Within recent years, the unhappy state of things has been due in large measure to the strained relations between employers and employees and there are still some imbroglios in each department of the industry who have not seen fit to attempt to contribute to the healing process. Happy labour relations in the twentieth century postulate the doctrine of partnership in industry as well as in agriculture. There is no reason why Barbadians should not be associated, voluntarily, with the wage-earners and employers in that industry.

Grenada Landslide

The election landslide by which Mr. Gairy and his Mental and Manual Work- ers' Party swept away the incumbent members of the Grenada Legislative Council and had not been for some inexplicable reason an abrupt end to the happy relations which existed between employers and employees in that colony.

It may be that wages in Grenada lagged behind those in other colonies and returning from the Dutch Colonies of Aruba and Curaçao which have given to a get a following by thundering over the issue. The sugar producers were only aroused by their litigation when it was found that discontent had been thoroughly spread among the workers in the West Indies plantation owners and others who employed labor only woke to realize the importance of the situation and then became alarmed.

The story of the sudden awakening of the people of Grenada to the industrial strife unequalled in the past occurred. There were three people that they not only used to criticize individuals for our damaged crops and schools which had been established and their loss to their own.

The timing was almost perfect. Election time was only a few weeks away and the people of Grenada must have understood the importance of their vote. The old campaigner kept his steady course of work which the people of St. George's to keep him in the Legislative Council. His name has again been resumed as Member for the people of the West Indies. The work of the Action Committee has been in preventing the GMI.W.U. from exploiting the majority of people as they have been threatened.

"Til however, a letter of grave condem- nation of Mr. Gairy's success at the polls can assume the mantle of statesman. This is what the Sugar Producers League has told the world. The people of Grenada, but to the people of Grenada to keep him in the Legislature. His name has again been resumed as Member for the people of the West Indies. The work of the Action Committee has been in preventing the GMI.W.U. from exploiting the majority of people as they have been threatened.
