The collection of articles is particularly useful in understanding the research process and what it takes to make the process productive. It would be a great help to donors in developing projects and in communicating with host governments on research development strategy. Several of the national case studies have important lessons for most donor clients.