MONEY SPREE

WITH all of us up in the air about money these holiday shopping days, here is a magic trick especially appropriate. Study it, the more; you may be viewing it a party, where you would like to show off your prowess with cards. The trick consists of a simple progression, but it works so well that people are in awe of your ability to turn the cards face down. The trick is this: You have a deck of cards, and you turn them face down, one at a time. As each card is turned face down, you call out its face, and the people watching are immediately impressed by your ability to remember which card was which. Then you turn the cards face up, and you call out the face of each card. The people watching are even more impressed, as they see that you remembered which card was which, even though you turned them face down. The trick is simple, but it is impressive, and it is a perfect way to show off your prowess with cards.
