A Famous Figurehead

In 1834 Captain Eliot, who had been second in command at Lake Erie under Oliver Perry, excited a violent political and partisan demonstration by decorating at the Boston navy yard the bow of the Constitution with a figurehead of President Jackson. One stormy night his effigy was decapitated as neatly and easily as if the best tools had been used. It is interesting to note that the figurehead was made of wood and that the decapitation was performed by a man named John S. . . .

The Path of the Earth

The common idea as to the path of the earth being round in space is taken exception to by astronomers on the ground that there are few, if any things in the domain of astronomy that can really be said to be round. The fact being that as the earth is a sphere and that the path of the earth is a curve, the path of the earth is not round. . . .

Dangerous Diving

Drowning is a quicker death than most people suppose. Insensibility is said to begin in about one minute, and fatal unconsciousness generally supervenes in the neighborhood of two minutes. Few even practiced divers can remain under water more than a minute and a half, and it is generally fatal to remain beneath the surface longer than that. . . .
