WATERLEON KING
J. D. McVey of Ocala, Fla., engaged in truck farming and store dealing, recently went to Okeechobee and made inquiries concerning the prospects of doing business on three acres, has concluded to make an attempt. He is a native of the state of New York, was born in the county of of Richland and has been in the truck business in Okeechobee for the past seven years. He is a very enterprising man and has always been a good provider.

The primary system of one of the "sellors" referred to is that it is a system by which the seller is able to get more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods. He has reduced the same powerfully by means of the system, and by the use of spices, salves, and other ingredients, he is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

It is a privilege that allows one to become a "sellor" and to sell goods at a lower price than the ordinary method. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.

The "sellors" are able to get much more money for their goods than they would by the ordinary methods. The seller is able to get much more money for his goods than he would by ordinary methods.