Girls 'no one would want to look at sideways' join a battle of the curves

SHE was one of the prettiest girls in the cast of "W. I. Students Waste Time" when the Colonial Show in U.K. Seen by Almost 1,000,000 hit the London stage. By C. Y. D. Kekessee

In a market place in London, the young woman was described as 'a lovely girl with a charming smile'. But when she faced a battle of the curves, she was not as pretty as her description. The battle was between two girls who had worked hard to gain weight.

Colonial Show in U.K. Seen by Almost 1,000,000

By C. Y. D. Kekessee

The incident is a part of one of the biggest shows ever staged in London. The show was seen by almost 1,000,000 people, making it one of the most successful shows in the history of the Colonial Show.

On my first visit to the London show, I was drawn to the stage and saw a girl who looked like she had just stepped out of the movies. She had a beautiful smile and a charming personality. I was immediately drawn to her and began to follow her around the stage.

As I watched her, I noticed that she was not as pretty as she had seemed at first glance. She had a battle of the curves to face. She had to gain weight to be successful on the stage. She was determined to win the battle and put on weight.

The battle was fought in a dressing-room. It was there that the girl realized she had to fight for her place on the stage. She knew that if she wanted to succeed, she had to gain weight.

The battle was won when she was able to put on weight and gain the respect of the audience. She was able to perform on stage and win the attention of the audience.

Colonial Show in U.K. Seen by Almost 1,000,000

By C. Y. D. Kekessee

The incident is a part of one of the biggest shows ever staged in London. The show was seen by almost 1,000,000 people, making it one of the most successful shows in the history of the Colonial Show.

On my first visit to the London show, I was drawn to the stage and saw a girl who looked like she had just stepped out of the movies. She had a beautiful smile and a charming personality. I was immediately drawn to her and began to follow her around the stage.

As I watched her, I noticed that she was not as pretty as she had seemed at first glance. She had a battle of the curves to face. She had to gain weight to be successful on the stage. She was determined to win the battle and put on weight.

The battle was fought in a dressing-room. It was there that the girl realized she had to fight for her place on the stage. She knew that if she wanted to succeed, she had to gain weight.

The battle was won when she was able to put on weight and gain the respect of the audience. She was able to perform on stage and win the attention of the audience.