Juried Show Of Art Made From Rejected Items

For its December juried exhibition, Rejctamenta, the Alliance for the Arts is asking artists to create new works out of “Things, matter or substances that have been rejected as useless or trash.” The show is a sequel to Refuse Repurposed which generated a wide spectrum of fascinating artwork that delighted hundreds of people who experienced it at the Alliance in 2011. Artists are asked to drop off submissions to the Alliance on Monday, December 2. The show prospectus is available at www.ArtInLee.org.

The exhibition opens with a reception on Friday, December 6 from 5 to 7:30 p.m. Awards for Best in Show, second continued on page 27
Kid Day, 1938

by Gerri Reaves, PhD

These film stills capture the playfulness of Kid Day at Fort Myers Senior High in 1938. Almost all of those pictured are members of the class of 1939, then juniors. It should be noted that in those days, the high school was on Thompson Street between Royal Palm Avenue and Fowler Street, where the Lee County Constitutional Complex now stands.

On Kid Day, many of the boys emulated an Our Gang look, sporting patched cut-off pants, overalls and beanie caps. They toyed with slingshots, played marbles, and engaged in roughhousing.

Girls wore baby-doll ruffled dresses, elaborate hair ribbons, pigtails and baby bonnets. Some brought their dolls to class. Lollipops, polished apples and stick candy were the order of the day.

At least two students traveled to school on a tricycle. Also permitted: Bare feet.

As delightful as the free-for-all dress code must have been for students, imagine the fun when they declared recess at 10 o’clock and adjourned for an early outdoor lunch brought in lard pails and paper sacks.

This film was made by one of Fort Myers’ most famous natives, internationally known musician and composer Billy Nalle, who was a member of the class of 1939 and the class photographer.

Besides music, he had a keen interest in photography and filmmaking. In retrospect, his interest in moving images foretold his years of working on live television at CBS in New York City during the medium’s formative years.

The film features many 1939-ers dressed in youngsters garb and engaging in child-like antics, among them Bill Garner, Sarah V. Barden, Pauline Hough (Campbell), Ed Watson, Catherine Watson (Barratt), Walter J. Edelblut, Jr., Elizabeth Honc (Himschoot), Belvin Cooper, Vernon Roberts Widerquist, Ken Taylor, Margaret Arnold (Kendera), Jessie Penny (Strasbaugh) and Mila Honc (Pottinger) (1938).

Sarah Sciple, a member of the class of 1939, recalls that the students wanted to have Kid Day and the teachers were agreeable. Students could even wear shorts, she says, something “daring and rare” at that time.

Tom “Tinker” Stewart, a 1947 graduate, remembers Kid Day during the mid-1940s. It was a day the students could dress for what he calls the “annual silliness festival.”

These film stills are only a preview of the many subjects that Nalle turned his camera to in his hometown. Others include Page Field in 1938, before the runway was paved, chemistry class with teacher Elizabeth Hamilton, the class of 1939 picnicking on Fort Myers Beach and the Fort Myers High School Green Wave band marching in a 1947 parade by the Yacht Basin. And more...

You’ll be able to see more of historic Fort Myers as a moving picture on January 16, when the films premier at the Sidney & Berne Davis Art Center, sponsored by the Southwest Florida Historical Society. Mark your calendars.

Old Lee County Courthouse Gets New Landscape

Landscape improvements to the Old Lee County Courthouse courtyard began Tuesday, November 5 and will be completed Friday, November 22. The existing shrubs and groundcover will be removed and replaced with native shrubs and groundcover as well as a new drip irrigation system. The drip irrigation system will be designed to have three zones covering each of the three landscape beds. This is important because after the native plants become established the irrigation can be shut off to save money and conserve water. The individual zones are important because each bed represents various plant communities that require different amounts of water. The county will have control over each watering schedule as well as the individual zones.

Grants, donations and volunteers throughout the county has kept the costs down to $561, which includes nine pallets of mulch at a cost of 70 cents per bag and an estimated $120 dump fee for the debris. The total cost savings is estimated at $12,147.

There will be a community work day on Saturday, November 16. The area will be fenced off with a temporary fence. The east and west courtyard access will be open. All Old Courthouse entrances will be open. The preparation work will be done November 14 through the 15 with plant installation and mulching occurring on Saturday, November 16.

The Old Courthouse and its 1.75 acres of surrounding grounds are the physical and symbolic center of county government. It was built for $100,000 and opened in 1916 (the county’s second courthouse) with neoclassical architecture and Doric Oder fluted columns. An addition was added in 1926 and the whole building received a renovation in 1989. It is located at 2120 Main Street in downtown Fort Myers.

For more information, go to www.lee-county.com/gov/dept/publicresources/Pages/LeeCountyCourthouseTour.aspx

The project manager is Darryl Coulter of Lee County Construction and Design; landscape coordinator, Beth Workman, Lee County Community Development – Division of Environmental Sciences; heavy lifting, James (Skip) Franklin II, senior supervisor Lee County Parks and Recreation; irrigation, Donnie Miles, supervisor of Plumbing and Irrigation Facilities Services; project arborist, Robert DeBrock, maintenance supervisor DOT.

Donations provided by RS Walsh Landscaping (cabbage palms), Florida Native Plant Society Coccoloba Chapter grant, All Native Garden Center (housing all plant material from various wholesale nurseries), Girl Scouts local Troop 2055 and 438, and Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts from Southwest Florida Councils.

Native landscaping is being donated to beautify the area around the eagle carving from the old oak tree that was planted in the 1800s.
Goodwill Industries of Southwest Florida, Inc. sends a big thank you to local businesses and individuals who participated in the 2013 Teddy Bear Drives, as part of the preparation for the 7th annual Festival of Trees. The organization is collecting the bears for the Very Beary Christmas Tree, a tree that has been a part of the festival since its inception and, ultimately, goes to the children’s hospital.

Goodwill had hoped to collect 300 bears by November 1 but far surpassed that number, bringing in over 500. “We can’t believe how many bears we’ve received,” said Madison Mitchell, spokeswoman for Goodwill. “The bear tree is such a special part of the festival. The outpouring of support from individuals and businesses in our community has been spectacular.”

Made up of bears donated by the community, the tree is one of 26 beautifully decorated trees that are auctioned off at the signature event, the Tux & Trees Gala, on December 7. Auction guests gather around this special tree to raise money for The Southwest Florida Goodwill Foundation. The tree is then traditionally donated to the children’s hospital.

“Some companies donated 175 bears,” says Mitchell. “Some people walked into Goodwill’s headquarters with a bear they thought a child would love. Every bear counts. That’s how we made our goal.”

Bears came from ArtFest, Cape Coral High School’s Interact Club, CarMax-Naples, Costco (Cypress Lake/US 41), D&D Air Conditioning & Heating, Fort Myers Beach Lions Club, Fort Myers Vet Center, GMA Architects, Goodwill Boutique on First, Imaginarium Science Center, Kelly Road Self Storage, Life Counseling, Myerlee Gardens Craft Club, Neptune Society, PennyWigglsworth.com, Puddy n Pearl, Rnells Tuxedos, Safety, Sidney & Berne Davis Art Center, SunTrust, TDM Consulting, Inc., The Safety Lady, Ken Bodenhamer, Charissa Comerota, Robin Cremeens, Joanne Durbin, Jay Griswald, Phylis Hersh, Alison and Durward Hussey, Dwayne Lee, Patti Maier, Peter Marinell, Ann Marshal, Pam Nuhlman, Cheryl Powell, Todd Ryan, Peggy Schneider, John and Ellen Shepard, Richard and Alberta Supalo, Judith Yvecik, and many others who contributed at drop-off locations, anonymously, or at Teddy Bear Happy Hour.

The Festival of Trees opens November 29 at the Sidney & Berne Davis Art Center, 2301 First Street, Fort Myers. For more information visit www.tuxandtrees.com.

Last year’s festival and gala raised $93,000.

MOAA Installation

The Lee Coast Chapter of MOAA (Military Officers Association of America) held its first meeting of the season at Crown Colony Golf and Country Club on November 4. Highlights of the evening were the installation of eight new chapter members and a talk by B-29 pilot Hal Crispi, who flew 35 missions over Japan in his plane Little Gem.

Crispi described the harrowing experience of one raid where the Japanese threw more than 500 fighters at the bomber group. On another raid, this time at low altitude and at night, his plane received hits that disabled the bomb bay doors so they could not be retracted. The extra drag prevented him from reaching home base on Saipan, some 1,500 miles away. He saved his plane by diverting to newly taken Iwo Jima, but had to make a downwind landing to avoid the Japanese, who still held portions of the island.

The public boat ramp at the Oasis Towers, 3000 Oasis Grand Boulevard, will be available for public use.

To inform the public, the boat show promoter will install signage at the downtown public boat ramp. For updated information, check the City of Fort Myers’ website at www.cityftmyers.com.

The Burroughs family, owners of the architecturally significant Burroughs Home built in 1901, were world travelers and art collectors. Among the many historical artifacts in the home are four well-worn family carpets that may have been purchased in Istanbul during a family trip in 1905. Carpet experts from Harem 49 (www.haremcarpets.com) in Istanbul, Emre and Ayhan Elci, will share their expertise during the carpet demonstration.

The carpet show includes Turkic carpets from Turkey, Azerbaijan and Turkmenistan. Besides a very unusual selection of carpets including some from Persia, there will be very rare Rahrahs. They are kilims made by specially trained/experienced Turkmenistan.

The show is free. Reservations are required and can be made by emailing aroth.uncommonfriends@gmail.com. Attendees will be able to sip wine and sample appetizers.

If you wish to select a carpet from the show, an arrangement will be made to have it viewed in your home. Fifteen percent of the sale of these handmade carpets will be donated to historic preservation for the Burroughs Home.

Fort Myers Daily Bread (FMDB), has announced its new grocery delivery service in Southwest Florida. “Starting a new business is always a bit intimidating,” said Ron Viers, president. “But when we recognized the need in the community, we realized the rewards would far outweigh the risks.”

Fort Myers Daily Bread specializes in stocking timeshares and vacation rentals, in support of Southwest Florida tourism as well as serving the senior community, shopping for those that are unable to get out to do their own shopping. FMDB has also partnered with the Alzheimer’s Support Network of SWFL, offering their service to care givers of individuals battling Alzheimer’s.

President and founder Ron Viers was born and raised in the mountains of Southwest Virginia. He attended King College in Bristol, Tennessee where he received his Bachelor of Arts and later moved to Louisville, Kentucky where he spent the past 20 years in successful careers as a retail manager and most recently as an advertising finance professional. He relocated to Southwest Florida in February to launch his most recent endeavor, Fort Myers Daily Bread.

“When my brother-in-law was hired as a golf pro here on Sanibel, it was kind of a no-brainer for me to move down to Southwest Florida to be near the family. However, once I got here, with the job market still limping along, I still had bills to pay and had to find a way to make ends meet. Thus, Fort Myers Daily Bread was born,” Viers added.

Fort Myers Daily Bread is an online grocery delivery service. Customers shop and pay in their virtual online grocery store and the groceries are delivered within 24 hours. FMDB is unique in that it provides a full service shopping experience online. No grocery list required. Proudly, it offers the lowest rates in Southwest Florida (even free delivery on orders of $150 or more). Scheduling and delivery is hassle-free with just one-hour delivery windows, so no need to block four hours out of your busy day to wait for delivery. They even offer same-day delivery for orders placed by 9 a.m.

“Our drivers are fast, reliable and courteous,” said Viers. “and satisfaction is guaranteed, because we’re here to help simplify your shopping.”

‘Happy Bus’ Driver Honored

The man who drives “the happy bus” has been named the best operator in the state of Florida. Anthony “Tony” Varcalli, was honored as Operator of the Year by the Florida Public Transportation Association at its annual conference last week.

In his 46 years as a professional driver – 18 with Lee Tran and 28 as a tractor-trailer driver in Michigan – he has logged more than 5.2 million miles, and never wanted to do anything else.

“I’ve loved every minute of it,” Varcalli said. “Driving the tractor-trailer was fun when I was young, but driving the bus is perfect for me. I love talking to the people, having fun.”

It’s that people-loving attitude that led his passengers to dub whatever bus he’s driving, “the happy bus.”

“Tony has the unique ability to diffuse customer service issues, even between passengers,” wrote LeeTran Deputy Director Paul Goyette in his nomination letter. “He is a positive spirit.”

The award is presented annually to an operator whose service has “enriched and enhanced public transportation in the community.”

Varcalli has given LeeTran a full year’s notice of his intention to retire in August 2014. He plans to move to Matlacha to indulge his love of fishing and enjoy the Florida sunshine.

PACE Center for Girls Buys Building For New Center

PACE Center for Girls, Lee County announces the purchase of the former Richard Milburn Academy as the center’s new home and its 45 young women at 3800 Evans Avenue in Fort Myers. Renovations will commence immediately with a projected move-in date in February.

The purchase of the 15,000-square-foot facility will more than double classroom instructional space, allowing PACE Lee to expand capacity and services to the girls.

Thanks to the generosity of the community, the PACE Center for Girls, Lee County has raised more than $764,000 for its $2 million Dream BIG Capital Campaign.

The campaign was launched in 2011 with a matching gift challenge from the Keast Family Foundation. Eleanore Keast serves as the honorary co-chair along with PACE Lee Board Treasurer Sonya Sawyer. An additional $400,000 has to be raised by December 31 to pay for renovations.

Since opening its doors, the Lee center has helped nearly 600 girls find success in school, generate a positive relationship with their families and peers, and become productive members of the community.

“We are at maximum capacity with no room for growth at our current location that we have rented since we opened our doors in 2007,” said Executive Director Meg M. Geltner. “Our expansion will provide more room to grow our capacity, increase our services to the girls as well as engage volunteers, interns, and community agencies annually.”

“This is a transformational project for our community,” said Campaign Co-Chair Sonya Sawyer. “The expansion will enable PACE Lee to become the number one center in the region with a new approach to serving at-risk girls and young women.”

PACE Lee is one of 18 centers located throughout Florida, opening its doors in February of 2007 under the leadership of Gail Markham and Judge James H. Seals. PACE (Practical, Academic, Cultural, Education) Center for Girls provides girls and young women an opportunity for a better future through education, counseling, training and advocacy. The Center offers year round counseling and academic services for girls, ages 12 to 18, who are facing challenges such as foster care, domestic violence abuse and neglect, death of a parent, substance abuse, and/or family history of incarceration.

For more information about PACE Lee and the Dream BIG Capital Campaign, visit www.pacecenter.org/lee or call 425-2366 ext. 25. Naming opportunities are available. Gifts can be made at www.pacecenter.org/support-pace/donate.

Heights Center Opens This Week

The ribbon cutting of the Harlem Heights United Way House and Heights Medical Clinic took place on November 13.

The center partners with United Way to serve as the Harlem Heights United Way House, coordinating programs and resources of the United Way network. It’s also the site for Senior Friendship Centers, Goodwill Job Link, and VITA tax preparation services among many other programs and services.

“The opportunity to meet the needs of the Harlem Heights community in one convenient location is a great benefit to the neighborhood,” said Cliff Smith, president of the United Way of Lee, Hendry and Glades.

The clinic provides access to free medical primary care and health advocacy for low income, uninsured members of the Harlem Heights community. It is run by Lee County Volunteers in Medicine.

“Harlem Heights is a distressed community that is medically underserved. Adults are experiencing diabetes and its lifelong complications at a rate twice that of members of typical communities,” said Andrea Kuzbyt, executive director of Lee County Volunteers in Medicine.

“The Heights Medical Clinic will help us achieve our mission of providing access to healthcare for the uninsured as well as helping individuals keep themselves healthy and productive. Additional volunteer medical practitioners interested in assisting in the operation of the clinic are welcome to contact us for more information,” Kuzbyt added.

“Our alliances with the United Way and Lee County Volunteers in Medicine allow us to leverage our resources to better serve the Harlem Heights community,” said Kathryn Kelly, president and CEO of The Heights Foundation.

“Together we can operate more efficient programs, gain from each other’s strengths and reach more people who can benefit from our services.”

The Heights Foundation supports the Heights Center, a place for education, opportunity, and enrichment. The Center’s mission is to promote family and community development, support education, health and wellness, and provide the benefits of enrichment, expressive and cultural arts in the Harlem Heights neighborhood.

With Good Bait
You Can Catch
Fish Near Home

by Capt. Matt Mitchell

Shiner fishing this week continued to go off with snook, trout, mangrove snapper and jacks being the majority of species caught. Most of my week was spent hiding from the wind in mangrove creeks and shallow sheltered bays. As long as the tide was moving the action was fast paced with fish responding to chummed live shiners by crashing them right on the surface. This method of live bait fishing adds such a visual aspect to our fishing even when you’re not catching fish you’re watching fish feed. Basically, if you could get good bait and lots of it, the fishing was easy.

Action this week also included the largest trout I have seen all year. Narrow, deep creek mouths in the southern sound were loaded up with trout ranging from 16 inches all the way up to a 28-inch, 6-pound-plus monster gator trout. Having these big trout blow up on the surface as they chase the shiners around is an awesome thing.

Once these trout show themselves, it’s often as simple as casting your bait to where the blow up on the live chum was and the fish will quickly hit the hooked bait. These big trout put up a real fight and generally make a few runs before coming boatside.

The best bite for these monster trout came during the first hour of the incoming tide during the lowest water periods.

Mangrove shorelines way back in the “Ding” Darling Refuge held some quality snook this week too. Several of my favorite dead-end bays had lots of snook of all sizes during periods of higher incoming water which came during the late afternoon hours.

Our big refuge snook this week measured 32 inches but several times I had clients hook into fish much bigger than that which parted ways after reaching the barnacle-crusted trees. Many of these bigger snook seem to be hanging out in shallow water over sandy bottom in the two- to three-foot range. Hooking a 15-pound plus snook in two feet of water is an experience that is not soon forgotten by any angler.

After chumming these bays with live shiners, you quickly hear and see where the big snook are hanging out feeding. The sound of a big snook crashing a bait on the surface is a sound that only a snook can make. They sound so different than surface feeding trout and jacks. Imagine someone dropping a bowling ball in the water from 10 feet up. When one section of shoreline would really explode with feeding fish I used the trolling motor to get within casting range and power-pole down, casting to where we are seeing the fish feed. It’s basically live bait sight fishing. Once the action on shoreline quits keep moving; feeding these fish shiners really makes them eat when they won’t feed on anything else.

Several of these same bays and shorelines held a few real quality redfish too. What these redfish lacked in numbers they made up for in size. One such redfish this week was 26 inches and weighed just over eight pounds on the Boga Grip. This was quite possibly one of the latter redfish I have ever seen.

Most trips, while targeting and catching snook, we managed one or two top redfish I have ever seen, just over eight pounds on the Boga Grip. This was quite possibly one of the latter redfish I have ever seen.

With the tides finally flipping over this week giving us big high water in the mornings, mangrove redfish action should really pick up. If you wanted was within a few miles of the dock. With windy, rough conditions most days having great bait meant being able to stay close to home and keep everyone comfortable while finding non-stop action.

November 15 marks my favorite day of the year, the end of the pointless “no science” manatee zones in the sound. This really opens up a lot of water to anglers that usually just takes too long to reach or is to shallow fish without running on plane. After the 15th I get to fish places I have not fished since April. It’s better than Christmas!

Capt. Matt Mitchell has been fishing local waters since he moved to Sanibel in 1980. He now lives in St. James City and works as a back country fishing guide. If you have comments or questions email captmattmitchell@aol.com.

CROW Case Of The Week:
Nursery News
by Patricia Molloy

Babycare is a substantial portion of the rehabilitation work performed at CROW. Each year, the wildlife clinic treats thousands of orphaned, abandoned and injured baby bunnies, squirrels, opossums and raccoons, in addition to ducklings, songbirds, fuzzy owlets, raptors and the occasional tiny turtle. The team of staff members, students and volunteers works around the clock to administer species-specific diets and critical medications while providing environments in which the youngsters will thrive.

In September, seven healthy baby striped skunks were admitted to CROW after their mother was trapped and removed from her territory in Lee county. The kits were approximately three to four weeks old. They were initially housed in a separate room in the nursery to avoid any stinky mishaps with other babies. Students bottle-fed them several times a day, resulting in rapid growth. The kits have since been relocated to an outdoor enclosure and are nearly old enough to be released.

A flying squirrel arrived last month as an orphan. The tiny nocturnal creature was hairless and its large black eyes were not yet open, indicating that it was less than a month old. After several weeks of care in the nursery, it was transferred outside where it will learn to feed and care for itself. Once Dr. Heather has deemed the patient mature enough to survive, the flying squirrel will be returned to a wooded area to glide from limb to limb under the cover of night.

The avian nursery, which is perpetually at capacity, currently houses dozens of tiny patients, most of which arrived with light, downy feathers. Lined with incubators, the shelves of the room also contain tall stacks of clean towels and old newspapers. Volunteers, staff and students move quickly and efficiently from one hungry bird to the next, meticulously recording individual body weights and dietary requirements. Each cage and carrier must be disinfected daily to minimize the possibilities of spreading germs. As soon as each patient has been fed, the team begins the well-choreographed routine once again.

It takes weeks or months for babies to mature enough to survive in the wild. Most of the babies raised at the clinic from babyhood do not need to be returned to the exact location in which they were found, since they were too young to have established a territory. If you are interested in having wild mammals, birds or reptiles released on your property, contact the clinic for the set of guidelines to determine if your land is suitable.

Gingerbread Palm

by Gerri Reaves

The gingerbread palm (Hyphaene thebaica) is native to Egypt and other parts of coastal Africa. Also called dour palm, it prefers a hot, dry, sunny climate and is therefore very drought tolerant. It is also very salt tolerant.

In Egypt, the tree has been considered sacred since ancient times and was thought to provide shade, water, and food to the dead. The fruit was buried in the tombs of the pharaohs.

It typically grows to about 25 feet high, with large fan-shaped leaves and leaf stalks armed with curved thorns.

The spikes of male or female flowers bloom on separate trees.

The female tree produces the dark-brown woody fruit that tends to remain on the tree for an extended time. The fruit was buried in the tombs of the pharaohs.

You will often see these palms planted in your day-to-day travels.

Caring For Your Plants

Christmas Palms

by Justen Dobbs

If you are like most Americans, you will probably have a Christmas tree in your living room for the next six weeks. Did you know that there is a Christmas palm too? If you live in Southwest Florida, you have definitely seen many of them in your day to day travels.

The Christmas Palm (Adonidia merrillii) is native to Manila in the Philippines and surrounding areas where it grows in lowland rainforest. Other common names include the Manila palm and the Adonidia palm. It is strictly a subtropical and tropical palm making it perfect for landscapes in south Florida, extreme south Texas, and Hawaii. While not as ubiquitous as the Coconut palm, it certainly rivals it in its tropical beauty and serene silhouette.

The Christmas palm gets its name from bearing ripe and unripe fruits around December – unripe fruits are green and ripe fruits are bright red and the same size and shape as Christmas lights. Seeds germinate easily in two to three weeks and subsequent growth is fairly fast if given ample water, heat and humidity.

You will often see these palms planted in doubles or triples to add to the tropical effect. The palms are self-cleaning, grow in any well-drained soil, and can handle full sun or shade at any age. This makes them very versatile and popular among landscapers and homeowners alike.

What most people don’t know is that there are a few different cultivars of Christmas Palms. A cultivar is a subspecies of a palm that has the same basic structure and growth habit as the typical species, but differs in color, leafshape, or overall appearance. One cultivar is the Golden Christmas Palm which has a bright yellow crownshaft (neck) and yellow new leaves open and then fade to green. This one is popular among collectors and hard to find. Another cultivar is the variegated Christmas palm which has fine yellow stripes in the leaves and crownshaft. Some people find these cultivars to be unattractive or sick looking, but collectors appreciate them for their rarity and novelty.

For a long time, the Christmas palm has been considered to be a monotypic genus, meaning it is all alone in its botanical classification and has no close relatives. However, a new species has recently been discovered in New Guinea, called Adonidia maturbongsii. This new species looks nothing like the Christmas palm, but has an almost identical flowering structure, which is what the botanists base their description and classification on. It will likely be years before anyone in Florida has one of these growing in their garden since it is so new. Explorers are constantly finding new species of palm trees all over the world which is exciting for palm collectors, nurseries, botanical gardens, and drug manufacturers alike.

Could you have a new species lurking in your back yard? Probably not. But you never know.

Justen Dobbs is a landscape architect in South Florida specializing in custom, upscale landscapes. He can be reached at seabreezenurseries@gmail.com.

The gingerbread palm’s fruit contains vegetable ivory that is used to make jewelry, buttons, and carvings.

Golden Christmas palm

Variegated Christmas palm

Shiny, rounded, and smooth, the fruit emits a gingerbread odor that gives the palm its common name. The dried and powdered fruit is used in flavoring foods.

The single ivory-colored seed called vegetable ivory is currently popular in jewelry-making because it is a durable renewable resource.

In the tree’s native region, the ivory has long been used for making buttons, carvings, and artificial pearls.

In fact, all parts of the tree have a traditional use. The leaves, for example, are used in making baskets, mats, brooms, ropes, and various textiles, and the wood is used in building. The roots have medicinal properties and are also used to make alcoholic drinks.

Audubon Needs Christmas Bird Counters

San-Cap Audubon will conduct its annual Christmas Bird Count on Saturday, December 14. The results of the local count will be forwarded to the National Audubon Society for inclusion in the 114th National Christmas Bird Count.

More than 50,000 observers participate each year in this census of early-winter bird populations. The results are compiled into the longest running database in ornithology, representing over a century of unbroken data on trends of early-winter bird populations across the Americas. Simply put, the Christmas Bird count, or CBC, is citizen science in action.

Prior to the turn of the 20th century, people engaged in a holiday tradition known as the Christmas Side Hunt. They would choose sides and go into the field with their guns; whoever brought in the biggest pile of feathered (and furred) quarry won.

Conservation was in its infancy around the turn of the century, and many observers and scientist were becoming concerned about declining bird populations. Beginning on Christmas Day 1900, ornithologist Frank Chapman, an early officer in the then budding Audubon Society, proposed a new holiday tradition, a Christmas Bird Census that would count birds in the holidays rather than hunt them. So began the Christmas Bird Count. Thanks to the inspiration of Chapman and the enthusiasm of 27 dedicated birders, 25 Christmas Bird Counts were held that day. The locations ranged from Toronto, Ontario, to Pacific Grove, California with most counts in or near the population centers in northeastern North America. Those original 27 Christmas bird counters tallied a total of 90 species on all the counts combined.

Volunteers are needed for this year’s count. Birding skills are desirable but not necessary. To participate in this year’s count or for more information, call 437-2459.

Garden Council Tuesday Tours

The second annual “Ding” Darling Trailgate Party is scheduled for February 21 with a portion of event proceeds going to support continued mangrove cuckoo research and other education and research efforts at the J.N. “Ding” Darling National Wildlife Refuge. The theme this year is In the Pink, in homage to the iconic bird, the roseate spoonbill.

Last year’s inaugural Cuckoo for ‘Ding’ Trailgate Party took its theme from the mangrove cuckoo research study being conducted at the refuge the past couple of years.

“So the roseate spoonbill will be the second of our Big 5 birds we are featuring,” said Birgie Vertesch, executive director of the “Ding” Darling Wildlife Society-Friends of the Refuge, which hosts the event. “It’s part of our forthcoming video and social media campaign, where we invite birders to find their Big 5 – that is, their favorite and our most sought-after coastal birds at the refuge.”

The trailgate party will take place at the refuge and will include live entertainment and silent and live auctions to provide support where government funding falls short for the refuge.

“In Southwest Florida, we have a calendar chock full of community events, but the ‘Ding’ Trailgate Party is becoming the one not to miss,” said society board president John McCabe. “Taking place under a tent and having truck tailgates as serving tables, it’s a fun, laid-back, island-style party with good food, live music, and uniquely ‘Ding’ auction items.”

Silent auction items already on the table include an original, framed “Ding” Darling cartoon from 1937 commenting on the stock market, a hand-painted roseate spoonbill plate, and his and her artist-painted, island-themed bicycles.

“Seating is limited and we once again anticipate a sold-out crowd,” said event committee member and DDWS vice president Doris Hardy. “We encourage people to contact us if they would like to receive an invitation.”

Event sponsorships are available; for more information, contact Birgie Vertesch at 292-0566 or director@dingdarlingsociety.org.

Attendance is by reservation only. Tickets are $75 each. To register and view a list of auction items as they accumulate, visit www.dingdarlingsociety.org/auction. For more information, or to receive an invitation, call 292-0566.

Patty Sprankle hand-painted this roseate spoonbill plate for the In the Pink auction theme.

After visiting Jensen’s Marina on Captiva, artist Johnna Patterson and Al Romanoski, owner of www.customartbikes.com in St. Pete Beach, contributed custom island-themed bicycles for the upcoming Trailgate auction. With them is Refuge Ranger Toni Westland.
Smiles Abound At Off Broadway Palm

by Di Saggau

Talk about a crowd-pleasing production. Away in the Basement, A Church Basement Ladies Christmas, fits the bill and then some.

Opening night at Off Broadway Palm found the audience smiling from ear to ear and laughing out loud at the antics of the talented cast. It’s inspired by the best selling book Growing Up Lutheran and there are lots of Lutheran one-liners and a few funny jabs at Catholics. All in good fun.

It’s December 1959, the day before the annual Sunday School Christmas program. The play opens with the church pastor, Victor Legarreta, three church ladies and one intern preparing food and decorations for the event. Jennie Hollander is Vivian, a stern-faced widow who does not approve of the widowed pastor’s interest in Helen, a new member of the church. Kelly Legarreta is Mavis, a farmer’s wife who can handle just about anything if she doesn’t forget about it. ML Graham is Karin, a mom who can’t believe her daughter is 15. Lisa Bark is Beverly, her daughter.

This is a holiday sequel to the original Church Basement Ladies comedy. As the youngsters rehearse upstairs, the ladies are finishing up goodie bags and touching up nativity pieces. Little do they know what surprises and challenges await them.

What adds to the fun is that this is a musical comedy. Victor Legarreta has been part of the Southwest Florida theater scene for years and it’s always a treat to have the opportunity to hear him sing. The ladies are in fine voice too as they whisk through songs about unforgettable Christmas programs, pinatas and a popular Norwegian Christmas song written in 1859, Jeg er sa glad hver Julerkeveld, which translates to “I am so glad each Christmas Eve.”

There are references to lutefisk and egg coffee, which brings back strong memories and scents to quite a few people, myself included. Kelly Legarreta handles her role with admirable comic finesse and timing. Her inspection of a piñata and the name she comes up with for it are hysterical. Hollander portrays Vivian with great skill. She’s the one in charge of the kitchen and no one better forget it. There is another side to her that is revealed later on. Graham and Bark make the perfect mother-daughter pair. Mom is protective and daughter is growing up. And she does not want to portray Mary in the pageant.

This is a show that is perfect for the holidays because it’s about good old-fashioned church people who care about one another. It’s bound to brighten your spirits.

Away in the Basement, A Church Basement Ladies Christmas plays through December 25 at The Off Broadway Palm Theatre, 1380 Colonial Boulevard, Fort Myers. For tickets go to www.BroadwayPalm.com or call 278-4422.

Orchid Alliance Offers Free Class

by Di Saggau

Terrence McNally’s Frankie and Johnny in the Clair de Lune is now playing at Laboratory Theater of Florida.

The playwright meant for the opening scene to be dark with the audience only hearing the various sound effects of sexual pleasure from the two actors. It was to last for two minutes. This production was semi-lit and did not last a total of two minutes, for which I was thankful. Don’t get me wrong, I liked the play.

It’s about two would-be lovers, Frankie and Johnny, who are attempting to create a relationship. They work together at a diner. She’s a waitress and he’s a short order cook and both are in their 40s.

Loretta Siebert is Frankie, an unsure, nervous woman who hides behind brusqueness in order to conceal the hurt she carries within. Timothy J. Gunderman is Johnny, likable and warm, as well as energetic and passionate.

Frankie thinks he talks too much and he does. However his dialogue is a treat for the audience. He’s the eternal optimist who quotes Shakespeare quite often, even if he doesn’t have the Bard’s words exactly right. If he’s going to use a swear word he says “Excuse my French,” something that irritates Frankie.

Johnny is not any better than Frankie, but he is smarter as far as education is concerned. He wants to improve his life and he wants to connect with something and he’s determined that it’s going to be Frankie.

This is a very moving work with actors bravely laying bare their characters’ lives. Frankie also bares all from time to time, but no frontal nudity. It’s handled well.

Both of these people are hurting and trying to find refuge and love. Can they confront their demons and take the risk of love after spending one intense evening together? That’s the thrust of this play. It powerfully takes a look at what it means to be vulnerable and risk expressing romantic love.

As Director Brenda Kensler said, “Young love is a beautiful thing with toned, hard bodies and dreams of forever after. Middle-aged love, however, is just hard. We all bring our past to our relationships, baggage, if you will. The older one is, the heavier the load.”

The play realistically captures the messiness of life and the up and down dynamics of a romantic relationship. Gunderman and Siebert do a fine job confronting human frailty and need. This production is well worth seeing, but it is strictly for adults due to nudity, language and situations.

Frankie and Johnny in the Clair de Lune plays through November 23 at Laboratory Theater of Florida, located at 1634 Woodford Avenue, in the Fort Myers River District. For tickets call 218-0481.

Lab Theater Offers Fall Classes
The Laboratory Theater of Florida will offer a wide array of educational classes for child and adult performer this fall. Starting in the second week of November, classes such as Intro to Acting with Meisner Technique and Character Development: The Anti-Hero or Villain and How to Love Shakespeare will commence at the theater’s new rehearsal annex.

Mentorship And Rivalry At Florida Rep
by Di Saggau

“Now that’s acting.” Those were the words uttered by two well-known theater goers as they exited Florida Rep’s ArtStage Studio Theatre, after having seen Collected Stories.

The play by Donald Margulies is a two-character drama set between 1990 and 1996, focusing on two writers, their friendship, ambitions, rivalries and betrayals. Sara Morsey plays Ruth Steiner, an established Jewish scribe, famous for her short stories. Deanna Gibson plays Lisa Morrison, a young author who worships Steiner and after several tutorials, becomes her assistant.

From this point on we see a friendship develop and watch the young apprentice overcome her shyness and gain her own strength, daring to question Ruth’s advice and challenge her authority.

Sparks start to fly when Lisa sells her first story to a publication Ruth advised her against. Ruth is taken aback by Lisa’s independence, but quickly recovers. Lisa is regaled by stories of Ruth’s former life, including an affair she had, while very young, with a much older, famous poet. Lisa asks why she has never written about it and Ruth replies, “Some things you don’t touch.”

It’s pretty obvious at this point, that Lisa is going to ignore Ruth’s remark. Their friendship survives over several years until Lisa publishes her first novel, to rave reviews.

Problem is it’s Ruth’s life story, her Jewish background and her turbulent love affair. Lisa claims it’s an act of homage, but Ruth calls it exploitation and plunder.

Margulies’ dialogue is whip-smart, allowing the audience to enter the lives of these two women and understand what makes them tick.

Morsey and Morrison skillfully portray their characters’ contrasting personalities. Lisa is charming, innocent and a manipulator. Ruth is crusty, intimidating and clearly one who guards her affection. The two women play off one another beautifully. Director Chris Clavelli elicits fine performances, expertly showing the shifts in the women’s ever-changing relationship.

The set is obviously a writer’s workspace. Ruth’s Greenwich Village apartment is cluttered with magazines, clippings, manuscripts and a phone that rings often, but is never answered. Parts of the set extend into the audience which makes you feel as if you are in the room.

Collected Stories plays through December 7 in Florida Rep’s ArtStage Studio Theatre, located in the Historic Arcade Theatre on Bay Street between Jackson and Hendry. Tickets are available at www.floridarep.org or by calling the box office at 332-4488.

The Lee County Homeless Coalition raised more than $20,000 during the organization’s Roaring Twenties-themed 9th annual dinner and silent auction held November 2 at the Colonial Country Club in Fort Myers. The event was sponsored by the Aubuchon Family Fund, the Bireley Family Foundation and Matlacha Cottages. More than 200 guests attended and there was bidding on more than 100 donated auction items.

The funds raised will help the Lee County Homeless Coalition and its partners to continue their mission to end homelessness in the county. In addition, a portion of the proceeds from the dinner were donated to the Bob Janes Triage Center, a place for individuals who are at risk for committing minor non-violent crimes, and those who suffer from a behavioral health crisis.

Hosted by master of ceremonies Lee County Commissioner Cecil Pendergrass, the event featured special guest speaker Casey Jones, survivor of Flight 1549, the plane that landed safely in the Hudson River. Jones shared his story of the amazing event and how his faith kept him afloat.

“We are grateful for the support from our sponsors, partner agencies and the community for helping us to exceed our fundraising goal,” said Janet Bartos, executive director, Lee County Homeless Coalition. “However, as we enter the holidays, we continue to rely on the help of the Lee County community to make an impact with the children, families and approximately 3,000 individuals who are faced with homelessness every day.”

In Sunday’s singles finals at the Women’s Pro Classic at South Seas Island Resort, Captiva, #2 seed Mandy Minella of Luxembourg defeated Canadian Gabriela Dabrowski in straight sets 6-3, 6-3 to capture the inaugural event of the $50,000 USTA Pro Circuit Women’s Event. With professional tennis making its debut on Captiva this week, it was the final opportunity for players to obtain WTA Tour points in the U.S. to qualify for the 2014 Australian Open and that’s exactly what Minella accomplished this week.

“This tournament was really important for me to win because now I am going to get directly into the Singles Main Draw of the Australian Open in January,” said Minella. “The Women’s Pro Classic at South Seas was a perfect place to play a pro circuit event with all of the amenities and activities, I felt like I was on holiday half of the time I was here.”

Singles finalist Gabriela Dabrowski of Canada was also the doubles champion in Saturday’s doubles finals with partner Allie Will (who were seeded #1) and topped American duo Julia Boserup and Alexandra Mueller 6-1, 6-2 to claim the title.

Also making a special appearance at the Women’s Pro Classic Singles Final on Sunday was U.S. Open Tournament Director Brian Earley, who joined Captiva’s tournament director, Nick Blackwood, in the awards presentation ceremony.

“I was very excited about how well the Women’s Pro Classic went for our first year and all of the community support and involvement we had, I am already looking forward to next year’s event,” said Blackwood. “It was great to see so many of the top ranked WTA Tour players come to a first year event at South Seas Island Resort and also see that our event made a major impact on one of the players who will now get directly into the Australian Open Main Draw in January.”

Others who also played in the Women’s Pro Classic this year included American tennis stars Melanie Oudin (who has been ranked as high as #31 in the WTA Tour singles rankings) and is known for her thrilling run at the 2009 US Open where she defeated Maria Sharapova to advance to the quarter finals along with Victoria Duval who captured the hearts of Americans at the 2013 U.S. Open this summer after defeating Grand Slam Singles Champion Sam Stosur in the first round. In addition to this, Taylor Townsend also played on Captiva this week and has had breakthrough junior accomplishments on her way to playing the USTA Pro Circuit events includ-
Footloose & Fancy Free 5K Charity Run/Walk

Footloose & Fancy Free 5K Run/Walk will be held on Saturday, November 16, at Koreshan State Park. The run will be held in conjunction with a shoe drive to benefit the non-profit organization Soles4Souls. Registration will be at 7:30 a.m. and the run begins at 8 a.m. Details and registration information are available at www.footsolutions.com/estro.

A shoe drive is being held in conjunction with the run. Proceeds go to benefit the non-profit organization Soles4Souls, as well as Shoes for the Cure and Koreshan State Historic Park.

The Footloose & Fancy Free 5K Run/Walk will feature a unique course that winds through the beautiful trails and historic sites of Koreshan State Park. Runners will enjoy varied terrains and beautiful scenery as they travel along paths that were once the foot trails of the Koreshan colony during the late 1800s.

“We are very excited about another successful event this year,” said Chris Cole, owner of Foot Solutions Estero. “Last year, we had a great turnout and collected over 250 pairs of shoes, which were donated to those in need locally and worldwide. This year, we are anticipating at least 200 runners, and are hoping to provide an even bigger donation. The varied terrain trails of Koreshan Park make for a beautiful run. It has been the destination for several very successful 5K’s in years past. The park owners are also very excited about having everyone back for this year’s event, as well as many new participants.”

The run will be held in conjunction with a shoe drive to benefit the non-profit organization Soles4Souls and the local organization Shoes for the Cure. Participants are asked to bring a pair of used shoes with them on the day of the event to be donated to Soles4Souls, as well as other local charities. All shoes will either be redistributed to those in need of footwear, or will be recycled for materials. Participants may also drop off shoes at Foot Solutions Estero prior to the race.

Co-event organizer Julie Dibby added, “The Footloose & Fancy Free 5K is more than just a run. It is also an effort to help those in need locally, and around the world. Our hope is to provide relief to victims of abject suffering through the collection of used shoes, as well as support of these organizations who are making great efforts to eradicate poverty.”

“We encourage all runners and walkers to come out for a fun event, while also supporting these very worthy causes. Those who enjoy kayaking or camping are also encouraged to reserve camping spots at Koreshan, bring their gear and make it an all day event,” said Cole.

An awards ceremony will be held immediately following the run, in which prizes will be awarded to winners for males and females in each age category. The timing and course tracking will be provided by 3D Racing. Sponsorship opportunities are currently still available for this event. Registration forms are available online and at Foot Solutions of Estero. To download registration forms or sponsorship information, visit www.footsolutions.com/estro and go to the “Events” page. Online registration is also available at www.active.com or www.raceit.com.

Lee County Human Services Helps House Homeless Veterans

Sixty-seven homeless veterans have found housing in Lee County, thanks to providers including Lee County Department of Human Services, Lee County Homeless Coalition, Veteran’s Affairs, American Red Cross, the Fort Myers Housing Authority and the American Legion Post 38.

The effort started back in April, when local homeless providers were invited to join the 100,000 Campaign to house 100,000 homeless veterans nationwide by the end of December 2013. Local providers committed to housing 50 homeless veterans in 90 days. By the time the 90-day period ended, 52 homeless veterans found housing. So in July, the same local groups committed to housing another 50 to reach 100 by the end of December.

So far, 67 veterans have been housed with another 33 to go to reach the goal. There are 20 veterans in the system currently looking for housing.

The team teleconferences with each other every other week to identify program glitches and individual barriers to a veteran getting placed into stable housing. An innovative aspect of the team includes a partnership with the American Legion Post 38 for veterans to be with other veterans for support. Post 38 also secures and disburses household items to homeless veterans as they transition into their new life.

Lee County Human Services is housed in a downtown building shared by Lee County Veterans Services at 2440 Thompson Street, Fort Myers, FL 33901. Veterans can call 533-8381.

The motto for my office is, ‘Every day is Veterans Day,’” said John Ebling, director of Lee County Human Services. “Our primary mission is to assist veterans and the widows of veterans with claims on different benefits.

On average, Ebling sees 100 new clients each month. Many clients also arrive at Veterans Services seeking assistance with rent, utility bills and more, and he refers these individuals to Lee County Human Services for help.

Bullying Is The Latest Scandal To Hit Professional Sports

by Ed Frank

The never-ending sage of violence in professional sports boiled over this past week involving the Miami Dolphins football team in an issue heretofore centered in the classroom – bullying. Perhaps it should come as no surprise that Dolphins guard Richie Incognito, voted by fellow NFL players as the dirtiest player in football, is in the middle of the scandalous issue having been suspended indefinitely by Miami while the NFL investigates the matter.

Incognito’s alleged bullying resulted in fellow lineman Jonathan Martin fleeing the team saying that Incognito bullied him by leaving racist and threatening voice mails, emails and texts. Of course, the 300-pound Incognito downplays the entire issue saying it was all locker room antics that is prevalent throughout professional football.

It has been well documented that rookie hazing has long been tolerated in the NFL even to the point where rookies have been forced to pick up $30,000 dinner tabs for their college process, but others need some help to get through it. If you see that your child is feeling overwhelmed, may seem irritable, depressed or exhausted or their schoolwork is suffering, it’s time to step in and insist that your teenager relax a bit. It might mean giving up an activity, reducing part-time work hours, not go to every weekend party and more, but they need that extra down time to relax and renew themselves.

Make sure that you are serving healthy meals and that your teen is getting enough sleep. You might even suggest (strongly) that they leave their technological devices by the door at bedtime. In fact, it may be a relief for them to do so and could provide an easy way to save face for your teen by saying that my parents are making me do this.

Take some time to sit down with your teen and examine both yours and his expectations. Are they realistic? If he loves the outdoors and survival camping, maybe he should go to Alaska. Is he really a good student or is it always a crazy push to stay off of academic probation every year? What are his strengths and weaknesses? While it is very exciting to say I got accepted to such and such college, if he isn’t a great student maybe he does need some time to think about his life and what he wants to achieve. There are many young people who don’t come into their own until later in life. They may try their hand at working for a few years, and then go to college. It’s never too late to go back to school and real world experiences can make a huge difference in career decision-making.

The key here is that your son has a plan – even if it’s short term or not the ambition you would have chosen for him. All of us progress through life at our own pace and according to our own timetable. Some kids know from a young age what they want to do professionally while others kids set their sights on one career but change their mind once they achieve it or at some point along the way based on personal growth and interests and that’s OK, too. However, the question to consider here is that it may have been someone else’s vision for them more so than their own. So take some time now to listen carefully to you son and hear his concerns and dreams to help him set his future plans.

The Minnesota Twins announced Monday that All-Star catcher Joe Mauer will move from behind the plate to the first-base in order to preserve his health. “After consultation with doctors from the Mayo Clinic and team doctors, and given the inherent risks of future injury at the catcher position, the organization and Joe determined that it would be in the best interest of both him and the Twins for a position change,” the Twins said in a statement.

He suffered a concussion on a foul tip off his mask August 19 and did not play the remainder of last season.

The Twins said he is now symptom-free and has begun his off-season conditioning. Mauer batted .324 last season in 113 games and earned an American League Silver Slugger Award. He previously has played 56 games at first base committing just four errors.

Having traded their All-Star first-baseman Justin Morneau, the Twins obviously are in need of a big bat at that position.

Everblades Start Week with 8-1-1-1 Record Beginning a Four-Game Road Trip

The Florida Everblades are on the road for four games, two at Gwinnett, one at South Carolina and one at Orlando before returning to home ice next Saturday against Orlando.

With a season-starting record of 8-1-1-1, Florida began the week in second place in the ECHL South Division trailing South Carolina by two points.

Last week, the Everblades split a pair of games against Elmira and suffered a 4-3 overtime loss to Toledo.

Well Read Gift Shop Benefits Hope Hospice

The idea of a one-night benefit for Hope Hospice turned into something bigger with Robin Currier involved. Well Read, a seasonal clothier and gift shop featuring unique items dedicated to the love of literature, is her new vision of a way to help.

The boutique will be open throughout November at Bell Tower Shops, with a portion of each sale – from both the store and online – being donated to benefit the Pet Peace of Mind program at Hope Hospice.

Pet Peace of Mind helps individuals who are facing a life-limiting illness to remain close to their beloved pets. Often considered members of the family, these pets are lovingly cared for by Hope volunteers, who feed and walk the pets and ensure they remain clean and healthy – and by their owner’s side.

“I was truly inspired by what Hope Hospice does with the pets of their patients,” Currier said. “These animals provide unconditional love and companionship when a seriously ill person needs it most. I loved the program and felt I simply had to find a way to help, Well Read gives me that opportunity.”

Currier has blended her passions for literature and fashion by creating a line of men’s neckties and T-shirts based on classic works such as Moby Dick, Anna Karenina, Jane Eyre, Humpty Dumpty and many more. Some of the designs are literal while others are more abstract, Currier said. Well Read will also carry leggings, dresses and accessories for women and children.

In addition to Currier’s original artwork, the innovative packaging is created to provide a playful answer to holiday shopping needs. Currier said she loves packaging, and her first venture into the fashion industry was men’s neckties packaged in hardbound book boxes. Well Read items are geared toward children and adults – a romper for the boy and a matching T-shirt for dad, for example.

Well Read will be staffed by volunteers and carry Currier’s business model, which is grounded in service and giving back to the Fort Myers community where she was born and raised. Currier said Bell Tower is incredibly supportive by offering an empty store to lease for the month.

“We think what Robin is doing for our Pet Peace of Mind program is marvelous,” Hope HealthCare Services CEO Samira K. Beckwith said. “For many in our care, pets are considered part of the family and bring so much joy, which is why we created the program. We also help ensure that these treasured pets find a loving, adoptive home.”

“I am impressed with Hope Hospice,” Currier said. “They always think outside the box.”

Hope HealthCare Services provides end-of-life care and many other programs to provide care for people with serious or advancing illness, including the Hope Parkinson Program, Hope Kids Care and Hope PACE, a Program of All-Inclusive Care for the Elderly, which coordinates all medical care for seniors and provides health and dental care, warm meals, and entertainment and socialization opportunities at Hope’s Care Centers.

Each day, the not-for-profit organization cares for more than 2,000 individuals of all ages and their families.

“Hope’s staff and volunteers touch the lives of thousands of people each day, but our focus is still on the special needs of every individual,” Beckwith said. “That’s what Hope is all about.”

Dear Pharmacist: I have a bedroom problem. I took Viagra for several years and it stopped working, so I was put on Cialis. Sometimes that helps, sometimes not. I’m too embarrassed to ask my doctor again. She says this is a part of aging because I am 58.

Any suggestions?

TM, Bethesda, Maryland

I have many! I’m stunned that she’s never mentioned bio-identical hormone replacement for you, as in testosterone or T. The reason most men develop erectile dysfunction in the first place is because they are low in their natural “manly” hormone, which starts to decline with age. The declining T causes a relative increase in circulating estrogen, a hormone found in higher concentrations in women. Restoring testosterone or T puts balance back, so it’s best my recommendation for increasing mojo.

Giving a man one of those super sex pills like Viagra, Levitra or Cialis is the equivalent of jump starting the car every two miles, rather than just fixing the battery. Why do men medicate themselves every weekend, when they can fix the root cause by balancing hormones? It’s a good question isn’t it? A good physician should evaluate your hormones and neurotransmitters and decipher if it’s low testosterone, low dopamine, high cortisol, high estrogen, low progesterone, high insulin, low DHEA or oxytocin. If you’re a man or a woman, and you’ve ‘lost that lovin’ feelin’ that’s what you need to evaluate and replenish. Prescribed sex pills, as useful as they are, can’t balance hormones.

There’s another reason I get hot under the collar about this topic. Men are dying every day from heart attack and stroke that may have been prevented. The clue that you’re headed for trouble is erectile dysfunction. Think that out, it’s not hard to understand. If the blood isn’t effectively flowing down south to your penis, it isn’t flowing up north either, to your heart. The blood vessels are clogged and that could cause erectile dysfunction years before a massive heart attack occurs.

What does conventional medicine do? Prescribe a quick fixer upper, so you can have a night of fun, instead of helping you clear your arteries, improve vessel flexibility, correct hormonal imbalances and manage cholesterol (they don’t even measure it correctly but that’s another column).

I think there is an incomplete knowledge or understanding of physiology or hormones because sex pills should not be your go-to drug for erectile dysfunction. You think it’s just me saying that to alarm you? No chance, I would never scare you, that’s not how I roll.

A study published in March 2010 in Circulation concluded, “Erectile dysfunction is a potent predictor of all-cause death and the composite of cardiovascular death, myocardial infarction, stroke, and heart failure in men with cardiovascular disease.” There’s no doubt, low testosterone is a risk factor for heart attack.

Replacement therapy is controversial. Some studies suggest the very use of testosterone increases heart attack risk, but I find flaws with those studies. Balance is key.

Mom And Me

Lizzie and Pryce answer your questions and give advice about aging concerns from a two-generational perspective. A mother and daughter team, Lizzie is a retired RN and health educator, and Pryce is a licensed psychotherapist in private practice who specializes in the care of elders and people with chronic illnesses.

Dear Mom & Me,

During the holidays, we decided one night to go to the movies. As we approached the two available seats, I could not help but notice the three people sitting in the seats closest to me. A severely obese father, his very fat daughter who was about 10 years old and his wife who was at least 80 pounds overweight.

Just before the movie was to begin, the wife started to drink her colossal soda, followed by two boxes of chocolate-covered raisins, then she opened a box of cookies and shared them with her child and husband. She consumed calories during the entire movie. She was really working hard on her apparent plan to become grossly obese.

Please share with me what is happening to some of the boomer generation?

Cathryn

Dear Cathryn,

Based on the diet industry, I don’t think obesity is limited to the boomer generation.

Good health habits of proper nutrition and exercise are a day-to-day lifelong commitment. There are many who can make the commitment and many who cannot. My heart goes out to the overweight kids of the world, whose parents are not setting good examples or teaching good habits. Kids can be cruel to overweight peers.

Pryce

Dear Pryce,

Many seniors also over-indulge and gain weight. Some seniors have limited ability to move due to arthritis and other medical conditions. Their main source of entertainment revolves around food. Food becomes their pleasure and they want to enjoy themselves.

Children who are overweight can become obese in adulthood and face many problems. Their insurance premiums are two to four times higher.

They have higher medical bills, face job discrimination, do not become candidates for job promotion, have shorter life spans, along with the possibility of diabetes and becoming blind.

Unfortunately, many people live to eat, rather than eat to live.

Jail Time Nets $40,000 For MDA

More than 50 business and civic leaders from throughout the Cape Coral area were “arrested” and put behind bars for the Muscular Dystrophy Association’s Cape Coral Lock-Up fundraiser on October 30 at Palmetto-Pine Country Club. The event raised $40,139.

Accused of having big hearts and being heavily armed with kindness, the “jailbirds” volunteered to be part of MDA’s Lock-Up in order to raise “bail” by encouraging friends, family, co-workers and business contacts to make contributions to MDA that directly benefit families in the greater Southwest Florida area living with progressive muscle diseases.

Top bail-raisers included Shelly Cranford of Back Streets, Cape Coral Mayoral Candidate Marni Sawicki, Lisa Muñoz of Midpoint Bingo, and Christopher Camp of Camp-Rigby.

Mayor John Sullivan, Interim Cape Coral Police Chief Bart Connelly, Local 2424 Chief Timothy Hayes, John Carioscia, Brian Hammon, April Freeman, Rick Williams and Richard Leon were among some of the other community members being locked-up.

Community sponsors included Cape Coral Police Community Volunteer Unit, Twin DJs of Sarasota, Elite Limousine Services, Auntie M’s Goodies, Amy Weiler Photography, Bubba’s Road House, FGCU, Jill’s Joint, Westin Cape Coral, and Banana Bay Tour Company.

The event also will help send Cape Coral area youngsters to a special week at MDA summer camp at Rotary Camp in Brandon.

Race For Cure Seeks Volunteers

The Southwest Florida affiliate of Susan G. Komen is seeking volunteers for the Race for the Cure committee. The race takes place on March 8 at Coconut Point Mall in Estero, and planning is under way.

Volunteers are needed to contact sponsors, organize teams, plan survivor events and help with race day organization and implementation. The committee meets once a month at the offices of Susan G. Komen Southwest Florida at 26800 S. Tamiami Trail, Suite 210 in Bonita Springs. Additional meetings may be scheduled more frequently in the two weeks leading up to the race.

In 1982, Nancy Brinker promised her dying sister, Susan G. Komen, that she would do everything in her power to end breast cancer forever. As part of that promise, the Race for the Cure series was developed as a means to fund education, research and early detection of breast cancer. In 2013 the Southwest Florida Affiliate of Susan G. Komen Race For The Cure was able to grant more than $600,000 in funds in the five-county area for mammograms, ultrasounds and breast health education.

To get involved as a volunteer or sponsor, call 498-0016 or visit www.komenswfl.org.
My Stars ★★★★★

FOR WEEK OF NOVEMBER 18, 2013

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) (March 21 to April 19) Although your energy level is high, you may be too busy to manage too many projects at this time. You’ll do better focusing on just a few tasks rather than spreading yourself too thin.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your heart might be leading you in one direction, but pay attention to your keen Bovine intellect. I’m cautioning you to think things through before making any commitments.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your “serious” Twin has been dominant in your life for quite a while. It’s time now to let that “wilder” half take you out for some good times — perhaps with someone very special.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Career aspects are high for Moon Children who make a good impression. Show people not only what you can already do, but also how you can be more valuable to them in the future.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Things start to brighten for the Lion’s immediate financial future. But be careful to resist the urge to splurge. You need to tuck something away to help you through another tight period.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Having to do too many tasks in too short a time could lower your mood to just above the grumbling level. But if you handle things one at a time, you’ll get through it all soon enough.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your usually carefully made holiday plans could be subject to change later this month. Use this week to prepare for that possibility by starting a Plan B just in case you need it.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Be careful about joining a colleague’s plan to solve a workplace problem. Investigate it thoroughly. Otherwise, you could find yourself in a predicament with other associates.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Slow down that high-paced whirl you’ve been on. Spending quiet time alone or with people you care for can be both physically and spiritually restorative.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Make suggestions, not demands. You’ll be more successful in getting people to follow your lead if you exercise quiet patience instead of strong persuasion to get your ideas across.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You still need more facts before you can make an informed career choice. One note of caution: Be careful about whom you ask for that information; otherwise, you could be misled.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Changing situations during the end of the week could lead to some challenging opportunities for those perspicacious Pisceans who know how to make them work to their advantage.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of being both daring and cautious, traits that could make you a research scientist or maybe even a rocket-ship designer.

THIS WEEK IN HISTORY

• On Nov. 18, 1863, President Abraham Lincoln boards a train for Gettysburg, Pa., to deliver a short speech at the dedication of a cemetery. The Gettysburg Address became one of the most famous speeches in American history.

• On Nov. 21, 1927, Time magazine puts the week-old Holland Tunnel on its cover. The tunnel, which runs under the Hudson River between New York City and Jersey City, N.J., required 84 ventilating fans that replace all the air in the tunnel every 90 seconds.

• On Nov. 23, 1963, legendary Mississippi Delta bluesman Robert Johnson is recorded for the very first time in a San Antonio recording studio. He spent only five days in the studio, recording 41 total takes of 29 different songs. Almost immediately, Johnson’s recordings gained a cult following among blues collectors.

• On Nov. 24, 1947, the House of Representatives votes to approve citations of contempt against 10 Hollywood writers, directors and producers. These men had refused to cooperate at hearings dealing with communism in the movie industry. Hollywood quickly established the so-called blacklist, and those on the list rarely found work in the movies.

• On Nov. 20, 1955, Bo Diddley introduced himself and his namesake beat with his debut on “The Ed Sullivan Show.” Diddley opened his appearance with his song “Bo Diddley.” Sullivan had expected him to perform Ernie Ford’s “Sixteen Tons,” but he was furious enough to ban Diddley from future appearances on his show.

• On Nov. 19, 1976, Patty Hearst is released on bail pending the appeal of her conviction for participating in a 1974 San Francisco bank robbery that was caught on camera. Hearst had been kidnapped months before the robbery by members of the Symbionese Liberation Army.

• On Nov. 22, 1986, 20-year-old Mike Tyson knocked out Trevor Berbick in just five minutes and 35 seconds to become the youngest titleholder ever. Tyson kept his title for nine more bouts. After that, his life unraveled when he was sent to prison for three years.

STRANGE BUT TRUE

• It was the ever-proper Emily Post who made the following sage observation: “Manners are a sensitive awareness of the feelings of others. If you have that awareness, you have good manners, no matter what fork you use.”

• During the Dark Ages in Europe, it was a common belief that the soul of the first person to be buried in a new graveyard would belong to the devil.

• If you’re planning a trip to Washington state anytime soon, you might want to head to Olympic National Park and take the Spruce Railroad Trail up to Lake Crescent, a 600-foot-deep mountain lake. It has a rather spooky history, with Bigfoot sightings and numerous accounts of ghosts and inexplicable happenings in the nearby woods. The native Klamn Indians refused to fish in the lake for fear of stirring up the evil spirits that resided there. Lake Crescent also is the setting for one of the Wonder Trail’s last remaining tales of a cemetery.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

“In the United States there is more space where nobody is than where anybody is. That’s what makes America what it is.” -- Gertrude Stein
Sweet Corn and Chorizo Sausage Stuffed Florida Clams

24 to 30 medium-sized live clams, rinsed
1 cup yellow corn meal
¼ cup jack cheese, shredded
1 link chorizo sausage, diced small
1 red bell pepper, diced small
1 cup corn kernels
1 small onion, diced small
¾ cup fresh cilantro, chopped
1 egg
1 teaspoon chili powder
oil for cooking
sea salt to taste
fresh ground pepper to taste

Fill a medium-sized stock pot halfway with water. Place stock pot on the stove over medium-high heat and bring to a boil. Lightly salt the water in the stock pot. When a boil is reached, add the live clams to the pot. Cook the clams until they just start to open. Drain them in a colander and run cold water over them until they are cooled off. Discard any unopened clams. Let clams drain well and place them in the refrigerator until later.

Preheat a medium sauté pan over medium heat. Add 1 teaspoon of oil to the preheated pan. Add the diced onions and chorizo sausage to the pan. Cook the onions and chorizo until the onions are translucent and the chorizo is golden brown. Add the bell pepper, corn, and chili powder to the pan. Continue to cook for two to three minutes and season lightly with salt and pepper. Remove ingredients from heat and add them to a medium-sized mixing bowl. To the mixing bowl add cornmeal, cheese, cilantro, egg, and ¼ cup of water. Mix ingredients thoroughly; add a little more water if necessary so the stuffing is moist.

Preheat the oven to 375 degrees F. Remove cooked clams from the refrigerator. Open up each shell the rest of the way so they can be stuffed. Place an even amount of stuffing in each shell. Place stuffed shells in a baking dish and put on the center rack of the oven. Bake clams for 7 to 12 minutes or until heated throughout. Remove from oven and serve immediately. ☺

Lee County Human Services Helps House Homeless Veterans

Sixty-seven homeless veterans have found housing in Lee County, thanks to providers including Lee County Department of Human Services, Lee County Homeless Coalition, Veteran’s Affairs, American Red Cross, the Fort Myers Housing Authority and the American Legion Post 38.

The effort started back in April, when local homeless providers were invited to join the 100,000 Campaign to house 100,000 homeless veterans nationwide by the end of December 2013. Local providers committed to housing 50 homeless veterans in 90 days. By the time the 90-day period ended, 52 homeless veterans found housing. So in July, the same local groups committed to housing another 50 to reach 100 by the end of December.

So far, 67 veterans have been housed with another 33 to go to reach the goal. There are 20 veterans in the system currently looking for housing.

The team teleconferences with each other every other week to identify program glitches and individual barriers to a veteran getting placed into stable housing. An innovative aspect of the team includes a partnership with the American Legion Post 38 for veterans to be with other veterans for support. Post 38 also secures and disburse household items to homeless veterans as they transition into their new life.

Lee County Human Services is housed in a downtown building shared by Lee County Veterans Services at 2440 Thompson Street, Fort Myers, FL 33901. Veterans can call 533-8381.

“The motto for my office is, ‘Every day is Veterans Day,’” said John Ebling, director of Veterans Services for Lee County. “Our primary mission is to assist veterans or the veterans of veterans with claims on different benefits.”

On average, Ebling sees 100 new clients each month. Many clients also arrive at Veterans Services seeking assistance with rent, utility bills and more, and he refers these individuals to Lee County Human Services for help.

Pets Of The Week

My name is Jezabella and I’m a tan female hound mix age 1½ years. Hi, they call me Jezabella but I respond just as well to Bella. I am a big hound with a very sweet temperament. I am still pretty shy but with love and patience I am getting braver every day. I love to romp in the grass and sit to be petted. I will reward your time and patience with loyalty and love.

Adoption fee: $20 during Animal Services Petsgiving adoption promotion.

My name is Gretchen and I am a domestic, two-year-old female brown tabby. Gretchen was a young woman when she came to the shelter. She spent a couple of months in a foster home with her kittens and was an excellent mother. Her foster mom reports that she is a very gentle, easy-going cat with a good disposition. She loves to be handled and doesn’t even mind having her nails clipped. She gets along fine with dogs too and would do well in a multi-pet household.

Adoption fee: $20 during Animal Services Petsgiving adoption promotion.

For information about this week’s pets, call 533-7387 (LEE-PETS) or log on to Animal Services’ website at www.LeeLostPets.com. When calling, refer to the animal’s ID number. The website updates every hour so you will be able to see if these or any other pets are still available.

The shelter is open for adoptions from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday. The shelter is located at 5600 Banner Drive, Fort Myers, next to the Lee County Sheriff’s Office, off Six Mile Cypress Parkway.

All adoptions include spay/neuter surgery, age-appropriate vaccinations, rabies vaccination and county license if three months or older, flea treatment, worming, heartworm test for dogs six months and over, feline AIDS and leukemia test for cats, training DVD, 10-day health guarantee, and a bag of Science Diet pet food.

The adoption package is valued at $500.
