the doors, but that was not necessary.

Anyone with information about anyone missing or wanted is asked to call the Nassau County Sheriff’s Office at 277-7342 or the Fernandina Beach Police Department at 277-7384.

Police were called to the business about 1:30 p.m. and told him someone tried to get into the business and that when the business owner arrived, he found someone had tried to pry the wood trim from a glass window in one of the doors, but that was not necessary.

Andrews leaves a legacy of dominance

By Elise Cloyd

F ortunately for the South County, the football team could come up with a folkloric 20-13 victory over rival North Brunswick, a team every Marxian protagonist should have been able to handle in 2009. The result was the most lopsided victory in South County history when defensive coordinator Mickey Andrews named five starters on the field.

The Terrapins were 2-0 coming into the game, which lacked some quality offenses throughout the season. All of the four teams in the county that faced South County in 2009 had a losing record in the second half.

The game is historically significant because of the dominance of the 1989 and 1990 South County teams. These teams were considered among the best in the state and were led by Mickey Andrews, a former South County coach who later became the head coach at South Brunswick.

South County was the only team in the county to make the playoffs in 2009, and they were led by quarterback Matt Martin, who was named the South County Player of the Year. The Terrapins finished the season with a record of 8-2, and they were ranked fourth in the state.

South County was led by a strong defense that allowed only 14 points per game. The team also had a strong running game, with Martin leading the team in rushing with 871 yards and 12 touchdowns.

The Terrapins also had a strong receiving corps, with Jordan Davis leading the team in receptions with 30 and 531 yards. The team also had a strong kicking game, with kicker Matt Martin leading the team in field goals with 10.

South County was led by coach Mickey Andrews, who guided the team to a second straight state championship. Andrews is a former South County coach who later became the head coach at South Brunswick.

The Terrapins were considered one of the best teams in the state, and they were ranked fourth in the state.

The game was a great victory for South County, and it was an important win for the team. The win was a great way to end the season and set the stage for a strong 2010 season.

The pair of barbed pogies had a kingfish leader and drop it. Normally the two things we had caught earlier would have been the majority of kingfish caught on our trip but today we had secured the rig and jig up enough live bait, but came up empty-handed after battling a large king mackerel for several minutes.

Good fortune was about to arrive as time passed. We had nearly run out of live weather front was supposed to start and it came down very close to the switch. Our king was no longer interested in the king ran some 400 yards of 20-pound mono line off my tail and began lifting the king mackerel just ahead of the fish aggregate weight of an SKA record-breaking two- National Championship with Barret's king just ahead of the turn and began lifting the king over the bow of the boat when the point of the gaff caught the hard钙 calculus. At this point, Brant McMullen came to the rescue and, with all three fishermen at hand, they managed to lift the massive mackerel back onto the bow of their 32-foot Yellowfin.

The next tournament is on the St. Marys River. Tim McCoy managed to take third place as he was fishing an area called the "Fish Factory". The Boats were fighting king-mackerel to the rescue and, with all the boats were fighting king-mackerel. McMullen managed to lift the massive mackerel, but came up empty-handed after battling a large king mackerel for several minutes.

Jeff and Nancy Daniels of Fernandina Beach are picking up the king mackerel that tapped off of a day of fishing they won't soon forget.

The inner sleuth embraces the mystery genre

B eing an avid consumer of mystery novels, I tend to go in stages. I'm currently in a phase where I read them back to back. I love the genre because it allows me to escape into a world of suspense and intrigue. Each novel presents a new challenge, and the thrill of solving the puzzle is what keeps me coming back for more.

I recently read two mysteries. One is a classic, and the other is a modern take on the genre. Both were excellent choices, and I would highly recommend them to anyone who enjoys a good mystery.

One of the books I read was a classic mystery. It was first published in 1930 and has stood the test of time. The author's name is Dashiell Hammett, and the protagonist is Sam Spade. The book is titled "The Maltese Falcon," and it's a masterpiece of detective fiction.

The story follows Sam Spade as he investigates a case involving a valuable maltese falcon. The investigation leads him down a winding path of lies, betrayal, and danger. The book is full of twists and turns, and the tension builds up to a thrilling climax.

The other book I read was a modern mystery. It's a book by a friend, and it's titled "The Silent Siren." The author is Dickie Anderson, and it's a story about a small town in Georgia. The protagonist is a young girl named Emily. The book is full of suspense and mystery, and it's a great read for anyone who enjoys a good mystery.

Dickie Anderson is a local author, and I was thrilled to receive an advance copy of his book. I was even more excited to read it because it's about a town I'm familiar with. I grew up in Georgia, and it was a treat to read about a place I know.

In conclusion, I would say that these two books are both excellent examples of the mystery genre. If you're a fan of mystery novels, I highly recommend giving them a try. You won't be disappointed.

HOLIDAY HAPPENINGS

Amelia Island Plantation to celebrate November 27 from 5–9 p.m. The 5th Annual Light Up A Life will light up the holiday season in the 100 block of Cedar St. on Amelia Island. A booth will be open 8 a.m.–6 p.m. in conjunction with the city of Fernandina Beach, Nassau County Humane Society, the Nassau County Holiday Pet Walk, City of Fernandina Beach, and the Amelia Island Historical Society. Silent auction, pictures until 5 p.m. at the Marina aboard the Ye Olde Schooner. A buffet and silent auction.

Children’s Christmas Party at Amelia Baptist Church. This is a musical show about the journey and events leading up to the birth of Jesus. Each Sunday night of Advent will offer a different Christmas viewpoint through music, dance, and songs. Children will leave old children with a different event each week. UMY begins at 7 p.m. with fun games, music, and a program, and worship. At 8 p.m. in the sanctuary, children will enjoy a special Christmas event. Prices are $15 for adults and $10 for students. Call 261-6000 for reservations. Proceeds benefit Project Autism.

Amelia Baptist Church travels back in time to World War II with “A 1940s Christmas.” This show is presented by the Amelia Island Choral Society and is supported and entertained by groups like the Harmonemers. From left, Dana Raddock, Audi Bogart, Lori Blick, Kris Allen and Gulf McCany.

Pajama Party

The 14th Annual Pajama Party Sale will be held in downtown Fernandina Beach on Friday, Nov. 27 at 8 a.m. Shoppers are invited to dress up in their favorite pajamas to enjoy special deals and discounts, along with fun food, coffee and pastries. Enter the contest for “Best Dressed Individual Shopper in Pajamas” and receive a $20 dress shopping in Group B. Participation is free, and the judge will choose three winners. Prizes will be awarded at the judge's discretion.
