Sam Lord's Relics At The Museum

OFF special exhibition at the Museum is that of Sam Lord's Relics. It includes a chocolate pot and cover, and a silver plate with a George IV crest and a silver fish plate. These items were presented to the Museum by Sir Charles Trollops, K.C.B., who married one of Long Bay's White Girls, and who married another in 1844. His mother-in-law was presented to the Museum because of the Castle's history.

A mopy of this lithograph was presented to the Museum by the Earl of Jersey. The drawing was originally hung on the walls of the Castle. The head of the castle was presented to the Museum because of the Castle's history.

There are two silver coins of the time, a George III one shilling and Spanish coins of the time, both of which were for a long time in circulation from 1723 to 1738 and which were also on view. These coins are on view.

A wine bottle which belonged to Sam Lord used to hang lanterns in the Castle. The drawing was originally hung on the walls of the Castle. The head of the castle was presented to the Museum because of the Castle's history.
