The shelter finances are paid for with donations and supplemented income from pet boarding and grooming services, and with limited space and funding to cover the costs of medical and food bills, there just isn’t always a place for new animals, she said.

Enough space opened at the shelter to accept the Persians last week and so the process to bring them to a place where they could have a better chance at life began.

The cats have all undergone the first treatment for ear mites, tapeworm and fleas, are on the road to recovery and will be available for adoption soon.

One of the cats just had a litter of three kittens, and another one is pregnant and is currently in a foster home awaiting a delivery, Ms. Petrone said.

The cats huddled together with their wide eyes searching trying to figure out their new surroundings. In one cage, three cats crammed themselves underneath a stool and could be seen panting and shaking.

“When you see a cat panting like that that means it’s stressed and it’s trying to calm itself down,” Ms. Petrone said.

Despite their poor physical condition and the shock of being whisked from their home to the shelter, the cats have held up quite well, she said. “They all seem to have a great temperament. They had to be captured in the house, put in a cage with other cats, had a 30-minute car ride, they were treated for ear mites and tapeworm — hey, I would have been feisty after all that, but they are just taking all that we give them,” Ms. Petrone said.

One of the HALO volunteers spoke softly to the new arrivals and began brushing their matted hair gently, hoping the motions would soothe and relax them, but also realizing the animals may have never been brushed before.

Caring for animals is a lifelong passion for Ms. Petrone, and that very reason is why she opened HALO nearly seven years ago.

She installed a roadside sign showing how many animals were saved because she thought the public would like to know what a difference their donations can make in the lives of animals in the county. “I did this because I love animals. I didn’t do this to be in competition with anyone. There are so many animals out there,” Ms. Petrone said.

Financial donations are always needed, as the shelter does not accept any government funding and must find other ways to stay afloat, Ms. Petrone said.

Other valuable donations are cat litter, bottled water, Pro Plan sensitive stomach food for felines and Advantage flea treatment.

HALO Rescue is located at 710 Jackson St., Sebastian. For more information, call (772) 589-7297 or visit www.halorescuefl.org.
Phyllis and Jon Turner of Vero Beach share a combo meal of frog legs and gator tail with a side of cole slaw at the 22nd annual Fellsmere Frog Leg Festival Saturday. Good food, great rides and live music helped set the mood for four days of fun at the event.

Jessie Diehl, 8, of Vero Lake Estates, gets some big air on the Euro bungy at the 22nd annual Fellsmere Frog Leg Festival Saturday in Fellsmere.

Six-year-old Mike Klann and his dad, Michael, catch a thrill on the bumper cars at the 22nd annual Fellsmere Frog Leg Festival last week. Along with great amusement rides, the annual festival offered some 2,500 pounds of gator tail and 4,000 pounds of frog legs at the four-day event.

Ways to gain control when Windows gets overwhelmed

Windows can get overwhelmed from time to time. Sometimes it just stops functioning and you can't even use it.

What people don't realize is that much of what is going on in the background is due to the windows running in the background that is confusing which particular part functions and they allow to run together harmoniously.

And I'm not talking about a few little programs or drivers, there are literally hundreds of things going on in the background at any given second and sometimes Windows can get overwhelmed.

Let's see what is going on in the background at any given moment. I'm surprised that computers are not crashing without crashing after five minutes of up time. It's astonishing.

Take a minute to look inside微笑 when you hear anyone say that they weren't doing anything and it just locked up. OK, sure, you weren't doing anything, that's fine but understand that even if you are not running programs, running background programs, the computer is still doing something running background programs, you are just sitting there, hands not moving, mouse not moving, keyboard and computer the only thing that is happening is the keyboard and mouse moving and the computer to paint whatever's on the screen 60 to 70 times per second, checking to see if it's time to switch the screen saver, listening to network or modem connections for incoming calls and messages, running programs, looking at changes, running in the hundreds. The average person is just to keep the desktop alive for you and that is a thousand Windows can sometimes have running at one time. Guess the question is what happens when it all crashes?

So how do you handle this about when it happens?

Let's say you are surfing the Internet and you click a page, the page loads and you start reading. You get to the bottom of the page and go to click somewhere else but the page is frozen. It looks like the software is hung and you can't do anything about it. What do you do? Well, the first thing you should do if you're most likely not the end of the world and usually doesn't mean that your computer is messed up. It usually means that the CPU is doing a thousand tasks at the same time and needs a "little nudge" to get it back on track.

The easiest way is to try your computer's attention back button and try a couple different things. The first is called "ESC" I'll put the "ESC" key to try to direct the machine's attention from whatever it's stuck on. Sometimes this is all it takes and sometimes not. If hitting the escape key doesn't get a response, then I'll use the "end" and "delete" key.

With one hand press the "CTRL" key and with the other hand press hold and "ALT" and with "CTRL" press "DELETE".

It's important to be pressing all three buttons simultaneously and let go of the escape button.

You may then press the "CTRL", "ALT" and "DELETE", a window should pop up that gives you the options to lock computer, log off, shutdown, change user password, open the task manager or cancel. The task manager will help you find the program that is taking up too much memory and give you the option to shut it down.

One way to make sure you see your web page in the background program you are running is often with a comment of "UNDO" or with "CTRL" and "Z".

The percentage of workers to unions has steadily declined largely because the legal and political environment prevents private-sector workers from exercising their right to join or not join a union.

Beaumont said the movie "renews our enthusiasm for the world," said Mr. Lahey, in a press release. "The footage was filmed on one of their commercial submersible vehicles of various sizes, mostly for people who use them recreationally," but the president of Triton Submarines, Patrick Lahey, hopes more organizations will see the benefit of a Triton Submarine so the machines will be used for further scientific research and education. "We need to do a better job of sharing the potential of marine environments and species with the general public and young schoolchildren. We hope to have many opportunities to work with Discovery Channel on events, including special appearances, with Triton submarines playing a role in the future of exciting marine science and exploration and further scientific research," said Lahey. The premiere of the show with the world's deepest submersible will be provided and a display of Camp Haven throughout the room. to take a significant risk, but the eventual reward will be well worth it.

SCORPIO – Oct. 24-Nov. 22
Scorpio, it may be challenging to find some initial support for a new idea because you are essentially charting new territory. Just give it time and people will come around.

SAGITTARIUS – Nov. 23-Dec. 21
Slow down a little, Sagittarius. Moving faster will not get the job done to your satisfaction and then you only will have to do it all over again. Think through your options.

CAPRICORN – Dec. 22-Jan. 20
Capricorn, shift your focus to your family for the next few days because you have to make some decisions that will affect them all. Listen to your gut feeling when making these decisions.

AQUARIUS – Jan. 21-Feb. 18
Aquarius, there are some things around the house that need your attention, but you may be having trouble finding the motivation to tackle them just now.

PISCES – Feb. 19-March 20
Pisces, when an opportunity comes your way, you may want to take a pass because something better is on the horizon.
