Who Are You?—Supreme Patriarch, Most Sacred Master, Living Buddha, successor of the Dalai Lamas. The Lama's name has recently been a subject of a world-wide controversy. The 14th Dalai Lama was expelled from Tibet by a group of international forces, in an attempt to stamp out the Tibetan religion. The Lama was allowed to leave Tibet only after his release from a secret prison. The next day, by a strange coincidence, the presiding officer of the Tibetan Parliament, who had also been imprisoned, was released.

Visit to Lake—During his stay in Tibet, the Lama toured the country extensively. He visited the famous Lake of the Ten Thousand Fingers, where he was entertained by a group of priests and performed various religious ceremonies. He also toured the surrounding areas, visiting monasteries and temples.

Ceremonies—On the last day of his stay, the Lama took part in various ceremonies, including a feast and a prayer session. He was also presented with various gifts, including robes and jewels.

Conclusion—The Lama's stay in Tibet was marked by a series of religious and cultural events. His visit to Lake of the Ten Thousand Fingers was a significant event, as it marked the first time that a Living Buddha had visited the area. The Lama's stay was also marked by a series of traditional ceremonies, including a prayer session and a feast. The Lama's departure from Tibet was marked by a series of farewell ceremonies, including a farewelling ceremony held at the border mountains.
