How to Cut Down Your Bunker Troubles...

by Dia Rees

---

Swing Slowly

Whatever type of bunker you have, whether it be sand or silt, there are ways to avoid some of the common faults. The most important thing is to start the swing correctly, no matter how you choose to grip the club, the ball should be hit or sent down the face of the head. The swing should be started by swinging the body towards the target. If you have to swing the body away from you, you will find it much easier to control the swing. Start from the waist and keep your head steady. As you start the swing, the hips should move in a natural way, never force the hips to face the target. The left arm should be relaxed, and the right arm should be straight. Do not try to swing the club with the arms, as this will only lead to a slice or a hook. Swing the club with the hips and the shoulders, and let the arms follow. This will help you to keep your swing smooth and consistent. The left hand should be used to control the club, and the right hand should be used to help guide the clubhead. Keep your eyes on the ball, and try to hit the ball with the clubhead, not the clubface.

---

Quote

Don't rattle the pockets of the woman who answers the bell in the hotel for the car.

---

A Father of 10,000

Mr. T. Bradshaw, the father of 10,000 children, has written a book on the subject. He has gathered together a large amount of information, and has written it up in a simple and clear way. The book is called The Father of 10,000 Children. Mr. Bradshaw has been a father for over 50 years, and has had to learn how to deal with children of all ages. He has a great deal of experience, and his advice is valuable. The book is well worth reading, and it is a great help to any parents who are trying to bring up a large family. The book is available from all good bookshops, and it is priced at 10 shillings.