

Fertilizer Costs Nothing

IDEAL INVESTMENT

Many seem to think that after the crop is set, the trees are going to mature it some way and anything they can save on fertilizer is clear gain, but actual results prove that a summer fertilizing costs less than nothing. By making each fruit a little larger many boxes are added to the crop and the fruit brings a higher price. Then, a luxuriant growth of bearing wood is a necessary foundation for a large crop next year, and still further gain is seen in the condition of the trees. If their vitality has been kept up they are better prepared for winter and for strong spring action than trees that have become thoroughly exhausted and have to be nursed up before they can respond to the call of spring.
