

Florida faces in the months and years ahead challenges greater than ever before. To meet those challenges we need experienced and capable leadership at all levels of government. We need teamwork and coordination as never before, and we need the support of all Floridians, regardless of their political persuasions, not only at election time, but as continuing partners with their government in our march toward maturity among the states. I hope that the people of Florida will begin their service as the full partners of their government tomorrow by going to the polls ~~before~~ to give us a clear and unmistakable mandate for the future, in the first test of Jeffersonian Democracy.
