June 2, 1994
Hey, we're almost there! The Tropical Bunch of '94 soaks up the sun while looking ahead brightly to that glorious G-day.
The summer was great. It seemed to last forever. During summer vacation, track of time and day were lost. August seemed far away and school was a distant, forgotten dream. But, as class schedules started arriving, the realization hit. School was starting again. The time to drag out the rested backpack and new school supplies was here. It was time to pack up and head back to the Tropical Medley, Balboa High School.

The Tropical Medley has been dubbed so for various reasons. First, the obvious one. It is located in a tropical climate where the dress code consists mainly of shorts, jeans, and t-shirts.

Now, what makes it a medley? Look around. BHS is full of diverse ethnic groups and cultures. There are all kinds of people here. We all interact. Some people have travelled to different parts of the world. Others simply hail from them. You never know who you might meet. It all makes for an interesting school environment.

As school began, there were mixed emotions. For many, this is their last year, while others have just begun their high school journey. There was the usual feeling of frustration and dislike towards school. But, generally there was excitement in the muggy tropical air as friends filled each other in on vacation anecdotes.

Thus, the product, the beginning of the 1993-94 school year. Another year to start fresh, make more friends, and create even more memories. With this introduction, we present you the Tropical Medley, the 1994 BHS yearbook. We hope to capture the year, through this pictorial essay, for you to remember.

Don't get near me. I'm possessed! All excited about the new school year, Addy Kinghorn is prepared to tackle the senior year she has been waiting for since kindergarten.

Men at work. Gabe Bacot, Ivan Rodriguez, and Bryan Lugo raffle out one of the various prizes that could be won at the Senior Reception.
It's hopeless. Tiffany Severson dreams of workless vacation days that are long gone.

Happy days are here again. Although school isn't an event most students look forward to, you can't help but have fun. Howard Pulsom, James Lantry, and Bryan Pierce all express this theory.

What a ham! Looking for attention, our school mascot gives the camera his best side during a football game.
Vacation gossip. Tera Boozer and Michelle Dobson talk about what they did over summer vacation while waiting for the school bus to pick them up.

Not another year! Sam Scribner sits in class wondering where vacation went, and wishing he were anywhere but school.

Senior Class Officers Show Their School Spirit: President Ivan Rodriguez, Vice President Nicole Massiff, Secretary Nayda Nieves, and Treasurer Miggy Castro.
Why do we have to start school on a Thursday? Students Beth Larrabec, Kathy Lopez and Michelle Collins wait until the last possible second before entering the building on the first day of school.

Hallway happenings ... These underclassmen hope there's no seniors around to catch them stepping on the plaque!

In the midst of the hustle & bustle ... Mrs. Monlouis, Band & chorus director, can't believe the mayhem she sees in the hallway on the first day of class.
Is it Friday yet? "Maru" Aleman asks herself the same question asked by every student who ever attended school.

And the answer is... Haydee Nunez waits for Tidel Rolon to calculate the answer and share his findings.

Get a little closer. Striking up a conversation with Jesse Berger, John Blanchette checks to see if her agenda is full for Friday night.

STUDENT LIFE
Living It the Tropical Way

Balmy breezes, radiant sunshine, palm trees swaying... the Bahamas? Jamaica? Nope. It's, our very own, Panama!

What is Student Life like in the tropics? It is eating lunch outside in the sunshine, bumming around the Breezeway with the warm breeze caressing you, and attending dances on clear, starry nights. One day you are enjoying a pleasant, relaxing nap; the next day you are getting hyped at a pep rally. It includes traveling to "the other side" for the unique annual Jamboree football game. Student Life also consists of the ever-present cramming for tests and procrastinating on assignments.

The tropical climate allows Student Life to extend beyond the school boundaries. There is always time for a trip to the beach to surf, lay out, or just hang out with buddies. Take a trip further into Panama, and explore the "interior". Go out to an island and scuba dive. Student Life in Panama is about having fun in the sun and taking advantage of the weather, without actually having to drop out of school.
QUEEN FOR A DAY

On the morning of September 3, five queens ventured over to the Atlantic side to represent the football teams who chose them. Dressed in comfortable traveling garb, Rachel Bottin, Jessica Staha, Sarah Beattie, Rachel Gomez, and Nayda Nieves gathered in the main office at BHS and were soon off in their royal van to Cristobal High School.

Following a speedy lunch upon their arrival, the queens were lead to a locker room where they prepared for their annual presentation to the entire CHS population at their Jamboree Pep Rally. The Tiger Queen, Laura Kramer, was there, already dressed and waiting. "I was kind of nervous," said Sarah Beattie, "but it wended up not being so bad. The students seemed so anxious to meet us all that I didn't really have time to get embarrassed."

After representing their teams at the Cristobal Pep Rally, the queens had a couple hours to spare until the festivities began. A quick trip back to the locker room gave the girls a chance to shed their dressy clothing and slip into something bummy. Afterwards, a trek was made up to the teacher's faculty lounge to relax their royal feet.

"I didn't really think going to a rally could be no nerve wrecking and tiring," said Nayda Nieves, "I guess being a queen is harder than I thought!"

Show time came quickly and when the queens realized what time it was, they knew they had to run down to the locker room before it became occupied by a football team. Some managed to squeeze into their gowns before a few people barged in, but the rest had to run around half ready, in search of somewhere more private to get dressed. After rushing into a JROTC room as a last resort because the door to get back into the school was locked, most of the queens were dressed. Minutes after the head of the JROTC department found out that the girls were dressing in there and had become enraged, the doors to the school and faculty lounge were opened up and the queens could continue dressing.

"All that running around, now that I think about it, is kind of funny, even though it wasn't at the moment," said Jessica Staha. "That JROTC guy was really mad at us!"

The rest of the evening was a breeze compared to that scenario. When the Jamboree Parade began, the Queens were seated on top of a truck and taken around the track. After their presentation, the queens were seated in the stadium to watch the official start of the 1993 Jamboree.

Pre-Jamboree binge! The girls enjoy a variety of treats such as chips, cookies, sodas, and even a traditional panamanian dish called ceviche.
Bad hair day? If so, it isn’t a very appropriate time for queens Jessica Staha and Rachel Gomez as they get ready for the big event.

1993 SENIOR RECEPTION

A Great Way To Heat Up For The Upcoming Year

Sunday, September 26, 1993, was the place to be for Seniors. Amador Officers' Club was where the annual Senior Reception was held. The Class of '94 came together to celebrate their newly attained Senior Status. Seniors and teachers danced to the music of DJ's Tyler Quinn and Gabe Bacot. Other activities included games of volleyball, soccer, and ultimate. 'Izzy Dizzy' was the highlight event as Senior Class President Ivan Rodriguez-Mesa provided his fellow peers with something worthy of laughter, by falling flat on his back. Raffles were held and a memorable event was the performance by Mrs. Sosa, Mrs. Alvarado, and Mr. Waugh dancing to 'their music' and showing the crowd hidden talent. "I had a really good time just hanging out with everyone," said Senior Kari Syrdahl. Senior Class Vice-President Nicole Nassiff agreed, "The Senior Reception was the perfect event to initiate our senior year." In the end, the reception party resulted in a great success. It was surprisingly more fun and enjoyable than most seniors had anticipated. Gabe Bacot summed it up best by saying, "I thought it was going to suck, but it turned out to be really cool and memorable."

Story by Kari Syrdahl and Michelle Rangel

What am I doing here? Tony Usera is deep in thought as he walks outside the Amador Officers' Club.

'They, look down there.' Vanessa Hernandez points something out to her peers who all react differently.

Plotting something? Ms. Manchester, Mrs. Webley, Mr. Anderson, Mrs. Alvarado, and Mr. Whiter look guilty.

Students And Teachers Show Spirit

Halloween '93 was celebrated at BHS with the annual Halloween Costume contest and classroom door competition. Mrs. Company's Senior English class won the door decoration contest. Her creative students made a cave complete with haunting music and dry ice going as students entered her room. The costume contest was held during lunch outside the main building. Students and faculty paraded around the monument while the judges viewed the costumes. Each costume was judged on the basis of creativity, originality, and special effects. First place was won by Andrea Alvarado for her outstanding MIME act. Second place was earned by Torre McDade for his female impersonation "Towanda". Tony Worthington took third place for his Dracula costume and make-up. The students each won CASH awarded by the Student Association and the Door contest winner won a pizza party also paid for by the S.A.

Many faculty members participated in the fun as well. Mrs. Corbett won an honorable mention for her excellent portrayal of her daughter, Ginger. She wore some of Ginger's clothes, shoes and carried her guitar. Mr. Waugh came to school dressed as a Genie, but he looked like an old Aladdin instead! Mrs. Sosa, Ms. Hans, Mrs. Fisher, Mr. Fendrich, and Mr. Waugh dressed as STRESS pumpkins. Other costumes worthy of note, but not cash winners were the "MARX SISTERS", the clowns, belly-dancer and animal acts. As usual, this Friday before Halloween was kicked off by fun and frolic in the halls at BHS.

It's Lassie, it's Benji, no wait-it's Beethoven! Mr. Koechlein fools us all with his clever disguise on Halloween.

Jack is back-bigger and better than before! Coming to us from Mr. Koechlein's pumpkin patch, this huge fruit was one way to express the Halloween spirit.
Just clowning around! Brent Smiley maintains his balance while showing off his juggling talent.

Peekaboo, guess who? After performing her mime routine, Andrea Alvarado earned herself the first place prize in the contest.
The Balboa High School Health Fair was held on Friday, October 28, in the BHS gym. Demonstrations and displays were offered at the various booths showing the many aspects of health awareness. Guest speakers were also invited to attend and educate the students through lectures and visual displays. These included members of the Military Police, alcohol and drug prevention groups, a dermatologist, and the Bonlac Dairy Company. This group offered samples of their products. Other guests included the dance team, weightlifters, gymnastic routines, computer and CPR demonstrations.

PRIDE distributed questionnaires and gave some students the chance to throw a pie at their favorite teacher in exchange for a correct questionnaire. The Ecology club awarded a t-shirt for those who answered the questionnaire correctly. Medical and Dental check-ups were offered. BHS students in Health, Physical Education, Psychology and Science classes were invited to attend the Health Fair. Many students commented that this year's fair was a very successful educational experience.
Varsity Football Teams Heat Up The End Of The Season

Down, Set, hut! It was November 12, 1993. The last two football games of the season. The Curundu Cougars went head to head with the PCC Green Devils in the first game, while the Balboa Red Machine faced their Balboa counterparts, the Bulldogs, in the later game. Both games were long anticipated and in the end victory was sweet for two teams, and losing was agony for the other two. In the Cougars-Devils battle, many people were expecting a close match: "It'll be a close game, because the Cougars have been practicing hard, but so have we," Wilbur Reese, Devils TB commented before the game.

The final outcome was a 27-14 romp by the Devils. It was the Red-Bulldogs game that made the night a memorable one. A deadlock made the game go into triple action overtime where Red prevailed by only one point.

This year, BHS students went all out on decorating for the Homecoming Floats. However there could only be one winner and first place went to the Juniors. Clockwise, from top, Sophomore float, Junior Float, and the Senior Float.

Reaching for the sky. Bulldog cheerleader Michelle Tirado piles up the "Frequent Flyer" miles as she soars in the "basket toss".

Don't let him get away! Cougar running back Joe Shaha battles for tough yardage against swarming Green Devil defenders.

The catch! Red Machine wide-out Efrain Sanchez goes high over the Bulldog double-coverage to tie the Homecoming Game.
The Homecoming Court and coronation of the King and Queen are one of the highlights of the event. This year Billy Wing and Nayda Nieves were crowned Homecoming King and Queen. The coronation took place during the Homecoming Dance at the Albrook Officer's Club, the night after the Homecoming Football Game.

Senior Prince and Princess Robert Reyes and Miggy Castro.

Who would ever think of their parents going "back to school"? Yet that is exactly what parents did on September 8, 1993. Teachers prepared to inform parents about BHS in their 5-10 minute classes. Having no homework, parents didn't skip and paid great attention in class, just like their kids would-(yeah, right!). For lunch, parents were overwhelmed with goodies in the library such as donuts and coffee. Some even stopped to buy yearbooks and books on the history of the Panama Canal School system.

But, whatever happened to the parents that unfortunately found themselves stranded and hopelessly lost? Thank goodness NHS members were stationed throughout the halls making sure confused parents could find their way to "higher education".

"Although what we did most of the night was stand around and talk to one another, it was nice to go about helping parents find their way around our school", NHS Senior Ana Sherry said. Afterwards some parents, teachers, and students stayed around talking and predicting the new school year. Senior Michelle Kuo summed up the night with her comment: "Hopefully, my last year will be the most fun and memorable one of my high school years."

"Smile, here comes my Mom!" exclaims NHS member and Senior Jennifer Pownall as she works on the halls with fellow NHS member Jessica Penkoske on "Back to School night".

Introducing the textbook. French teacher, Mrs. Roa, goes over her course curriculum with parents during her short 10 minute period on "Back to School Night".
Welcome back Class of ’94! The huge banner, made by the Senior Class officers, welcomed back many students as well as their parents on "Back to School Night."

No cheating! As one parent glances at another's paper, Mrs. Seitz debates on what else she should inform her "students."

Getting back to Shakespeare. A.P. English parents try hard not to fall asleep in their "night-time" 1st period class.

It's midnight and you just finished watching your favorite television show. You decide that it's a good time to start your homework. Right when you are almost done, you remember you have a major test. You panic and look at the clock. It is already 1:45 am and you're finally beginning to get sleepy.

You start cramming for your test and after an hour of studying, you decide to call it quits. You hope to get around three hours of sleep before having to get to school. It feels like only three minutes ago that you fell asleep when your mom rudely awakes you. You get to school, but don't quite remember how. You're in class and can't make any sense of what the teacher is saying. You are fighting to keep your eyes open, but they're winning the battle. Everything starts to sound far away, and before you know it the ringing of the bell awakes you. Test time comes around and you are too tired to concentrate on anything but sleeping.

At last school comes to an end! You arrive at home, but amazingly aren't tired any longer. Does this sound familiar? Kind of like deja vous? Of course! This is the life story of most students at BHS.

By: Jenilee Szymanski

A few minutes of sleep can do wonders for the mind. "Work" can sure wear one out. Shannon Holmes stretches in a corner to sleep the period away.

Midnight exhaustion! After staying up all hours to work on yearbook, Monique Carbonell finally falls asleep at school in the cozy Yearbook room.

I'm so tired, I don't care where I sleep. Junior "Pipo" Lopez needs to recharge his energy and finds the floor is a good place to rest.

ZZZ ... ZZ Billy Wing doesn't need to say much more as his body takes to the carpeted floor to rest his "wondering" mind.

A tiresome adventure. After a long BHS journey through the jungle at Barro Colorado, Audrey Ernest decides to relax for the rest of the boatride.
For some people, a locker isn’t just a place to dump your books. It is a reflection of your personality. As the year progresses, the collection of paraphernalia grows. There are more pictures to put up, more books to store, and tons of paper to put away. A locker may not be grand in size, but, miraculously, it holds it all. Not only does it hold, it seems to swallow your stuff. Why is it that the day you need a book or homework, you can’t find it? You know you put it in your locker. It should be in there — somewhere.

The amount of days until school is out dwindles down, then the day arrives — locker clean-out day. All the belongings must go. As you take down each picture, you recall the moments spent in the past year. Little by little, the locker is stripped of its life. Suddenly, all your lost belongings turn up. All the homework you ever needed, but never got a hold of, materialize in the form of a stack below everything you didn’t need.

Finally, it remains empty. It marks the closing of another school year survived — and the arrival of vacation!
Top 10 Things Found In A Locker

1. A collection of over-due books.
2. Last week’s half-eaten lunch.
3. Part of your ex’s belongings.
4. Most of your current flame’s belongings.
5. Pictures of everyone and their mothers.
6. Books...and more books.
7. Mirrors of all shapes and sizes.
8. A shelf thing-a-majiggy.
9. Cool scribbles made during boring lectures.
10. Cockroaches...?

WE'VE TAKEN IN THE SUN . . .

...And Overcome The Obstacles In The Tropics

The future of rock n' roll. Jammin' at one of the BHS trips, Michael Chase is in deep concentration as he practices guitar.

Weird science. Sometimes you can make the world go round and round as Ben Smith demonstrates by turning the globe.

You see, you have to pick your teeth like this... Michael Fisher and David Choi exchange a few words before heading to their next class.
Where's Nayda? The Senior Class officers (minus one) put their heads "together" throughout the year to plan Senior events such as the receptions, homecoming themes, and graduation.

Whose hose are those? Must we guess? It's none other than Missy Davis not wanting to be noticed . . . just wanting to be ignored . . .?

Big bow-bows! Seniors Juan Acevedo and Bernie Santana clown around sporting "big bows" that were used for decorating the halls at Christmas.
BHS HAPPENINGS
A Glimpse At How Students Get Over The Heat

Oh brother...they found me! Having been discovered from her hiding place, Lisa Rojas doesn't give more than a secretive smile.

Listen here girlfriend! Shenvone Ward and Natasha Banks have a nice ‘quiet’ discussion in the hallway as they sort out a problem.

Catching air! William Hinkle performs a move on his skateboard at Goethals fountain where he and the rest of the group hang out.

Don't tell me that! Amanda Robbins shows an expression of disbelief as she is told some unexpected news.

So guys, where's the ball go? Bruce Chastain, Robert George, Arnold Ferguson, and Efrain Sanchez try to stily play off the fact that they have lost the volleyball.

Raise your hand if you're sure! Thamara Caballero gets into the senior spirit with a shout of joy while Kenny Smith looks on.

Where is everyone? Derek Rowley wonders if the band’s Christmas concert has started without him.
ALL GOOFED UP!

The Tropical Climate Gets To The Students

The horrific twosome! Expressing their 'other' faces. Miggy Castro and Christine Lively show their true colors.

Uhhhhhh ... don't tell me-the Venus fly trap? The stress finally gets to Tyler Quinn as he tries to escape the SENIORITIS syndrome by exercising his facial muscles.

Cursed! The senior year has finally taken its toll on Amanda Spurlock. With all the schoolwork and activities that go on, one can't help but make a face.

"There's something in my eye" "there's something in my mouth" Feeling a bit irritated, Mike Drennan and James Lantry don't disguise their discomfort.
The last year. The Class of '94, the seniors, the upperclassmen—all on the last journey. After working and toiling for years, relief runs through the veins of the seniors. There is a preconceived notion that "the last year" is a breeze and will fly by. But this, as many know, is not always true. During the course of the 12th grade, many students seem to be struck with a sudden disease—SENIORITIS. The symptoms include: lack of interest in classes, absolutely no desire to do any homework, not caring about grades, and basically saying, "Forget it!" to anything related with school. Then, there are those who tend to go the other way and stress about everything, and burn out. The ones in between these extremes find this year is no different to any other, take everything in stride, and move on. Either way, there's one general goal in common—getting that diploma and getting out!

The friends made and things experienced will provide memories to take along with them as they move on to create new lives. The Class of '94 will not soon forget their last days in the sun as they leave the warm climate of the Tropical Medley.

Organizing activities is the job of the Student Association. The BHS S.A. is responsible for most of the fall activities which revolve around the Varsity Football schedule. From planning the Jamboree and Homecoming Pep Rallies for the student body during the school day, to running the Homecoming court election, parade and dance, the S.A. is busy right at the beginning of the school year. Another vital function of the S.A. is to run the school store during lunch. The "S.A. store" provides an income to individual groups at BHS who need to raise funds for their activities. At the helm of all this planning is the S.A. Sponsor, Mr. Darren Dean. He holds weekly early morning meetings with the S.A. officers to keep things running smoothly.

Still Bearing the Heat

Hmmm...the 11th grader...the one who can not yet use the excuse of SENIORITIS and get away with it. The one who still has to put up with stress and look forward to more. They are bordering upperclassmanship, yet, they are still underclassmen. Juniors can't act naive and get away with it anymore like sophomores can; they've already been here a year; yet, unlike a senior they cannot step on the plaque and roam the school with a ruling air about them. Depressing? Not quite. Juniors are almost there. Right now is when memories are being gathered and serious thoughts about college are being focused. For many Juniors, this is one of the best years of high school. Who knows where they'll be headed in the future. Only they can decide and it is something they'll have to contemplate sooner or later. But hey, they've still got one more year!

Sophomores Making It Through the Medley

Where am I? Where am I supposed to be? I wish I was somewhere else! Well, I might as well face it. I am now a high school student. Do I look like a little kid? Can the seniors and juniors tell I'm only a sophomore? The seniors and juniors, a new group of people to get used to. It does have its pros and cons. At least there are lots of potential new friends.

Then again, "Hey, watch it!" "Clean the plaque!"

I look up to find myself face to face with a group of seemingly older kids. I look down and, much to my dismay, I am stepping on the plaque. Unfortunately, for sophomores and juniors, it is a tradition that if a senior spots an underclassmen on the plaque, they can make the underclassmen polish it. Yes, this is a major ploy.

Well, at least I can look forward to all the new clubs and sports to join. It's almost like starting from scratch. That feels good.

My first class, here goes nothing. All I can hope for is a successful year making it through the medley.

Studious Sophomores . . . At first glance, the idea is one of a normal class environment. But a second look reveals extra-curricular activities which don't include studying.

You found something interesting? Vanessa Sanchez and Jeanelly Phillips actually found something entertaining in one of their text books. The rest of us, however, still haven't experienced this educational phenomenon.
There's much more to the BHS faculty than just teaching! Our faculty prides themselves in their extra-curricular and community involvement. Many teachers have hobbies after school which include golfing, diving, and lots of other sports, as well as theatre, travelling, ethnic dancing, educational fraternities, and music.

Because of this, BHS teachers make learning in the classroom more fun. Our faculty supports the student activities by sponsoring clubs, tutoring, chaperoning dances, coaching, and taking students on wild field trips—sometimes deep into the tropical jungle and waters of Panama.

This year, teachers embarked on a new field—"action research". This most commonly known as "SIP". They spend one period a day working on school improvement and studying about how to be less stressed out at the end of the day even though some students are tardy and absent a lot!

Our teachers are the best and they deserve a lot more credit than most of the students give them... After all, we want to GRADUATE, right?

o who exactly is at the top of it all? Who keeps the school running? Many of us do not know and some of us don’t seem to even care. However, we should give credit where credit is due. The “Head Honchos” at BHS aka Mr. Holland, Mr. Anderson, and Mrs. Hunt, continue to smooth out all the “rough” problems that occur at the high school. Besides having to handle all the paperwork and make appropriate decisions affecting the school, they also have to deal with us, the student body. Maintaining a stable environment for the students isn’t easy. As we all know, there are many different kinds of people with different opinions and cultures and it’s hard to please everyone. They’ve accomplished a lot this year and BHS is going strong. That’s why our administrators are at the top of the medley.

TROPIC TIME TRACKS
Mr. Chen Sophomore Class Sponsor

"Mister Cheen" is the Sophomore Class sponsor and one of the Industrial Career teachers. He is known for gossiping with students and always having to "tell you sonteen." If you're ever crossing the street to go visit him, cross "where you get sonteen... don't cross where you get noteen." That refers to the rare occurrence in which you'd get hit by a car for not using the crosswalk. That is very good advice—but what do you expect from a Drivers Ed teacher?

Mrs. Company Junior Class Sponsor

Mrs. Company, came to BHS last year from Texas and has only been here for two years. She has been involved in many things such as sponsoring the Lettermen's Club and the Junior Class which includes handling class rings and Prom. Mrs. Company also came down with a teaching technique new to most English classes—that is the use of computers to improve writing skills. Thanks to teachers like her, BHS students can enhance their computer skills in English.

Mr. Waugh Senior Class Sponsor

Genie? Arab? Hippie?... Track star? The last one is probably closest to the truth. Mr. Kenneth Waugh has been the Senior Class Sponsor for quite a while now. This job can cause a lot of stress; enough to make one take up jogging around the track. Not only does he enjoy jogging, he also coaches the BHS Bulldog track team. He teaches Economics, U.S. Government and always helps out at many school events. No wonder the Seniors love him!
If this computer doesn’t do it, I don’t know what will. Jackie Weeks concentrates on the computer screen, trying to finish a project.

Maybe I’ll get extra-credit points for tidying the sand. Morgan Seppy watches Michael Fisher use one of the unique physics devices.

That’s why it didn’t work! Johanna Tate makes some calculations while her partner Carrie Corona begins the next project.

Academics are indeed an integral part of any school. This is usually the least desired part of the school year. It involves too much thinking and analyzing in the time of life when one prefers to sit back and relax. Well, this is true for most students. Maybe it is because academics are a requirement and, being the “rebels” teenagers are supposed to be, anything required is “least desired.”

Academics have been instilled in every student’s mind since pre-school. From learning the ABC’s to basic mathematics, academics give us knowledge of the world around us. Without academics, we wouldn’t know that the planets revolve around the sun, that plants produce their own food, or that $y = 5x + 3$ is a linear equation. So, it is obvious that academics are what makes us educated and civilized.

Perhaps it’s homework that makes us dislike academics the most. Sure, homework helps us, but who wants to take work home? Then again, it could be those reports we are constantly being assigned. Whatever the case, it is all part of the learning process we must all go through. Eventually, we will be grateful for all the knowledge we attained through academics.

"Thallans" Physics Students' Stress

Physics is one of the most rigorous of the Extended classes offered at BHS. Students who enroll in this course know that they will be spending long hours after school in the lab working on assignments, creating catapults, building rockets, bridges, and whatever else Mr. Thale can come up with to challenge them. What career field will use the Physics skills learned this year? NASA rocket scientists, Engineers, Architects, Chemists, Aeronautics, to name but a few. Maybe one of these "Stressed-out Thalleans" will put their BHS Physics skills to good use and become famous!

Sometimes I just want to cry!, exclaims Monique Carbonell when asked how her Physics class is going. Other students would like to see Mr. Thale retire soon.

Truthfully. BHS students know that their work is tougher than most classes require. I know at the end of my senior year I'll be sorry to leave Physics", comments Billy Wing. One of the most memorable projects is the Rocket launch. The launch will occur after the yearbook is laid to rest. Balboa Elementary students work with BHS Physics students to build the fastest, highest-flying rockets. This is a popular event at both schools because students get to attend during the school day in the BHS stadium.

So, if you like hard work, computers, calculators, weights and rulers, enroll in PHYSICS!

Students Hit The Books

Last minute studying is an art at Balboa High School. It seems like assignments, tests, and papers are always due on the same dates. This forces kids to procrastinate on many "due" dates. Most kids will juggle the completion of these assignments by doing some and not others until the last possible second. Thus, "Cramming" begins! This "art" isn't unusual to any school.

You can always hear kids in the hallways talking about how late they stayed up to cram for a test. They didn't have "time" to study before the night before! Of course, there are those who do know how to balance their schedules and use their notebooks to their advantage and keep up with "due" dates. These students have a lot less stress!

This year with so many after school activities to choose from, it's easy to see why BHS students learn to cram on assignments early on in the year. It doesn't matter whether you are on the Honor Roll or not; you can still get caught at the last minute if you're staying late after school for a sport, club activity, or trying to meet a deadline for the newspaper or yearbook!

Let's face it, even after high school, students will continue to wait until the last minute to get their work done! Hopefully, they'll have learned a little from high school and not wait until the night before to write a paper!

HOT COURSES

Classes That Cause Sweat

AP English, AP Spanish, AP Calculus, Extended Physiology, Extended Physics, Extended Government, Extended U.S. History, Extended Analysis... can you think of any more rigorous courses for BHS students to be in? Well, these are the classes students dread because of the work load and challenge they present each semester.

Many students work together on group projects for some of these advanced classes, but most of the assignments are done individually. When you are taking more than one advanced class, life can get a little hairy. It always seems like the ‘tough’ courses require extra written assignments, oral reports, lab work, journals, research papers and all these assignments are due at the same time. There is some consolation in the fact that students pull together to help one another on many assignments. That helps ease the burden when the final crunch comes.

Most students take these courses because they want the quality points afforded for being in an AP or Extended class. Many don’t realize that those quality points aren’t easy to earn. Lots of BHS students sign up each semester for more than one ‘tough’ class and end up dropping out because the work becomes too stressful. At least kids get the chance to try and find out just what subjects they are really interested in.

Whoosh! Physics students take over the rocket launch. Balboa elementary students joined them once again to experience the phenomenon. (Photo by J. Staha)

Did I calculate this correctly? More physics? Well, when it comes to extended Physics things become even more complicated. Jerome Price was one of the many students who took on this challenge. (Photo by D. White)

S-T-R-E-S-S!! Such a common word heard practically everywhere at BHS. Teachers Mrs. Sosa, Mrs. Fisher, Mr. Mendrick and Mr. Waugh let the whole world know what they feel during Halloween. This definitely comes with an A.P. course package.

What does everyone find so hard about Calculus? Chris Corrigan looks over his notes once more before putting them away. Although this class was offered last year too, this year the A.P. advantage was automatically included. (Photo by J. Staha)
Cartoon manial For the month of March-Art month, the Art club expressed itself through their artistic abilities on one of the school's monuments.

Creating masterpieces Trevor Huddleston and Rebecca heard find themselves back stage doing the 'tedious' work for the up coming BHS performance.

Far out and yonder Members of the Biological Honor Society observe the nature around Gatun lake on one of their many trips throughout the year.

It is the natural tendency of humans to group together. This is true of the BHS Tropic Medley. Common interests get people together. That is what clubs are all about. Clubs do several things throughout the year. Money needs to be raised, so it is not unusual to be bombarded with cupcakes, cakes, cookies, and other baked goods to buy during the week. Other clubs get more creative and sell pizzas or candygrams. The Computer Club has a love survey every year around Valentine's and sells the results.

Besides fundraisers, there are also field trips and charity drives. French Club members take field trips to French restaurants and the French Embassy. The National Honor Society holds a Toy Drive collecting toys for the poor during Christmas. The Ecology Club recycles the school's waste paper. Biological Honor Society members can be found hiking all over Panama and working in the BHS greenhouse.

Part of the fun of being in a club is being with people who are into the same things. Many friendships find a start here and a myriad of memories are made. Being in a club can lead to doing new things and having different experiences. Involvement with clubs is as educational as it is rewarding. It is also a kind of preparation for college and the real world. Knowing how to deal with other people is a useful skill.

New club members are encouraged and welcomed. The Tropic Tribes of BHS offer a variety of learning and sharing opportunities combined with fun. So, if you haven't joined a club this year think about what you're missing and join next year.

tress. There's nothing else quite like it when it comes to working on the yearbook. Layouts need to be drawn, stories need to be written and captions have to be thought up on the spur of the moment. Photography is a big part of yearbook, too. Only a few BHS students take photos for the staff to choose from and even a smaller number actually work in the darkroom to develop and print pictures. It always seems like we'll never have enough GOOD photos to use in our layouts. The students you see pictured on these pages are responsible for your '94 ZONIAN. They drew layouts, printed stories and indexed all the names, designed and planned the entire 200 pages, cover to cover! Unless you have ever tried to write an article or identify a group for a picture, you can't imagine the task-commitment it takes to work on a yearbook staff. Many students start out on the staff at the beginning of each school year, but only the serious, dedicated few endure the task! The bulk of this work is accomplished after school and on the weekends. This year's small group even spent a Sat. night after the Carnivalito Dance in the yearbook room trying to meet a deadline! That's the kind of dedication it takes to produce a top-notch book. I hope you will be as proud of their work as I am! Mrs. Bales

Dreaming of the end to yearbook production. Franz Kuo doesn't realize he is captured forever on film while he tries to get a good night's sleep in the yearbook room.
A major problem all clubs go through is how to finance their activities. The remedy to this problem is fund raising. Dedicated members give up a few of their after school hours to bake some goodies. These dedicated members also give up their lunch hour to sell in the S.A. store, the breeze way, or anywhere willing buyers can be found. Fund raising went through an all time low when the new McDonalds opened, since it was in walking distance from the high school. Many students could be found at McDonalds for the first few weeks; but after the thrill of a new place to eat lunch wore off, fund raisers went back into business.

By J. Szymanski

No hum! Another day, another $40.00. Although most of David Goodno's lunch hour is spent selling yearbooks, this is a good example of what dedication is all about!

Oops! A little too much mustard! Jahaira Mon- tahvo helps support ROTC at a football game. The concession stand is a great club fund-raiser.

S.A. store business strives to make profit. Although the ever-popular S.A. store is constantly raising money for different clubs, it is always a hit. Here Michelle Collins gives her lunch hour to sell for a school club.
Sing a little song! As they stand in correct chorus position, N. Yano and K. Nakagawa do their best to project their voices.

Stretch! Doing her duties, N. Paulsrud works backstage to complete the scenery for the BUS fall play, "The Mouse That Roared."

Yummy-a munchie! As Tony Decerega slowly bites into a brownie at one of the Close-Up meetings, Heather Thompson suddenly wishes she hadn’t given him the last one.

I’m so thirsty! Jessica Penkoske indulges in a nice cold drink of water while Morgan Seppey urges her not to finish it [the BUS hike isn’t done yet!]

Now, what else do I write down? Shauna Sears ponders on any more ideas that could contribute to the computer club.

Santa’s helper. Spreading Christmas spirit, Bonnie Kemp helps out for Peer Helping at the Balboa Elementary School.
Yikes! The sand is ready for the impact of Bruce Chastain’s landing in the running long jump.

Jamboree Victory. Robert Reyes, Lance Von Hollen, Coach Bales, Robbie Garcia, and Brian Rowley display their Cougar Pride by holding up the Jamboree trophy after their victory.

Look, two hands and four legs! Red Machine cheerleader Julie Matthews sits on Wendy Winiker during a dance routine at the Homecoming Pep Rally.

SPORTS
Hot Action in the Tropics

Wham! Slam! Bang! Another year of sizzling sports stories officially begins with the Jamboree kick-off. As the school year progresses, the record book continues to accumulate the touchdowns, slam-dunks, set points, homeruns, spikes, goals, and track records. The road trips to Cristobal to face the Tigers are a sports season requirement and provide more excitement.

The tropics offers two seasons to play in — rainy and dry. These aren’t exactly the best seasons, either you are soaked and muddy or frying and dehydrating. Sports continue to take place, nonetheless, as the teams toil and practice to battle the competition. Despite the fact that there are four teams for one school, team spirit is not difficult to come by.

From football to volleyball, BMS students can attend or play sports all year long. Whether you are an outdoor or indoor sports fan, there’s something here for everyone.

For those who are into something different, the tropics have several other options. Surfing, scuba diving, sailing, hang gliding, hiking, biking, and jet-skiing are just a few. Those who haven’t yet found a sport, a sport will eventually find you.
FOOTBALL FEVER

Students Take The Gridiron

Breaking Loose. Tiawan Hopkins finds room to roam against the Cougar defensive front.

Pound it out! Red Machine full-back H.B. Twohy hammers it up inside versus tough Bulldog resistance.
In The Spirit!

Cheerleading is a SPORT! If you attended any of the Varsity Football games this year you saw some great cheers and terrific athleticism among the 4 squads. Each team consists of 8 girls who must have great voice projection, flexibility and an enthusiastic spirit. Many squads attend cheerleading camps during the summer to learn new cheers and new stunts. BHS students, as well as students from PCC and CuJHS make up the Varsity squads.

Sponsor Spirit! Cheerleading Sponsors Tracy Ferguson and Kelly Kirby along with Cougar Pep Club Sponsor, Wanda Carde perform a spirit-filled pyramid in support of their teams.

A slight controversy? Curundu Cougar and Green Devils cheerleaders express "their side" with artistic banners. These banners were very time-consuming to make.

FAST TRACKS
Track And Field Heats Up

Pow! As the gunfire explodes into the air, you take off as fast as your sore feet can take you. You know this is the last game of the season, and the pressure is on for you to bring your team to number one. All you have to do is win. Your team members did their part. Now it’s your turn to do yours. As you feel the air speed past you, the environment around you feels like a vacuum. You see the finish line approaching up ahead and you slightly lose speed. However, you force yourself to the end, with the others slowing behind you. You pass the line with one last effort and start to slow down with a smile as you catch your breath. Your destiny is now complete as victory is yours.

Approaching the finish line, BUS student Qiana Daniel fights to finish the hurdle race against two CuJHS students. Daniel is in the middle.

Swing that thing! With fancy body language, Walter Fernandez uses what’s left of his daily strength to strike the ball to the opponent.

Aim High. Richard Nolan prepares to serve the ball over the net with dynamic power. Sometimes a serve can be the most crucial part in winning a tennis match.

FRIENDS
The ones that cheer you up when you’re down. The ones you have fun with just hangin' around. There's a bond between you that is very tight. There's a bond between you that can't be broken cause of a stupid fight. The bond will stay tight from the good times you've had, because the bond is special. You've endured the rough times and the bad, after graduation you'll go your separate ways. Because of the bond, your friendship will stay tight through the days. You'll meet once again on some other special day, and the friendship will still be there. Cause the bond will not change.

Much Love and God Bless.
Lisa, Anyse, & Nayda

Thanks to our family and friends for all your love and support.

We’re best of friends who trust each other so much, We’re happiest within the range of each other’s touch. The good times we’ve had together outweigh the bad, The feelings for each other are unlike feelings we’ve ever had, When things go wrong, our love will pull us through. To make things go right, we’ll do whatever we have to do, We care about each other so much, which we should never forget, Because the feelings we have for each other some people never get.

Thanks to our family and friends for all of your love and support through our High School years. Take care and God Bless. Much love, Anyse & Peter Congratulations Christine!

Audra Anyse

The rainbow is made of six colors. The colors are purple, red, orange, yellow, green, and blue. Purple denotes royalty and queenliness. Red is power and strength. Orange is fiery and unusual. Yellow is brilliant and radiant. Green is lush and can be expensive. Blue denotes softness and tranquility. Like the rainbow, Anyse has brought into our lives a beauty that is all encompassing. Among other things, she has brought joy, challenge, radiance, and happiness into our family for the past 17 years. God gave the world the rainbow as a promise of a bright future. Anyse symbolizes a rainbow in our family. Here is to our rainbow, may our Lord Jesus shower her with much joy, happiness, and many wonderful challenges.

May our Lord Jesus continue to shower you with His many blessings. Dios te bendiga! Love you mucho! Mom, Dad, Tammie, Alan, and your Grandparents. John 15: 1-17 Philippians 4: 6-7

You watched me metamorphose right before your eyes. You heard me sing my praises to our Lord up in the skies. You saw me contemplating the rainforest in the breeze, you heard my laughter echo down the halls and 'round the trees. You listened to my worries, my concerns, my needs, my fears, you were there to hold me close and wipe away my painful tears. You smiled and acted proudly all the times I did succeed; and when I tried, but missed the mark, you understood indeed. You saw the beauty in me even though the world was blind, you looked beyond the obvious what mattered was my mind. Tiny drops from each of you have made me who I am, I thank the Lord above for you and all His love, Amen.
Travelling the curious and intriguing roads through life with you, Oh, what a journey it indeed has been. Soon you must leave and journey forth, miss you we dearly will. But the pride and happiness in our hearts to have journeyed through life with you, and to watch you travel on. Tremendous is the love for you within our hearts!

Love, Mom, Dad, and of course, Pook
Congratulations Lance!!!

In what seems a very short period of time you have grown from a robust little boy full of energy to a vibrant young man with the heart of a lion. As you seek additional challenges and set new goals for your future, remember to maintain your priorities--God, family, country.

CONGRATULATIONS ADRIAN

We are proud of the person you have grown up to be

You were brought into this world a beautiful little boy born to love who would one day grow up to be a confident young man full of love. We tried to teach you important values and morals. We tried to show you how to be strong, honest and gentle. We tried to explain to you why you need to set and achieve your own goals. We tried to show you the importance of being independent and confident. We tried to express the need to reach out to people. We tried to demonstrate the extreme importance of family and we tried everyday to set an example that you could look up to, though we are sure that we failed to do this at times. But one thing that we have always done and will continue to do forever is to be very proud of you and to appreciate, support, and love you and to be there for you whenever you need us, our #1 son.

POST #3822
“There are those who pass like ships in the night. Who meet for a moment, then sail out of sight with never a backwards glance of regret, folks we know briefly then quickly forget. Then there are friends who sail together through quiet waters and stormy weather helping each other through joy and through strife. And they are the kind who give meaning to life.”

COLOPHON

Vol. 85 of the ZONIAN was printed by Jostens Printing and Publishing Division at their Visalia, California plant. The Jostens Representatives were Rueben Cruz and Floyd Moore. The plant Consultant was Gil Quesada. The trim size of the book is 8.5 x 11. The book contains 200 pages, which are Smythe Sewn. The stock is 80# 191 gloss paper, printed in black ink. The primary typeface used throughout the book is Benguiat Book. The cover is an original design by Michelle Kuo. It is custom screened. The book is white with applied colors of magenta, teal, and yellow. The endsheets are printed with original artwork in black ink. Portrait work was provided by New Age Photography. The tuxes were provided by the Pacific Theatre Arts Centre. The candid shots were taken by student and faculty photographers, most of which were developed and printed in the BHS darkroom. The 1994 ZONIAN had a run of 400 copies. These copies sold for an advance price of $40.00. A current events tip-in from Jostens was also included. The book cost approximately $23,000. This figure includes photographic expenditures. The yearbook staff consisted of 9 people: 5 students who drew and designed the layouts, 3 photographers, and one adult sponsor.

The year is practically over. Teachers are jotting down our final grades, janitors sweep the halls, and we, the student body are ready to bust out of the school’s doors with new energy as the summer commences.

For most of the students, high school isn’t over yet. These underclassmen must come back to survive yet another one or two years. However for the rest of the clan, the seniors, their days in the sun are done, and awaiting them is a future unlike any other. Like senior class president Ivan Rodriguez has been famous for saying, it is “about that time again.”

This time is a time to say goodbye. However don’t forget that it is also a time to welcome new experiences. These are the days to rememer and the memories are countless for many BHS students.

O.K...okay. It’s time to drop the sentimental stuff and focus on what’s ahead. VACATION - Hawaii? Bahamas? No, maybe even a trip to Europe and a new love! But whatever the summer may bring, the memories gained will forever remain...and enough reminding you about the days you’ll miss. It’s summer time—I’m off to Jamaica - So See Ya!

Over At Last! Senior Tatiana Llach basks in the sun and looks ahead to the future. Most seniors share Tatiana’s sentiment in having completed High School.
Deep thought... Anabel Gundin gives a knowing look that school is soon to be over, and high school days gone forever. (Photo by D. White)

The BHS ghost-can you see it? Although this 'myth' has yet to be proven, the story was enough to keep yearbook staff members on their toes each night before leaving the building.

Are you fooling me? Deron Brooks looks astounded with Shawn Scott peering over his shoulder as someone states that there are 55 school days left.

Senior Daze. Reflecting upon the calm atmosphere, Seniors enjoy the outdoors during the CTBS week. While the underclassmen were taking tests, Seniors were picnicking at the Amador causeway.
So this is it. The last day, and our tedious task is finally over. It was rough and demanding; even more so as the days went by and the deadlines piled up on us. Though it wasn’t an easy job, we finally accomplished it through the grace of God and the guidance of Mrs. Bales. Every school year is a year to remember. This year however, is special to us because it is our last together. We want the memories to last, so we hope this book captured the year as you lived it. Thanks for sharing these four years with us. People come and go and places change, but we’ll always remember our Tropical Medley. May it bring you as many tears of happiness as it has brought us now that it’s over. And to the Class of ’94, may all your goals be reached and may the sun always shine on you.

-Nonian ’94 Editors, M.K. and J.S.
Somali forces release wounded American helicopter pilot Michael Durant in October after a disastrous U.N. raid results in the deaths of 18 American soldiers. President Bill Clinton promises to withdraw almost all U.S. forces by March 1994.
