PORT ORANGE wants to sell or trade property for Riverwalk

PORT ORANGE — The city is trying a different tack in getting something going at the long-proposed Riverwalk development.

At a recent meeting of the Town Center Community Redevelopment Agency Board, city leaders voted in favor of trying to swap land with private owners within the Riverwalk area and to sell the Riverwalk land the city owns to private developers.

A Request For Proposal will be issued to find interested parties.

“The purpose of the RFP is to get land that is needed for the park into the City’s hands and land that is needed for private development into the private sector’s hands,” he said.

The RFP must be approved by the City Council at its Jan. 17 meeting. It gives final approval. The proposal staff will release the RFP on Feb. 18.

The due date for sale or trade proposals is Feb. 15 at 2:30 p.m. City leaders are expected to hear proposals and approve a selected proposal in March.

Cub Scout trip in Ireland

PORT ORANGE — Musician Elton Costello says study musical roots deeply enough and you’ll end up in Scotland and Ireland eventually. That’s what happened to the Marching Hawks — Sidney Andrews Kidd, Spurce Creek High School band director recently announced that the Republic of Ireland is the next stop on a decade-long string of international performances.

“They told us we’re going to be marching in the Dublin St. Patrick’s Day Parade, and we’re so excited,” student Diana Deming said.

“We will approve it,” Al Byrd, school board chair, said. “I’ll be a seniors when the band travels to Ireland for the 2013 St. Patrick’s Day Parade.”

School grades drop slightly

VOLUSIA COUNTY — Six B’s, two C’s and two D’s for a student with 10 classes, that would be a 2.4-GPA average.

Earlier this month, the Florida Department of Education announced its annual high-school grades. Volusia County Schools’ 10 high schools were in the middle of the pack.

“The majority of our students stayed steady,” Alexis Peiker, coordinator for program accountability and evaluation, said. “We saw a couple decrease, and one make a significant jump.”

High School. It went from a D 10 to B. Dr. Cheryl Salerno, principal, said she was excited by the notes.

“I know everyone wants to know the secret, the one thing that made the difference, and there is no one thing, she said in an interview. “Everyone at Mainland has always worked hard for every student.”

Of Florida’s 471 graded high schools, 147 got A’s or 31 percent. About 47 percent or 224, earned B’s. Another 12 percent, or 54 percent, got C’s. There were 25 D schools and 13 F’s.

Overall, the state’s high schools did a little better than last year — 145 schools got A’s, 180 earned B’s, 156 earned C’s. There were 57 D’s and 11 F’s were given for every student.

hunterm are big hits with mom. Now, with that in mind, you may ask how men ever accomplish anything if they never exercise their brains. It all comes down to nurturing your abilities. Give a man a task and he will focus all of his powers on its completion. When working on a problem men zone in on it without any distractions. The ladies are the patrons of multi-tasking. That right there is my answer to why men and women seem to be different in personality. As I sit in my hour waiting for a fish to bite, I am not writing columns in my head. My only worry is a tug on the line. When I sit down with a pen and legal pad to write, fish are not in my thoughts. I am focused. As soon as I have finished a column I will turn on the TV in “Man vs. Food” and allow my pea brain to revert to its previous inert state. I have been attacking this issue for years. This is the battle to let the mind wander the planet. Better suited to be something like a man’s patrimony. Give a man a task and he will focus all of his powers on its completion. South Daytona residents had a say Wonder why nobody has called out FPL forces on the biguns that South Daytona City Council has neared to accept electricity. FPL forces have been working on this since 2008. I have to tell you that it seems to me that the residents in South Daytona have a say and they want the City to takeover our electricity power. We were told that the city charter has nothing in it to stop it from happening. There is also nothing in the charter that prohibits it. The City has already spent approximately $16 million and is planning to increase that amount of which $15.5 million is to purchase the system from FPL.

Petition gathering is not inviting people as the reader said — most people are happy and trust the City to do this.
The volcano/Hurricane Chap-ter of the Florida Public Relations Association will present a spokesperson-train-ing seminar on Tues-day, Jan. 24, at the WEDC TV-U studio located on the campus of Daytona State College, 1290 W. Interna-tional Speedway Blvd.

Former WESH-TV reporter Shannon Fitz-patrick will lead the profes-sional development semi-nar “The Press HAS Arrived, Are You Ready? – Spokesper-son Training 101” starting at 8 a.m. and running until 11 a.m. Brak-fast will be served at 8 a.m. The seminar, which includes breakfast, is $55 for all members, $35 for members of the Center for Business & Industry at Daytona State. Cost is $30 for each one-day course and each day will be billed. No shows will be billed.

CBI to offer series of non-credit Adobe Creative Suite courses
The Center for Business & Industry at Daytona State College will offer a series of one-day and two-day Adobe Creative Suite courses, including Photoshop, Flash, Illustrator, Dreamweaver and InDo-nes. Courses will begin on Jan. 23 and run through April. Each course begins promptly at 8:30 a.m. and runs until 5 p.m. There will be a one-hour break for lunch. The fee for each one-day course is $107 and two-day course is $185, and includes a student workbook and a student computer.

Spruce Creek recognized by GRAMMY foundation

Spruce Creek High School is among the 127 schools nationwide that have been selected as GRAMMY Signature Schools for 2012.

Created in 1998, the GRAMMY Signature Schools program recognizes top public high schools that are making an outstanding commitment to music education during an academic school year.

In mid-March, the GRAMMY Foundation will announce the finalists for the GRAMMY Signature Schools program. These schools will receive a custom award and a monetary grant ranging from $1,000 to $10,000 to benefit its music program. The top schools are designated Gold recipients. The best of the Gold recipients is named the National GRAMMY Signature School. The remaining schools are designated GRAMMY Signature Schools.

Teacher of the Year finalists named

In December, Volusia County Schools announced five finalists for 2013 Teacher of the Year from a pool of candidates nominated by every public school in the district. The five finalists are: Ely Beckman-Best, Pine Trail Elementary; Leslie Birney, Citrus Grove Elementary; Heather Henderson, University High; Melissa Marple, Edgewater Public and Sandra Tweddy, Spruce Creek High School.

A Teacher of the Year sub-committee spent more than a week reading every application to select the top candidates. Those applications were then read and ranked by a larger committee who chose the five finalists.

The finalists were visited by a team responsible for deciding the district’s winner, based on observing teaching in the classroom and conducting one-on-one interviews with each candidate.

The winners will be named at an awards ceremony, Friday, Feb. 8, at the Daytona Beach Hilton Oceanfront Resort. The district honoree then will be nominated for the state Teacher of the Year program and will become Volusia’s representative of quality education through the 2012-2013 school year.

city manager, said the new request for proposal differs from the failed attempt city leaders put out last summer because that request sought development proposals.

She added a land sale or trade would depend on the parcels being valued by two state-approved property appraisers, who would determine the parcels’ values based on current zoning and current land use.

The City and CRA own 17 acres of Riverwalk land, while the rest is either privately owned or City officials have identified 17 properties, nine of them located between Herbert Street and Dunlawton Avenue, that they are willing to sell to private developers.

City leaders considered the RFP after CRA board members expressed interest in negotiating a land swap with Buddy LaCour of LaCour and Company, a private developer with a stake in 11 acres of Riverwalk land. Mr. LaCour, who city officials say also represents another Riverwalk landowner, Halston River Partners, LLC, said city leaders he “obviously” meant in negotiations about what’s going on when he added he considered it “a simple step in a complex issue.”

“Just to exchange the property and wind up in the same position we’re in today,” he said, “we’ll have 6 acres and you talking. And I don’t want to be here next year talking about this. I want to be under construction.”

But Ms. Steinebach referred to city officials believe simplicity is exactly what is needed.

“We’re trying to make complicated deals and we’re still stuck,” she said after the meeting. “What we’re trying to do now is to take manageable steps, so we can make perhaps small, but significant steps forward.”

Lawrence Ford said they are willing to take “complex negociations” about development questions at this point would result in progress and should develop the project that city leaders back in 1999.

“Complex negotiations have not worked for 12 years,” he said.

Ms. Steinebach referred to it as “analysis paralysis.”

“Let’s be clear about the complexities of decision making into components,” she said. “Now, let’s just talk about selling or trading the properties so we can move forward with the park development for the public. Then we can start making decisions about what’s going on those properties (that are sold),”

Mr. LaCour addressed CRA board members in October 2011 to suggest exchanging property he owns with property the City owns as a way to move Riverwalk development forward.

The snap he proposed at the time involved would have exchanging six Riverfront Properties the City owns for a riverfront park for 11 city-owned parcels he wants for commercial development for a riverfront park.

But Ms. Steinebach referred to it as “analysis paralysis.”

“We’re trying to make complicated deals and we’re still stuck,” she said after the meeting. “What we’re trying to do now is to take manageable steps, so we can make perhaps small, but significant steps forward.”

Lawrence Ford said they are willing to take “complex negociations” about development questions at this point would result in progress and should develop the project that city leaders back in 1999.

“Complex negotiations have not worked for 12 years,” he said.

Ms. Steinebach referred to it as “analysis paralysis.”

“Let’s be clear about the complexities of decision making into components,” she said. “Now, let’s just talk about selling or trading the properties so we can move forward with the park development for the public. Then we can start making decisions about what’s going on those properties (that are sold),”

Mr. LaCour addressed CRA board members in October 2011 to suggest exchanging property he owns with property the City owns as a way to move Riverwalk development forward.

The snap he proposed at the time involved would have exchanging six Riverfront Properties the City owns for a riverfront park for 11 city-owned parcels he wants for commercial development for a riverfront park.

ears ago, in the late '70s, I was intent on finding a fishing hole that I was certain existed down in the back waters of the Halifax in Port Orange. Sure enough, I was accompanied on my row boat by my first cousin and fishing buddy Randy Redman. We came upon a deep hole that was surrounded by acres of shallow water flats. That hole would be a fishing haven for the likes of which I have seldom seen. None, just the holidays, I decided to take this hole for the first time in many years — this time in my kayak.

Even in its heyday the hole produced at low tide. On a high tide the fish would scatter in the flats and oyster beds while the water dropped sufficiently they would return to the safety of the eight-foot depths of the hole. When I first discovered the place, low tide was like being back in a barrel. If I could get to this hole without being cast into flat bottom or oyster bed, it was only about 10 feet wide and 25 feet long and 20 feet deep.

I paddled past it being the one I was certain of what I was looking for. I paddled into the hole and what did I find? Nothing, but a huge big gap to hold as many fish as I could see. I paddled out in the Green Poraton a couple of weeks ago, it brought back a flood of memories. I smiled as I faced the place where I had ventured out once a year for over 40 years. I laughed out loud when I glanced past the spot where I had cast netted a nice outing in a few minutes when I was out fishing to catch bass. That nasal almost averted a tear to turn over my unforgettable little rowboat. I paused as I went past the corner bar that the “Red Man” called home. Big Man was the true fishing guru. It was a warm, foggy day, and a musty smell filled the air, as well. The water was wide and the lagoon shallow; heat waves rose off the water. It was a lagoon, grass, grains, sprouts and vitamins. Not much remains of the little shack that served as the “Health Food Colony” now. (Read more about the history of the “Red Man” in my fascinating and entertaining new book “I Swear the Snook Drowned.”)

In the hole I waded the kayaks into the bushes and with both feet stood on the mucky shrimp that had been casted among a bunch of fish. I tied on a fly and tackled. No artificial-ly工程技术。There were fish. The bass swam past the boat at over the height of the tide, and the lazy bass did not rise. No good. This is a place to get back to in the spring when the feed is cut off by the water flats and oyster beds. When the water and wind had calmed after the storms and the lagoon had settled back from the waves of the ocean, I smiled that memory of my first cast I handed a 1-inch red mud snook on the second 19-inch fish.

For over an hour I caught reds up to 18” and released them. The drag on my reel was being stretched just enough I could not push, nor tug, nor twist. It was a beautiful fishing hole and the first of the season. The fish were small, but the good time looking. It was only a small hole, but it held the favorite spot. Can’t beat it! For the best hole, I directed the followers of Volusia County for more than 40 years. E-mail questions and comments to axelrodthepoet@yahoo.com.

Every January, Orlando is transformed into a golfer’s paradise with the Central Florida Golf Show. The event features over 100 exhibits with many great things at the show for the golfer of all levels. This is also a fantastic opportunity to try one of many products that make golf more enjoyable and fun. In addition, a trip to a golf course can also be given away in the show. So don’t miss this opportunity to visit and enjoy the show.

More information is available at www.centralfloridagolfshow.com or by calling (407) 928-1415.
