Andrea and Donna Mangino, representing Odd Cup'les Café, are ready for the crowd at the chili cookoff.

It was a day for sampling and for raising money. Last Saturday, chili enthusiasts drove a variety of different chili dishes as their servers hoped their recipe would be a winning one in the second annual Spice it up for Hospice chili cookoff at Kenny Dixon Sports Complex in Bushnell.

About a dozen booths were set up around the picnic pavilion all offering participants a sampling. As people sampled, Todd Brown and the River Junction Band performed for the crowd. All proceeds from the event benefit the Lane Parrish Hospice House in Sumterville. See Page 9 for more photos from the chili cookoff.

The collection of cars on display recently by the Lake Panasoffkee Cruisers and other visitors ranged from coupes from the 1930’s to a current day Corvette.

Entry forms and rules should be available by the end of January – you’ll be able to get them either online at www.countycommissioners.net or at www.countycommissioners.net or at Cason and Gaskins TV.

Sunday school teachers, school teachers, artists, and educational groups – get your group together and enter – remember it’s open to all!

There will be two sets of rules, one for children and terms and another set for adults.

There’s a category for just about everything, including growing produce and raising eggs, digital photographs, and special collections.

If you can’t find a category for what you create, chances are good we can find a place to fit it in.

For information call Sarah Hensley at 793-2728 or Brenda Locklear at 793-2161.

Commission Chairmen Garry Breeden suggested that the issue be tabled for about 60 days until more information is collected.

In the meantime, the board had asked the Tourist Development Council (TDC) for the majority of funding needed to renovate the Cow Palace, estimated to cost $250,000 total.

The TDC voted 5 to 1 in early January to recommend the grant application in the amount of $748,000. With the understanding that if the County Commission determined that a new structure would be better promote tourism in Sumter County, funding for the new structure would be paid from tourism development tax funds.

New video depicts LifeStream Center

LifeStream Behavioral Center has released a new video to help tell the story of its impact on the community. The 10-minute video was produced by Apple Seed Marketing (http://www.AppleSeedMarketing.com), a division of Hometown Health TV, LLC, a client of the company of the Sean-Bergman at Hometown Health TV, LLC.

LifeStream is a behavioral health and substance use disorders organization that provides services in prevention, care management, and treatment education to children, adolescents and adults. LifeStream currently serves the residents of Lake County and Sumter counties with 21 facilities and 52 programs.

Featuring LifeStream CEO and Cherry, program director. Dr. T.J. Valente, other staff and LifeStream clients, the video was developed with three endings so that it can be used for employee training, fundraising and general community awareness about the services that LifeStream offers. "We are excited to have 'Hope Comes to Life', can be a powerful tool for everyone at LifeStream and help explain the breadth of our services to those we serve."

LifeStream primarily serves the residents of Lake and Sumter counties with 21 facilities and 52 programs.

LifeStream provides a wide-variety of services and treatments for those suffering from depression, anxiety, bipolar disorder, substance use disorders ranging in severity from mild to severe, and patients, the more we realize just how profound an impact this amazing organization continues to make in our community."

About LifeStream Center

The LifeStream Behavioral Health Center has meeting the behavioral healthcare needs of Lake and Sumter county residents since 1999.

Since that time, LifeStream has developed a full continuum of services to thousands of families of children, adults and seniors each year. An extensive network of local community-based organizations, LifeStream is guided by a Board of Directors composed of community volunteers LifeStream is governed by the Commission on Accreditation Rehabilitation Facilities (CARF) and the Florida Department of Corrections.

IT'S exciting viewing the plans that the City of Bushnell has for its recent revitalization project. It is not sitting quietly without the huge oak tree in front of City Hall. There are plans to include something that is sure to bring new life to the downtown area.

For Thanksgiving, the Bushnell Business Association is planning a special program for its members and participants. They are working to ensure that the program is inclusive and accessible to people with developmental disabilities. The event is scheduled for November 23rd, and it promises to be a wonderful occasion for everyone.

In other news, the city is planning to welcome the annual Christmas parade. It will feature floats, marching bands, and a visit from Santa Claus. The parade will take place on December 1st, and it is sure to be a highlight of the season.

The city council is also considering new regulations for yard waste and debris. These changes are aimed at reducing the risk of wildfires and ensuring that the city remains safe for all residents.

The city is also working on improving its infrastructure. It recently completed a road improvement project that is expected to increase traffic flow and reduce congestion.

Finally, the city is planning to host a special event to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the founding of the city. This event will be held on September 15th, and it promises to be a fitting celebration of the city's history and achievements.

Count your blessings. You have many kindnesses and blessings to count. I count my blessings because I have the people, organizations, and businesses that support me and help me throughout the year. I count my blessings because I have friends, family, and loved ones who support me and help me through the challenges of the year.

The city of Bushnell is a great place to live and work. It is a community that values its residents and its future. I am grateful to be part of this community, and I look forward to seeing what the future holds for our city.
The Southwest Florida Water Management District (SWFWMD) is implementing a policy expected to reduce District expenses by more than $15 million a year. The policy, titled “Reducing in Force,” is part of the District’s mission to use its resources more effectively.

“Reducing in Force” is intended to improve process efficiency and reduce costs by re-organizing operations and combining programs for efficiency and effectiveness.

“We were able to accomplish this while still retaining all of our major programs and services,” said Guillory.

Reducing in Force

Many of the organizational changes were driven by an evaluation and cost analysis conducted by an independent consulting firm. This report identified the need to change the District’s efficiency and reduce costs by re-organizing operations and structuring the organization to implement technology, processes and procedures.

Part of the changes included realigning staff based on the types of work they do to increase efficiency and reduce duplication. For example, the creation of the Operations, Maintenance, and Construction Division pulled together operations, maintenance and construction of the District under one division.

Under this new division, the Land Resources and Operations bureaus were combined, and a Data Collection Bureau was created to consolidate all data collection efforts.

Regulation

Significant savings will also result from the reallocation of the Water Resources Certification Division to the newly created Water Management Division.

“This is a great opportunity to improve our services and reduce costs,” said Guillory. “The District will continue to maintain a local presence in the existing service offices to maintain a quality customer service and to ensure that the public better understands their services to District Staff. Also, on-site service providers are being enhanced and made easier to access and more convenient to allow for rapid applications and access to data.

“Just as every business and family must have done, we will be taking a closer look at everything we do, and finding ways to create efficiencies or streamlining our operations,” said Guillory.

Moving Forward

Thanks to his pay-as-you-go philosophy, the District can continue to avoid huge capital outlays and improve service levels.

“Despite the reductions in force, we still have a large, talented pool of employees remaining at the District, and I am confident we can continue to provide quality service and meet the needs of our customers,” Guillory said.

Carl Seay at seven years young

“I really have a good year ahead. I’ve got a full year all long and he also grows his own sugarcane,” Seay said.

Every November we start making our own cane syrup. Earl has been making syrup for 10 years now, and he continues to make a good syrup and I’m proud of him. He hasrea a 40-year old family farm, but the best syrup ever.

He was a member of the Sumter County Sugar Cane Growers for 62 years.

“I just love Earl’s passion and heart into everything that he does. It’s time for him to slow down and enjoy the family,” Seay said.

Carl Seay went into the U.S. Army Reserve when he was 18 years old and by the time he was 20 he was released from jump school with the 302nd Division. He made 58 parachute jumps.

Earl has three children—Robin, Royce Jr. and Dana. He has seven grandchildren and they all call him Pa-Pa. The grandchildren are: Jonathan, Dustin, Amanda, Taylor, Dillon, Ethan and Keifer. He has only one granddaughter and he loves to spoil her.

The Wildwood High girls weightlifters establish foundations

The five Wildcats took part in the district weightlifting meet Wednesday, Jan. 23 at Mitchell High School.

When they next come out, they don’t know what’s going on, the coach said. “They really start learning about it. They trust themselves more in clean and jerk, they have to look ahead through a hole. They finally understand that. The most difficult lift is the clean and jerk. They really started to get the fundamentals in their second year of lifting.” Both Solomons placed first in most of their meets, according to their coach.

“Kala and Kali Skipper, twin sisters, really grasped the clean and jerk,” the coach said. “Kala was 90 pounds in the clean press and the clean and jerk. Kali was in the 129-pound class and 155 in the clean and jerk. Kali is in the 110-pound class. I think they ended up getting some second places. Next year, their confidence will grow. After their doing it, they are sophomores. They will do better. They placed in some places.

“We just don’t have enough girls to win medals.” Charles Webster, 119 and won in his first year of lifting.

“She had never done it before but she came in and she looked like she was comfortable from the beginning,” the coach said.

“Her personality fit in with the Solomons. Whatever we lacked in numbers, we made up in personality. We had a lot of fun. The trips were fun. They made friends wherever they went. Skippers will probably lift around other sports, softball and volleyball.

“Kala and Kali Skipper are all around good kids,” the coach said. “I am now the softball coach. I want ahead and committed to it.”

As coach, Streit can encourage his lifters to spend more time in the weight room and possibly get more lifters. More kids, just maybe, the Skippers and possibly might be able to do some heavy lifting next year at the state meet.

The following students are recognized as Webster Elementary School’s good citizen of the month for demonstrating trustworthiness to their teachers and peers. Making baskets

With concentration and some pine needles, participants in a recent outing at Dade Park in Bushnell learned how to weave baskets and coasters.

A few of the participants came from Hillsborough County in order to learn the craft. Judie Bradley helped instruct the crafters in completing their projects and displayed one of her baskets.

The course is just one of many nature-based activities that are provided at the park.

Debbie Greek and Sally Grantham are also members of the sewing group. They’re shown here working on pine needle coasters.

Barbara Hon took her first class back in October and has already mastered the art. She’s now creating her own designs now, including a basket with handles.

Diane Vasseur (right) and Sherri Braddy are volunteers from the Hillsborough State Park and travelled to Sumter County to learn the art for their area.

Cheryl Drobing, Marlon Syverson, Rosie Thompson, Bobby Olmstead and Bonnie Schroeder are RVers. The ladies got together for the pine needle basket-making class.

Seth Barber (shown) attended the class with Tanya Barber.

Judie Bradley holds up one of her creations. Bradley was one of the teachers for last week’s class.

Community Cats

Community cats are stray cats roaming our streets and living in wooded areas or deserted buildings. They provide a natural way to keep the rodent population down, eliminating the spread of diseases without harmful pesticides and chemicals.

Cats in a community will form into groups or colonies. A colony can be a mixture of abandoned or lost pets, semi wild, and wild cats. Although some people think cats can survive on their own, they can face a life of hardship. Injury, disease, starvation, and attacks by other animals make survival extremely difficult for community cats. Many caring citizens will put out food and water for stray cats, but unless they are spayed and neutered, they will quickly multiply and their numbers become out of control. Studies show that one female cat and her male and all their kittens can produce 450,000 offspring in just seven years!

The solution: Operation Catnip, or Trap-Neuter-Return (TNR). Trap, Neuter, and Return has proven to be the most humane and successful method of reducing stray cat populations. Many cities and communities here in Florida, across America, and around the world, are implementing TNR with huge success.

TNR is a 2-step approach:

Step One: This involves humanely trapping the cats, spaying and neutering them, and then returning them back to their original location. This not only eliminates new litters being born, but reduces nuisance behaviors that can be attributed to mating behaviors, such as fighting and spray marking. Any tame cats and kittens still young enough to tame can be removed, socialized, and placed for adoption.

Step Two: Colony caretakers, who are volunteers or caring citizens, will monitor the cats’ health while providing daily food, water, and shelter. Over time, the numbers of cats in the colony will naturally diminish, as the cat’s age and die from natural causes.

TNR has long-term benefits on community resources too. It will reduce the number of cats and kittens that would end up in county animal control facilities, saving hundreds of thousands of taxpayer’s dollars while bringing down the rate of euthanizes. Add to that the benefit of continued natural rodent control, and you have a win-win situation. TNR is endorsed and recommended by the ASPCA, Humane Society of the United States (HSUS), and every other large and small humane organization. TNR is a program that every community should actively pursue.

Sock It Dewatering owner had their dragline on display at AGRItunity 2012. Shown are Danny Russell and Patrick Morey (on top) and owner Larry Everly, Jr. at ground level.

Ben Hewitt spoke about the need for both large and small forms of agriculture and about the number of jobs purchasing food directly from the farm can create, according to Sumter County Extension Agent Susan Kelly.

Kelly said Hewitt used his data to explain the number of jobs created when the public obtains just five percent of their food supply from local farms.

The outdoor exhibits at the event included everything from a dragline service and tractors to a collection of antique farm implements and a carriage. Live llamas, cows, sheep and horses were also part of the experience.

The trader show was held Saturday, Jan. 28, in the West Central Florida Agricultural Education Center with indoor exhibits that included live-stock food suppliers, food growers and agricultural associations and workshops.

There was also a Friday experience designed for farm tours. The tours were held in Pasco and Hernando counties, with a final tour on Friday afternoon at the X-FARMS, north of Bevilles Corner.

The collection of people who attended ranged from large producers to individual growers. AGRItunity is a project of the UF/IFAS Extension offices of Citrus, Hernando, Lake, Pasco and Sumter counties.

Riley Revels is only three years old, but he’s already working on his skills with the lasso.

Wayne Mercer and George Bannon take a look at the X-Farms tomato plants. Mercer has grown and sold indoor tropical plants in Zellwood for the past 20 years and is interested in getting a garden going to provide food for his family and those of his employees.

Neal Esposito gathers information from Barbara Carpenter on the Verti-Gro growing systems.

Fairman Bockhorst, of Inverness, attended the AGRItunity and also purchased some of the fresh vegetables and fruit from X-Farms before heading home.

I t’s great to see some interest in promoting Sumter County as an outdoor desti nation and put some focus on the number one industry in the state, tourism,” said Kimis at the Chamber Lunch Exchange in January.

According to Kimis, there is an estimated 38,272 bil-ion in spending related to tourism in Florida annually. "Forest, farm and lake beds, prairies, trails and rural lands, parks, trails and historic places of nature are attractive to the estimated 157 million Americans who participate in outdoor activities such as geo-caching, camping, hiking and more,” she said.
