Sponsored by

The Florida Citizenship Clearing House

and

Florida State University

Participating Institutions:

Florida State University
University of Florida

Florida Southern College
University of Miami
University of Tampa

Stetson University

1. Program:

The schedule of panel sessions, dinners and other events will be distributed shortly before the Conference opens. Registration will take place in Longmire Building on the FSU campus from 11:30 A.M. to 1:30 P.M., Monday, 25 April. The Conference will conclude at noon, Wednesday, 27 April.

2. Instructions to participants:

Transportation to and from Tallahassee will be provided by individual participants. The FCCCH and FSU will provide housing, linens and meals during the Conference. You must, however, bring your own towels and personal articles.

Faculty members will have responsibility for their own student groups, both en route and during the Conference.

This program has been developed cooperatively by the member institutions of the FCCCH, in order to further the Citizenship Clearing House's aim of providing "every college man and woman with a sound and realistic understanding of American politics with particular emphasis on the democratic techniques by which individual attitudes are translated into public policy."

To gain the most from this two-day session at the State Capitol, you should participate fully in the discussions. The public officials, journalists and others are taking time from their very busy schedules in order to help you to understand American politics at the state level. Take advantage of their presence!

We also encourage you to give us, either at the concluding critiques or in personal conversation, your views as to the value of this conference and ways in which the next one sponsored by the FCCCH may be improved.

For the FCCCH Executive Committee:

Marian O. Irish, Chairman,
Department of Political Science, FSU.

Franklyn A. Johnson, Director, FCCCH.
