PHOSFERINE
for a quick convalescence
When the body's reserves are brought to the ground; when easy nursing is needed, the body needs a tonic and this is supplied by PHOSFERINE. A tonic in its most general effect is a tonic for the circulation. PHOSFERINE gives the necessary stimulus to the weak heart and impart to it the energy to pump the blood through the body and to the brain. The brain is then able to function properly and the appetite returns and all appetite stimulants are ineffective as a tonic for the brain.}
