When The Bell Rings…
It’s One Big Party Line In Antigua
—Says Eunice Savoury

There is little doubt that Antiguans are more than ready to welcome in the New Year. Plans have been made all over the island. People are taking a lot of time to perfect their “plan” for the New Year. Mr. H. D. Turner, a prominent Antiguan, says: “We never have a dull moment in this delightful place and there is a true variety of entertainment. Although I know that in the past some of the local girls have been quite limited in their social activities, there is now a marked change. We have a very efficient group of girls, not only are they very pretty and well-bred but they also have a marked intelligence. The names of houses as well as the names of the owners are given to all who would like to learn about the girls. The girls are very important in this movement. They have a marked influence on the local society. They are very good at social affairs and are always careful to do their best to make sure that the party is a success.”

In 1924 the exchange was built in Antigua and there was a new and a very efficient telephone service. The exchange was taken over by the Government and there was a marked improvement in the service. The exchange was no longer a private concern and the telephone service was very much improved. The exchange was now run by the Government and the telephone service was much improved. The exchange was no longer a private concern and the telephone service was very much improved.

The biggest drawback of the island is the lack of girls. There are not many girls on the island and this is one of the factors that contribute to the lack of social activities. The local girls are very important in the social life of the island and they are much valued. They are very much appreciated by the locals and they are always careful to do their best to make sure that the party is a success.

The government has a marked influence on the local society. They are very good at social affairs and are always careful to do their best to make sure that the party is a success.
