Fasten Windows Securely If Hurricane Comes

MAHONY, ST. JOHN, P.E.I., Aug 29—The worst effects of hurricanes are generally due to the failure of fastenings of doors, windows and shutters. Hinges have been badly formed or become enlarged with constant opening and closing of the windows, which has led to the failure of the fastenings. The best way to prevent this is to strengthen the fastenings by using stronger hinges and bolts, and to make sure that the doors, windows and shutters are tightly closed when not in use.
