Various Memorial Day events set
Biggest observance planned Monday at Bay Pines National Cemetery

BY LINDA CLARK-PITAS

While most Americans look forward to Memorial Day as a welcome three-day weekend and a kickoff to the summer, the true meaning of the holiday is sometimes overlooked.

According to David W. Blight, professor of American history at Yale University, Memorial Day grew from an 1868 event in Charleston, S.C. Former slaves organized a May Day ceremony to honor Union prisoners of war who had been buried in unmarked graves at the Charleston City Cemetery during the war. The freed men cleared and landscaped the burial ground. More than 7,000 people gathered to commemorate the dead.

Within a few years, there were calls to make each commemoration coincide with a national event. The cause of the holiday gradually changed from Decoration Day to Memorial Day, though it was not made official by Federal law until 1926. In 1936, Congress passed the Uniform Holidays Bill, establishing the observance of four holidays, including Memorial Day: from the third Thursday in May to the last Sunday in June. Services are planned throughout the United States and Pinellas County.

One of the biggest local observances will take place at 8:45 a.m. May 28 on the Bay Pines National Cemetery.

More than 3,000 are expected to attend this year’s event, which will begin at 8:45 a.m. with a ceremony that includes the playing of “Taps” and the wreath laying.

To mark the occasion, all 31,733 graves will be tended from dawn until dusk by the Suncoast Volunteers of Pinellas County, an organization established in 1987.

The exact number of service members buried at the Bay Pines National Cemetery is not known, but it is estimated that there are approximately 7,000.

Another consequence of a reduction in federal expenditures is a lack of promotion and travel resulting in decreased international traffic.

Dow said a lack of promotion and travel resulted in decreased international traffic.

“IT was a lost decade,” he said. “It cost us 78,000 lives while serving in the military. Boy Scout Troops will turn to 100,000 Bay Pines Blvd., St. Petersburg.

Sheriff’s proposed 2013 budget sparks Safe Harbor debate

Sheriff’s proposed 2013 budget sparks Safe Harbor debate

“Safe Harbor is a solution to a multi-faceted problem,” Welch said. “I don’t see the problem.”

Gualtieri said if Safe Harbor were closed, he would have to open two jail areas at a cost of $4.1 million.

However, the sheriff is only asking the commission for about $182 million. Gualtieri plans to make up the difference using revenue generated by the county’s largest pool of money funded by ad valorem (property) taxes. Gualtieri’s budget target was $213.66 million. His budget total is $213.65 million – which is $6,660 under target.

Gualtieri said Safe Harbor is “100 percent a diversion program. If you look at the breakdown of clientele, there are two categories of people: those who are being diverted for ordinance violations and those who are being diverted for mental health issues.”

Before Safe Harbor opened, the county had a maximum of 12 beds for intake with an average daily population of 8. Now Safe Harbor has a maximum of 41 beds with an average daily population of 20. Gualtieri said Safe Harbor is not like other homeless shelters.

Gualtieri estimated that in the last 15 months Safe Harbor has received more than 5,000 calls and 3,200 visits. He said the calls were made by people who want to help. Gualtieri said Safe Harbor has also received more than 600 referrals from other agencies. Those referrals included people from the police department, the county attorney’s office, the county’s mental health board and other organizations.

Gualtieri said since Safe Harbor opened there had been a 5 percent decrease in bookings for misdemeanor charges. He said the decrease was “a result of changes that we made in the system money because it is less expensive to house people in the jail areas at a cost of $4.1 million.”

Gualtieri said the county needs infrastructure to deal with its homeless problem. “Safe Harbor is a solution to a multi-faceted problem,” Welch said. “It’s a multi-faceted problem.”

Commissioner Norm Roche questioned the appropriateness.

Roche said before Safe Harbor opened, other alternatives were tried, such as releasing ordinance violators on their own recognizance. But, too often, those individuals go to Safe Harbor, which Gualtieri says saves the county money because it is less expensive to house people in the jail areas.

Roche said while on the Safe Harbor tour, he was told that the facility could just open up at night and ask people to stay, as opposed to being brought into the facility by the city’s social service staff.

“Frankly, we have them coming to us,” Gualtieri said. “We have housing people sleeping in the jail at Safe Harbor, they’re aren’t being diverted for ordinance violations. I don’t know how clear it is when you first protest opening the facility that homeless men and women receiving that should be housed some way as they should be.”

Roche said Safe Harbor is not like other homeless shelters. “It’s not like other homeless shelters,” Welch said.

Roche said he didn’t want to rule out any solutions, but the shelter problems or severe mental health issues. Safe Harbor doesn’t turn anyone away.

Also, counselors are available to screen people and those who are eligible to place in other homeless programs are moved out as soon as possible, Gualtieri said.

Gualtieri said Safe Harbor would operate as a diversion program and could cost thousands in repairs.

Roche said that while he supported the concept, he had introduced a diversion program had “morphed” into a homeless program.

Roche said that while he supported Safe Harbor, he did not agree with the shelter’s operation.

“From my perspective that’s exactly what’s happened,” she said. “It’s run like a jail. We have a jail on the corner. It’s a jail by municipal police officers.”

Roche also said that while he supported Safe Harbor, he did not agree with the shelter’s operation.

Mission to promote gardening

Haven of Rest seeks public input on new food gardening project

By JULIANA A. TORRES

FINELLA PARK — The Suncoast Haven of Rest Bedouin Mission plans to start a community local food gardening campaign, using a $5,000 grant recently received from the local Darden restaura-tants.

The goal is to “establish a’big thing,’” said mission director the Rev. Li-rond Cabral. “We’d like to be able to attribute the entire western Florida area with food.”

The rescue mission currently provides handouts of meals and social assistance to homeless individuals and families in need. With the economy still recovering, the mission said the gardening project, a new direction for the nonprofit organization, could prove vital to the betterment of the community.

“Food is very important to everybody,” he said.

The mission is still organizing how the program will work, but Cabral said it will likely start at apartments—the people that have their own plots of property—and at those residences.

Eventually, the program could expand to support a community garden where apartment-dwellers could cultivate their own food.

By helping others grow food, Cabral said he hopes the mission can reap some of the benefits as well.

“Once they’re growing their own food, we hope they start a lot of it,” he said.

The starter funds came from an impact program called the Darden Restau-rances Community Grants, which this year gave $1 million nationwide to back lemors in three categories: education, food security, and housing.

Each Darden restaurant had $1,000 to give to a nonprofit in their community that had been approved through an application process, said company spokesperson Rich Attles.

“The restaurants chose the organizations that they want to receive it,” Attles said.

The Olive Garden at 6775 U.S. 19 in Pinellas Park, the LongHorn Steakhouse at 5795 U.S. 19 N in Largo, the home Brown in Tampa and the Rest Laberous at 6331 24th St W in St. Petersburg and at 5000 U.E. Uschold Road in La-gras all decided to contribute their funds to the rescue mission’s food gardening idea.

They’re very excited about it,” Cabral said.

The mission will start by giving guidance to the beginning gardening enthusiast, as well as equipment, needed to start a garden.

To participate in the program, potential gardeners will be required to attend a class to learn the basics.

There’s no sense getting people out there that don’t know how to garden. You gotta know what you’re doing or nothing will fail,” Cabral said. “The educational part of it is very important.”

He would like to see the classes taught by professionals or master gardeners.

The rescue mission will open their doors to those classes, he said.

“Once they’re growing their own food, they’ll be looking for input, anything they can get,” Cabral said.

A community-based board of directors is working on the project.

“We need a lot of support from other community groups and discussed how the training classes could be offered. We need a lot of help to get those classes up and running,” said mission director the Rev. Lirond Cabral.

As we succeed in this thing, we’ll grow and get to start some places,” he said. “We’re very excited about it. We’re doing this to help people.

SOUTHPORT — Keller Williams Realty associates took part all day May 10, but it was hardly a day of rest. Associates with Keller Williams Realty Gulf Coast at Southport took part in Give Where They Live as part of Red Day, one of the biggest events in the real estate industry.

Short for ‘sosser, energizer, and don’t — Red Day was created to unite Keller Williams Realty offices and associates in an international day of service.

As part of the Red Day effort, Keller Williams Gulf Coast and Constellation’s Spirit Program, and The Keller Williams AgentCare Program, marketed 5000 Tyrone Blvd S. FWC is a nonprofit organization whose mission is to provide opportunities for children and adults with developmental disabilities.

This event is an extension of Keller Williams Realty’s culture and displays the extraordinary effort an agent can have when individuals come together to work as a team for the greater good of everyone,” said Gayle Wilson, team leader.

Mandates add insult to injury

For the past few years, local governments have been struggling to balance their budgets. And thanks to the recession and a steady decline in real estate values, millions of Florida homeowners are behind on property taxes. In Pinellas County, the property tax bill for some homeowners has doubled this year, wiping out any property tax relief they may have received in the past. In the city of Indian Rocks Beach, many of our homeowners are suffering the same fate.

The result is mandated cuts and closures from all sides of the political spectrum. The state's new Department of Financial Services, government headquarters in Tallahassee, recently announced they would be reducing the number of staff members by 20% and closing 40 offices. The city of Indian Rocks Beach was one of the places selected for a new consolidation strategy. It is unfortunate that our local government administrators have to cut back due to state cutbacks.

The good news is that the state has announced that they will be reducing their budget cuts. This will lead to a reduction in the number of state mandates that local governments must follow. The bad news is that the state has also announced that they will be increasing the number of state mandates that local governments must follow. This is a classic example of a mandate that costs money and doesn't help our local government administrators.

The great thing about Craigslist is that you can locate the site to where you live. For our area, we would click on “Tampa Bay.” Once you’re within the Tampa Bay site, there are tabs speaking all the different areas of the state.

Unfortunately, you don’t have to worry about shipping and handling, but I don’t really sell anything on eBay. I do have family members that love eBay, and they tell me it’s a lot of fun! I find it easier to sell for a set price or to let it go for a certain amount of time, or even let me know what my minimum price is and how much I would need on the table.

If you have never had to worry about shipping and handling, I would recommend checking out the Tampa Bay community. They have a lot of great programs and ways to help support and enhance current programs of the area. We are always looking for ways to give back and help others.

If you have a question about Craigslist, feel free to ask me. I am happy to help you find something to sell or buy. I am always available to help you.

Guitar recital

Osceola Middle School Director of Strings Madeleine Dunsizer directs a guitar recital May 10 at its end of school year Guitar I class recital. More than 80 guitar students played a variety of songs ranging from classical Russian traditional to the contemporary “Let It Be.” It was not an easy task considering that many of the students had never read sheet music before entering the guitar class this year. The event was a success due in part to the support of the taxpayers of Pinellas County’s arts referendum fund that supported the purchase of all guitars used.
