Good riddance, Debby
Tropical storm causes problems throughout Pinellas County

By SUZETTE PORTER

Tropical Storm Debby stayed well offshore of Pinellas County’s coastline, but that didn’t stop it from causing a myriad of problems.

“Tropical Storm Debby caused the structure of my home to sway significantly,” said Dan Belle, a Largo resident. “I’ve never felt anything like it before.”

Belle’s experience was not an uncommon one. The storm caused widespread damage across Pinellas County, with some areas reporting wind gusts of up to 45 miles per hour.

In Largo, the storm caused a number of local businesses to close, including the Largo Mall and the Landmark Plaza. The storm also resulted in the closure of a number of roads, including US 19 and SR 589.

The storm also caused significant flooding in many areas of the county, with some neighborhoods reporting water levels that were up to 2 feet deep.

County Manager Mike Jerritt said the county was working around the clock to address the issues caused by the storm.

“While the storm had a devastating impact on our community, we are doing everything we can to get our residents back on their feet,” Jerritt said.

The county has activated its disaster recovery team and is working with local and federal agencies to provide assistance to those affected by the storm.

Jerritt said the county would continue to monitor the situation and provide updates as needed.

City commissioners tentatively agree to raise stormwater fees

HOW TO CONTRIBUTE

City commissioners tentatively agree to raise stormwater fees for a second time this year. Largo City Manager Susan Brinza announced at Tuesday’s commission meeting that the city’s revenue growth has not kept up with the rising costs of its revenue-generating programs. The city has only raised utility rates once since April 2008, and was downgraded at the commissioner’s May 8 work session and at other city meetings.

The commissioners are expected to pass the rate increase by consensus, as they did on March 28, when they approved similar increases for other utility systems. St. Petersburg’s monthly fee is $6.84; other utility systems’ rates are not yet known. The ordinance establishing the rate increase was passed on first reading.

The ordinance establishing the rate increase was passed on first reading. The new rates will start on September 1.

LARGO – City commissioners agreed to raise stormwater fees Oct. 1, an increase they approved by consensus Tuesday. The proposal is intended to help keep Largo’s roads and drainage systems in good repair. The proposed monthly increase for those facilities is 83.52 cents, 87 cents higher than the current rate. Multi-family cus- tomers such as townhouses and apartment complexes will see a 70% increase, from 29 cents to 50 cents. Single-family residential customers will see a 70% increase, from 29 cents to 50 cents.

City officials say that revenue growth cannot keep pace with maintenance costs. The city has only raised utility rates once since April 2008, and was downgraded at the commission’s May 8 work session and at other city meetings.

CLEARWATER – In 1951, the year he graduated from Georgia Tech with a degree in mechanical engineering, Ed Collum planned to become a petroleum engineer. But Uncle Sam had other plans for him.

Shortly after he began working as a petroleum engineer trainee for Humble Oil, a job that required him to travel any time there was an oil well "roughneck" in the Texas oil fields, Collum received orders to report for active duty as an oil well roughneck. After that, he went to the White Sands Proving Grounds, New Mexico, to participate in the testing of Corporal missiles.

The remainder of his military duty was served at Redstone Arsenal in Huntsville, Alabama, where he co-founded a Rocket City. While there, he received a master's degree from the Georgia Tech Research Center at Georgia Institute of Technology to learn about the workings of the Corporal ground-to-ground missile, America's so-called "Rocket City." While there, he became the father of America's space program. After completing his Army service, he went to Redstone Arsenal in Huntsville, Alabama, for work on the Corporal rocket. While there, he became the father of America's space program.

Ed Collum, who designed navigation systems for missiles and rockets, holds an antique navigational instrument called an octant. He co-owns an antique shop with his daughter.

The restaurant will be located in a new, 150-seat upscale restaurant at Gulf Boulevard and 141st Avenue next to Kitty Stuart Park.

The city would also be given a seven-foot easement on the property to allow the restaurant to build a parking garage. The easement was added to allow the restaurant to build a parking garage.

The project has more steps to go through before becoming reality. A site plan and development agreement must be approved. Two public hearings are expected. Responses to the restaurant proposal with amenity changes added was positive.

A great idea," said Commissioner Nancy Oakley. "If you can do this and improve that park, thank you very much," said Vice Mayor Robin Vaden Voiles. "I really wanted to be a pilot," he said. "But I couldn't because I'm colorblind."

Debby puts a damper on area fishing – for now

Tropical storm Debby has put a stop to area fishing, for now.

The winds are still at 7-10 knots, and an east wind is expected today. However, the rains have been minimal, and the water is relatively clear.

The only damper on fishing is the lack of good fishing conditions. The wind is still out of the east, and the water is relatively clear.

Mother of the month-old baby bottlenose beside her, Club eyes it frankly with a backward glance. The scars on her back tell a story of a life well-lived. The Club knows that dolphins are intelligent creatures, and they respect their space.

Debby watches the dolphins

As Debby watches the dolphins, she realizes that they are not just animals. They are intelligent creatures, capable of complex emotions and behaviors.

Debby puts a damper on area fishing – for now

With the winds still out of the east, and the water relatively clear, Debby decides to put a damper on her fishing plans. She will wait until the winds subside to try her luck on the water.

Memories of a third-rate burglary

Scotty L. Lipp

The automobile, cliché. This was one of Nixon's most frequent tropes of 1972. Nevertheless, the executive order was signed on July 15, 1972, giving the White House a green-light to begin a burglary-planning project. It was the precursor to a series of events known as the Watergate Burglary.

The Watergate Burglary was a break-in that took place on June 17, 1972, at the Democratic National Committee headquarters in Washington, D.C. The break-in was planned and executed by a team of six men, including future Attorney General John Mitchell, campaign manager for President Richard Nixon.

The break-in was intended to be a covert operation to obtain information about the Democratic Party's activities. However, the operation was discovered, and the subsequent investigation led to the resignation of President Nixon and the imprisonment of many of his associates.

The Watergate Burglary was a turning point in American history, leading to the end of the Nixon presidency and to the passage of the Privacy Act of 1974, which established the rights of privacy for all Americans.

Coping with pneumonia, the PCT

Cell phones, laptops, the Internet, play dates, prescriptions drugs, gangs, high-stakes testing, Facebook.

I often wonder, if raising a child today is like raising my “son” Scotty L. Lipp, when I was growing up in small towns in the 1960s. For instance, back then, we would only go on a field trip if we could find something, you’d call it: “This is what we’re doing today.”

Speak when you are spoken to; raise your kids’ parents, and do what is your duty in the campaign.

Dad made you work; don’t ever let yourself be taken for granted.

There was no need for quotes. Nothing much was in quotes in Superior. Why, it was the Superior standards.

All the way to the neighborhoods kids were simple: you must come in when the street lights come on. It was the Superior standards. And it must be obeyed.

I look back on the Superior days and the Superior standards. I suspect that parents have great challenges today; with the pressures of the standards. Why, I can’t even remember the Superior standards.

We had the last of the neighborhood, the Superior态. Join the last of the neighborhood or else. And even if you’re not a Superior home, the streets will find you out.

When that phone is used: you think the PCT.

Get off the Internet; you think the PCT.

Letters

Writer wrong about Obama

The “spying” by Chris Graham, May 31. FBI director James Comey recently testified before Congress about the FBI’s use of surveillance tools. He noted that the bureau’s domestic surveillance program, known as Section 215, allowed it to collect metadata from phone calls and emails.

The FBI director went on to say that the bureau had used the Section 215 program to investigate criminal activity, national security threats, and other matters.

I believe that it is important for the government to have tools to investigate threats to national security, but I also believe that it is important for the government to be transparent about how it is using these tools. The FBI director’s testimony was a good start in that direction.

‘Brave’ offers charming fairy tale sans Prince Charming
