Hey young man...
Back then, through to the 1980s, she worked in the real estate business. In the 1990s, her brother, Steven, came back to the family business.

“We were involved in the building of the first two condominiums on the island,” she said. “By the 80s and 90s, the company shifted focus to selling land to developers, who then sold to builders.” When the new century began, the focus in real estate shifted again, this time to a resale market.

Mr. Schlitt noted the increased professionalism that really companies as a whole experienced over the years. “We now have the multiple listing service, professional standards and cooperation,” he said. “Now, the market is experiencing a growth in real estate sales, but because of the longevity of the company, they expected the uptick.

There have always been three cycles of real estate in Florida,” Ms. Schlitt said. “We’ve seen the bottom and now we’re going to see a period of growth.”

In the local market, the company does a lot of business with retirees and second homeowners. A growing trend here on the Treasure Coast is families moving to the area, both from up north, as well as from the southern part of the state.

“The team relies on the strength of the company to be able to serve the variety of needs that an agricultural community that also sits by the ocean presents. We have specializations in every area, and our agents work very closely together,” he said. “What helps is the new technology that is not only available to them, but what they have also developed themselves.”

“We can now access data and research in a more mobile environment using tablets and smartphones,” Mr. Schlitt said. “For example, we can use an iPad to give someone in another state a virtual tour of a property here.”

The secret to their success lies in working together as a team and helping others in the community. “We spend a lot of our own money in organizing fundraisers,” Ms. Schlitt-Gonzalez said. “Our agents are very active and eager to give back to the community and their clients.”

Coldwell Banker Paradise has roots in the Treasure Coast going back to 1926 and is the only coldwellbanker.com. Their agents are very active and eager to give back to the community and their clients.

On Saturday, April 27, the YMCA of the Treasure Coast is celebrating YMCA’s Healthy Kids Day with a free community event that encourages kids on the Treasure Coast to get moving and learning, and families living healthier.

Healthy Kids Day will take place at two Treasure Coast locations: the Stuart branch on Monterey Road and the YMCA Program Center on Barefoot Boulevard in Port St. Lucie. The events will be held from 10:00 a.m. until 1 p.m. and will feature fun and active play activities, such as dance demonstrations, treasure houses, art & crafts, and many local kid-oriented informational vendors.

Take your first step at the Relay for Life

Hello, everyone.

It is said that the journey to meet cancer starts with a single step. This weekend, hundreds of volunteers, cancer victims and their families will come together Saturday and Sunday at the St. Lucie West Centre for Life taking their steps and doing their part to bring awareness to this horrible disease.

I have lost too many of my family members to cancer. I have stood quietly and cried as I watched luminaries—hundreds of luminaries—flicker quietly in the dark,ies for my mom and dad for Life taking their steps at the St. Lucie West Relay for Life, though, I have never been surprised if you see me walking next you sometimes.

The relay started from The Gardens of Port St. Lucie and continued to the Port St. Lucie City Council by Lorna Ruggirello is also the event chairman. “I want to do everything in my power to help raise money that funds this disease as it has claimed thousands of lives,” says Ruggirello. “I am optimistic that I will see strides in research in various cancers during my lifetime.

Until then, we cry, we laugh and we go on. We keep taking steps. I support each and every one of you, and don’t be surprised if you see me walking next to you sometimes.”

Sheriff’s office veteran earns designation

ST. LUCIE COUNTY — Eighteen-year St. Lucie County Sheriff’s Office veteran Donna Carmichael has earned the prestigious designation of Certified Latent Print Examiner, according to St. Lucie County Sheriff Ken J. Mascara.

“The public has good reason to be proud of Ms. Carmichael,” said Sheriff Mascara. “She is one of less than one thousand people worldwide who is a Certified Latent Print Examiner. This certification ensures that she meets the highest level of professional standards. It also enhances the credibility of her testimony in court to connect criminals.”

The International Association for Identification, a professional association established in 1915, has conferred the Certified Latent Print Examiner designation on Ms. Carmichael.

In addition to more than 300 hours of formal training and eight years of full-time experience, Ms. Carmichael was required to pass a rigorous eight-hour written examination and a thorough review of a detailed written presentation of a criminal case by experts in the field of latent print identification.

After earning her certification, she becomes one of four Treasure Coast Certified Latent Print Examiners.

ST. LUCIE COUNTY — The St. Lucie County Library System wants to draw more attention to this destructive behavior with two presentations of the powerful documentary “Bully.”

How RAM affects what computer you buy

One of the questions that frequently pops up in conversations is whether or not you need to get the latest and greatest computer from a manufacturer. The answer is simple: it depends. If you just want to use your computer to write letters, surf the Web, check e-mail, and run Quicken or other basic software, then you may not need a top-of-the-line machine. However, if you plan to use your computer for heavy-duty tasks such as editing high-definition video, running a server, or gaming, then you will need to get a computer with the right amount of RAM.

RAM refers to the memory that is installed on your computer. The more RAM you have, the more programs you can run at the same time without any slowdowns. If you only have 1 gigabyte of RAM, for example, you may notice that your computer runs slowly when you try to open a lot of applications at once. However, if you have 8 gigabytes of RAM, you can open multiple programs and documents without any problems.

When choosing a computer, it's important to consider how much RAM you will need. If you're not sure how much to get, you can consult with a computer salesperson or do some research online to find out what amount of RAM is best for your needs.

Another factor to consider is the price. More RAM means a higher price, so you need to balance the cost of extra RAM against the benefits it will provide. You may be able to get away with less RAM if you're not planning on doing anything intense on your computer.

In the end, the decision of how much RAM to get is up to you. It's important to carefully consider your needs and budget when making this decision, so you can choose a computer that will meet your requirements without breaking the bank.

How to check e-mail and surf the Web

If you're interested in learning more about how to use your computer, there are many resources available online. You can find tutorials and guides that will help you learn how to use basic functions such as opening and closing programs, sending and receiving e-mail, and surfing the Web.

Many websites also have forums where you can ask questions and get help from other users. You can also find courses and training programs that will teach you more advanced skills such as using video editing software or creating websites.

In addition to online resources, you can also get help from a computer repair technician if you're having trouble with your computer. They can diagnose and fix problems that you may not be able to solve on your own.

In conclusion, choosing a computer that meets your needs requires careful consideration of your budget and the tasks you plan to perform. By taking the time to research and compare different options, you can find a computer that will meet your needs without breaking the bank.

Local kids receive jeans

February and March, Dosomething.org delivered 56 boxes of gently worn jeans to the Childen’s Home Society of Florida Treasure Coast Division. The boxes were split between the Youth Transition Center, a facility for homeless youth who have aged out of foster care, and WaveCREST, a runaway and truancy shelter.

The jeans were collected at the Treasure Coast Mall over the last few months.

Dosomething.org wants to mobilize youth to take on their communities’ biggest issues and felt that the jeans drive is a great way to get them involved.

If the young person donates jeans to the drive, he or she received a discount on a future purchase.

YMCA to host Healthy Kids Day on April 27

The YMCA of the Treasure Coast is celebrating YMCA’s Healthy Kids Day with a free community event that encourages kids on the Treasure Coast to get moving and learning, and families living healthier.

Healthy Kids Day, the Y’s national initiative to improve families’ health and well-being, takes place at two Treasure Coast locations, the Stuart YMCA on Bayshore Boulevard and the YMCA Program Center on Monterey Road in Port St. Lucie.

The events will be held from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. and will feature fun and active play activities, such as dance demonstrations, house tours, arts and crafts and many local kid-related informational vendors.

Many children do not get the daily recommended hours of physical activity and reading, and daily amounts of healthy foods in the United States, according to the latest findings of the Y’s Family Health Snapshot, a survey of parents that gauges their children’s activity levels during the school year — only 15 percent of children are fit and active.

Activities at the two YMCA locations will get kids moving and learning while also helping families get a jump on creating a healthier summer, and ultimately a healthier future.

Research shows that without access to out-of-school physical and learning activities, kids fall behind academically and gain weight twice as fast during summer than the school year.

On April 27, YMCA’s Healthy Kids Day will help parents begin thinking early about what their kids need in order to grow and achieve all summer long.

YMCA Healthy Kids Day will be supported locally by Sea Coast National Bank. Nationally, the event is supported by media partners Sprout and Lazy Town, currently on creating a healthier summer with the Fort Pierce Police Department.

“Each agency wants to make sure kids get the chance to learn and lead active lives,” said Elisha Stoecklin, senior program director for the YMCA of the Treasure Coast. “YMCA’s Healthy Kids Day will get kids moving and learning while also helping families get a jump on creating a healthier summer, and ultimately a healthier future.”

For more information, call the YMCAs at (772) 807-4499 for the Stuart location or (772) 807-4494 for Port St. Lucie.
