6th Canadian World Trade Fair Planned

OTTAWA

With the announcement that the trade fair will be held in Ottawa, the government of Canada has taken a major step in promoting the country's exports. The fair will be a three-day event and is expected to attract thousands of visitors.

The government is planning to use the fair to promote the country's products, particularly those related to agriculture and forestry. The fair will feature a variety of exhibits, including those from local businesses and government agencies.

The fair is scheduled to take place in late June, and the government is working closely with local organizations to ensure that the event is successful. The fair is expected to have a positive impact on the local economy and will provide a boost to the tourism industry.
