an overview of the demographic characteristics of households, land tenure and land use patterns, cropping patterns, agricultural inputs and outputs, animal husbandry and other income generating strategies which farmers pursue to supplement farm incomes. The next section will focus on the marketing component of the farming system which heavily influences all major economic decisions farmers make.