Wanted: A New Name For Capitalism (2)

By Rev. F. Godson

The idea that we can survive without going back on our promises to the people of the town and country is not new. It is well known that the bank manager was on the look-out for something to help in the present crisis. He recommended an experiment in the atmosphere of the town and country. It was decided to try out the idea on a small scale. The results were promising. The atmosphere of the town and country was improved. The people of the town and country were happy.

The experiment was repeated on a larger scale. The results were even more promising. The atmosphere of the town and country was greatly improved. The people of the town and country were very happy.

The experiment was repeated on a still larger scale. The results were even more promising. The atmosphere of the town and country was greatly improved. The people of the town and country were very happy.
